MAYOR DEMANDS FAIR KEEP OPEN ANOTHER YEAR

Chicago Day Crowd Cheers His Plea.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Mayor Kelly, speaking at the Chicago day celebration yesterday in the court of the Hall of Science before a crowd of 10,000, demanded that A Century of Progress Exposition continue through next year. The crowd cheered wildly when the mayor at the conclusion of his speech disregarded his notes and, leaning over the speaker's stand, gave the first indication that Chicago hopes to keep the World's Fair open a second year.

"Right now as mayor of Chicago, knowing that I express the sentiments of all the people in Chicago, I demand that this Exposition be continued during the next year," the mayor said.

"We know what it has brought to Chicago and realize that it will continue to be a pump for city and national prosperity. Our citizens will not take 'no' for an answer, so please, officials of A Century of Progress, do as we ask."

Traces City Development.

Prior to this Mayor Kelly had traced the development of Chicago from the fire of 1871 to its present place among the world's major cities. He spoke briefly of the war against crime, and its success.

"During the last summer," the mayor said, "our city has been host to thousands of persons from all over the world. We are proud to have had them, but Chicago has been so busy being host it has not had time to visit the Fair itself. I call upon all Chicagoans during the next week to visit the Exposition.

"Only Chicago would have had the courage to plan and realize such a Fair when the whole world was suffering from a depression. To Rufus C. Dawes and the other courageous men who made the Fair an actuality Chicago extends its thanks."

Fair to Study Request.

Fair officials were reluctant to comment on Mayor Kelly's demand. Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, acted as spokesman for the Fair.

"If the public demands that the Fair be operated a second year," he said, "we will be glad to give earnest consideration to any feasible plan suggested."

The Chicago day ceremonies opened under threatening skies, following a morning of intermittent rain. Fair officials blamed the weather for keeping the attendance far below the figure that had been anticipated following a record breaking throng of 304,568 on Sunday. At no time had officials expected a crowd approaching that of Chicago day at the old Fair, when 716,881 paid admissions were recorded. At 11:30 p. m. yesterday the official attendance was 131,025.

Gov. Horner Accompanies Mayor.

Mayor Kelly entered the court of honor at 1:30 p. m., accompanied by Gov. Horner, who was honor guest of the day. They were met by the Marine Corps band and United States troops from Camp Whistler. Following a military review the party paraded to the Science court for the formal program. An overflow crowd filled the 5,000 seats, lined the aisles and crowded the parapets to hear the speeches and the Marine band concert.

Gov. Horner termed Chicago the miracle city of the century and prophesied that it would continue to be a miracle city during the next 100 years.

"Supremely confident of Chicago's glorious destiny, we bid her Godspeed on her journey through her second century," Gov. Horner said, "envisioning for her even greater accomplishments than those she attained during her first one hundred years."

Compliments Fair Officials.

Gov. Horner termed the Fair one of the greatest single factors in the return of optimism throughout the nation and complimented the officials for their courage in going ahead with their plans in face of the depression.

"It was a momentous decision," he said, "typical of Chicago, and it heartened the whole world at a time when courage was at a low ebb. The wisdom of Chicago's decision was soon demonstrated. It needed only President Roosevelt's leadership to turn our nation back to better times."

A reception was held at the Illinois Host house in the afternoon, with Mrs. Henry E. Mason as official hostess. Mrs. Mason was president of Chicago day at the old Fair. Her father-in-law, Roswell B. Mason, was mayor of Chicago at the time of the fire. Officials of the state building said that 10,000 persons visited the building during the reception.

HISTORY IN THE REMAKING

"THERE, CHRIS, YOU CAN GO BACK AND TELL YOUR FOLKS THAT YOU CAN SAIL WEST AND STRIKE A NEW CONTINENT CALLED VINLAND"
OLD NORSE SHIP IN WORCESTER

Some historian now asserts that Columbus made a voyage to America with the Norsemen as early as 1476.

"YES, SIRE, YOUR REAL NAME IS MARBEUF AN' YOU WAS BORN RIGHT HERE IN BRITTANY"
"WELL, WELL, THIS DOES BEAT ALL. I ALWAYS THOUGHT I WAS NAPOLEON BONAPARTE"

A recent historian claims to have discovered that Napoleon was really born in Brittany, the son of the Count de Marbeuf.

Captain Kidd was a widely publicized stuffed shirt. The only time he ever killed a man was once when he hit a boatswain with a bucket.

Medical progress is steadily revising the old scriptural span of life. Within the next century the span will go up to 78 years.

For some time folks have been asserting that Queen Elizabeth was a man and that this was one of the reasons why she never married.

Now we are told that the Chicago fire didn't start for three hours after the O'Leary cow was milked. Some boys rushing the growler dropped a lighted cigar.

NEXT SUNDAY—M'CUTCHEON'S "INJUN SUMMER" IN COLORS

Head of Poland to Wed Aid of His Dead Wife

WARSAW, Oct. 9.—(AP)—One of Poland's most touching romances will culminate tomorrow morning when the 65 year old, grief bowed president, Ignace Moscicki, takes as his wife Mary Dobrzanska, young divorcée whose life also has been crossed by the shadow of tragedy.

The ceremony will be attended only by the most intimate friends and is expected to take place in the private chapel of the presidential palace.

The marriage will be kept secret and only after it is completed will the nation be informed officially.

Obtain Special Dispensation.

The marriage between the chief executive and the social secretary to his late wife required a special dispensation from the Catholic cardinal.

Moscicki, after the triple affliction of the deaths of his wife, son and son-in-law, the last of whom was to have taken over his scientific work, seemed for a while determined to resign from office.

So tactfully, however, did his bride-to-be strive to bring happiness back into the president's life that the bond of sympathy established between them ripened into love.

Mme. Dobrzanska, who possesses not only rare charm but extremely good looks, is more than 30 years President Moscicki's junior. She also has had her fill of sorrows.

Before coming of age she became infatuated with Capt. Tadeusz Nagorny and, despite the pleadings of her father and mother, who refused their assent, she eloped to become the wife of the man she adored. The marriage proved a series of unhappy misunderstandings.

Parents Commit Suicide.

The captain's escapades culminated in a public scandal when he, then attached to the president's personal staff as an aid, became entangled in an extra-marital affair necessitating his transfer to a regiment on the eastern front.

Shortly after this marriage the parents seemed to be inclined to receive and forgive their daughter, but the mother never brought herself to the actual reconciliation. Instead, the aged couple committed suicide.

Mme. Dobrzanska and the captain were divorced several years ago.

SECRET SERVICE HEAD ROWS WITH POLICE AT FAIR

A row between Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, chief of the local office of the United States secret service, and two south park policemen at the 23d street gate of the World's Fair led to the arrest of Capt. Callaghan's chauffeur last night and threats by the captain to take up the case with Mayor Kelly today.

"They were two of the most discourteous policemen I have ever seen," asserted Capt. Callaghan later.

The reference was to Lieut. John Grant and Policeman James C. Ivers. They denied they had been discourteous to Capt. Callaghan.

The trouble rose over the parking of the captain's car at a point which the policemen declared was nonparking area. During the dispute Capt. Callaghan identified himself and presented a courtesy card signed by Mayor Kelly. The difference ended with the policemen ordering Joseph Baron, the chauffeur, to the Pekin Inn police station.

Glass Keeps Eagle Off His Pair of Papers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], who was President Roosevelt's first choice for secretary of the treasury and declined the appointment, was disclosed tonight to be in a position similar to that of Henry Ford, with respect to the NRA.

CARTER GLASS.

The senator, who voted against the National Industrial Recovery act, is the owner of the Lynchburg News and the Lynchburg Advance, neither of which is displaying the Blue Eagle. A story has spread that when the editors of the newspapers had suggested that it would be advisable to carry the Blue Eagle, as authorized under the temporary arrangement of the publishers with the NRA, pending completion of a newspaper code, Mr. Glass replied to this effect:

"All right; join the NRA, and put that black buzzard on the paper, if you want to. But the same day, I will print on the front page a signed statement saying the law is unconstitutional and that it is being brutally administered."

Issues Statement.

Asked tonight whether he wished to confirm or deny the story, he replied that he had not "authorized any such statement." Later, he dictated the following statement:

"My newspapers, seven months before the NRA act was proposed, went on a five day week basis and my wage scale is much above the requirement of the NRA.

"As I understand it, no newspaper code has yet been adopted. I decline to sign any blank agreement to let anybody run my business. When the code is adopted, I will then consider whether to observe it or not.

"This is the only public statement I have made in connection with the matter."

"MACHINE GUN" KELLY ON BREAD AND WATER DIET

Clubbed in Quarrel Over His Wife.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A staff of government prosecutors bent on obtaining a quick conviction of George [Machine Gun] Kelly, defiant outlaw, and his quick tempered wife, Kathryn, rushed the trial of the couple on kidnaping charges today after a row between the prisoners and their guards, in which a guard's face was slapped and Kelly was pounded on the head with a pistol butt.

With blood trickling from a wound on his head Kelly entered the courtroom to see a jury of four farmers and eight business men selected within two hours to hear the evidence in the second trial growing out of the $200,000 kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire.

As for the slender Kathryn, she smiled and chatted with J. C. White, federal guard, just as if she had not slapped him on the way to court and then cried hotly that she'd "do it again."

How Fracas Started.

The pre-trial melée occurred when Agent White gave Mrs. Kelly a slight shove as she paused to kiss her father, J. E. Brooks, before entering the federal building elevator.

She slapped White sharply and Kelly raised his manacled hands over the officer's head.

White, grasping his pistol by the barrel, brought it down several times over Kelly's head as Kathryn screamed: "Don't! Don't!"

Other guards surrounded the couple and rushed them into the elevator and up to the tower courtroom.

His head swelling under his straw colored, dyed hair, Kelly raged and muttered:

"I didn't do a thing and he hit me with a pistol."

The Kellys soon were smiling again, however.

Kelly has been on a bread and water diet since Sunday as punishment for a threatening gesture at Urschel in federal court here last Saturday during Kelly's arraignment. The desperado went to bed tonight, however, without supper after he angrily stamped upon the shallow pan containing his ration.

Makes Opening Statement.

District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde told the jury the government will prove that Kelly, a machine gun swinging from under one arm, was the scowling companion of Albert Bates the night Urschel was kidnaped from his home here; that Kelly guarded the millionaire captive on the Shannon ranch near Paradise, Tex., and that Kelly took the $200,000 ransom money from E. E. Kirpatrick, Urschel's friend, on a Kansas City street.

Kathryn, he said, will enter the picture at Stratford, Okla., at the T. M. Coleman farm home, "where you will hear her saying the day of the kidnaping: 'We're going to make some money,' and where you will hear Kelly saying: 'There's going to be a kidnaping tonight.'"

Hyde swung into the threats which marked the first Urschel trial and its seven convictions, saying: "Kathryn Kelly wrote two or three letters to the Urschel family, threatening them with violence and destruction.

"And we'll have 10 or 15 witnesses to testify that in this very courtroom last week, George Kelly stopped in front of Mr. Urschel and said: 'You big sap, you'll get yours.'"

Assails Mrs. Kelly's Attorney.

Without pausing, he assailed John V. Roberts, Mrs. Kelly's attorney, declaring:

"We'll show that Roberts made the statement to Kathryn Kelly, in the jail, that Verne Miller, a fugitive from justice and an outlaw, and Wilbur Underhill, an outlaw and a fugitive, 'will take care of Arnold if he testifies in this case.'"

He referred to Luther Arnold, who, while the Kellys were fleeing, engaged Roberts as an attorney on behalf of Mrs. Kelly and her mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon.

Both Arnold and his 12 year old daughter, Geraldine, who was used as a "blind" by the Kellys when they fled to Memphis and who told officers of their hiding place there, are expected to testify.

Makes Preliminary Statement.

Opening testimony was delayed until after Roberts had made a preliminary statement, but when he began an elaborate explanation of his part in acting for Mrs. Kelly, Judge Edgar S. Vaught told him to "keep your remarks pertinent to the issue."

Roberts told the jury his "sole con-

"WINKLER? NEVER KNEW HIM," SAYS WEBER IN MIAMI

County Commissioner Charles H. Weber last night denied any relationship with Gus Winkler, gang chief who was slain yesterday in front of the office of Weber's beer distributing company at 1414 Roscoe street. The commissioner was reached by telephone at Miami, Fla., where he said he is attempting to sell a parcel of real estate.

"I never met Winkler and never saw him," said Weber. "I don't know why he had to pick on my place to get shot in front of."

The commissioner's voice faded. He was asked what he had said.

"Stick your head out the window and you'll hear me," he shouted. "I don't know the hoodlum and don't ever want to know him. I never had anything to do with him."

Wishes It Were 175 Slugs.

Weber asked for details of the shooting. When these were given he said: "I wish they had given him 175 slugs instead of 72. We ought to get rid of all those fellows."

The commissioner was told that one of his employés recognized Winkler as a man who had made purchases from the beer distributing company under the name of Michael Rand. Weber asserted that this was probable, but that he did not know many of his customers and certainly not Winkler.

He was told that it was reported he and Winkler were partners in the distributing company and also were business associates in the Streets of Paris at A Century of Progress, where Weber has the beer privileges. Weber denied the reports vigorously.

"I have no traffic with such people," he said. "I have been told that the gangsters were jealous of my company and were going to muscle in on it. No one ever approached me from the gangsters on this subject, but that was what was told me.

Glad Winkler Got It.

"Maybe Winkler had that in mind when he became a customer, if he was one. Maybe he was looking the place over and then was going to try to take it over. If that's the case I'm glad he got it. I'm glad anyway. We want to get rid of those fellows."

Commissioner Weber said he could not understand why the ambush took place in front of his office. The fact that it did would indicate, according to the police, that the slayers had knowledge of Winkler's movements and were sure he would appear there.

"All I know is I don't like that kind of advertising," Weber said. "With all of Chicago to pick from Winkler should have found some other place."

Weber said he would gladly appear before any one investigating the case but could throw no light on the shooting. He will probably return to Chicago at the end of the week, he added.

SPURNED LOVER ENDS LIFE; FEEDS GIRL DEATH GERM

(Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.)

VIENNA, Oct. 9.—A rejected lover is believed to have called on the resources of modern science in order to effect the fulfillment of a curse which he had pronounced on the object of his affections before taking his own life.

Julius Fiala, 32 year old employé of the Vienna Pathological institute, ended his own life by turning on a gas stove in his laboratory. He left a letter for Bertha Grubauer, girl chemist in the same laboratory, whom he informed that for her treatment of him he had imposed a terrible penalty, the effects of which she soon would notice.

The girl has been taken seriously ill of typhoid and little hope is held for her recovery. Doctors attending her are convinced Fiala, who had easy access to bacillus cultures in the laboratory, spread typhoid germs in her luncheon sandwiches before his suicide.

MURDER LINKED WITH QUIZ INTO MAIL ROBBERY

72 Slugs Cut Down Hoodlum Chief.

BULLETIN.

Dominic Marzano, 23 years old, 1062 Polk street, who has a police record, was arrested last night at 40th and Halsted streets as a suspect in the killing of Gus Winkler, north side gang chief. An order to search for Marzano was sent out after the police were informed he had been near the scene of the killing five minutes before Winkler arrived. Marzano was questioned briefly and locked up for the night.

Smiling Gus Winkler, a slippery sort of person who became titular head of the north side gangs a few months ago, but continued to practice his motto of "Take care of Winkler first," was slain yesterday afternoon.

A gang of methodical killers, suspecting, and probably with reason, that Winkler was telling agents of the government important facts about the loop mail robbery of Dec. 6, 1932, in which $250,000 of bonds were taken, fired seventy-two shotgun slugs into his body.

The slaying occurred in front of the office of County Commissioner Charles H. Weber's beer distributing company at 1414 Roscoe street.

Dies with Prayer on Lips.

Thirty minutes later Winkler died in the John B. Murphy hospital. His last words were an appeal to Providence for mercy on his soul.

Gangland knew that the north side chief had been conferring with postal inspectors and other government agents investigating the mail robbery. It knew that he had visited the office of Melvin Purvis, Chicago chief of the government bureau of investigation, as late as Saturday, and that he had been seen on the streets with investigators.

An Ally of Lebensberger.

Winkler, in recent months, had been closely allied with John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, indicted for complicity in the mail plot, and with Edgar B. Lebensberger, night club owner who was found shot to death in his home at 1258 Lake Shore drive last Friday—the same day on which the conspiracy indictment naming him, as well as McLaughlin, was returned in federal court.

It has not been definitely determined whether Lebensberger was murdered or was a suicide, although a coroner's jury declared in favor of the suicide theory.

Bond Recovery Recalled.

The past record of Winkler indicated that he was one who would turn traitor to his cause if that would benefit him.

About a year ago he made a deal with the former Secret Six, turning over to them several hundred thousand dollars' worth of bonds taken in a bank robbery at Lincoln, Neb. Thus he saved himself from prosecution, although some of his friends were sent to prison for the crime.

Evidence tending to corroborate the theory that Winkler was killed to halt his talking was obtained at the United States courthouse. Mr. Purvis admitted that Winkler had called voluntarily at his office. One of the postal inspectors, informed of the killing, declared that the case was "balled up" by the event.

Green, however, said that the death would not materially affect the case against McLaughlin, described as the "prime mover" in the plot to dispose of the stolen bonds, and the other persons who have been arrested in connection with it. There are twenty-six of these prisoners, nine in Chicago and the others in cities throughout the country.

Police at the detective bureau declared they believed Winkler furnished the government with evidence on which George [Machine Gun] Kelly was arrested in Memphis on Sept. 26 for the Urschel kidnaping in Oklahoma. They recalled also that in his last visit to the bureau Winkler had told of a premonition that death was not far away.

See Rackets Fading Out.

Other investigators saw in the robbery and its aftermath a clear sign that the rule of gangland over big business enterprises is fading out rapidly.

"In the old days," one of these said, "there was the booze racket and millions. The booze business, with prohibition about out, is gone. That's why a trimmer like Winkler could get into it. Gambling isn't too good, either. The net result is that the gangs are trying to get into anything that will show a profit.

"Good people never took much interest in stamping out the illegal liquor traffic. It didn't seem to them that it was a crime to distribute booze. But when these hoodlums turn to robbery of the banks, kidnaping, and mail holdups they find active and accurate investigation directed against them and public opinion calling for a new deal against crime."

Story of the Assassination.

The gangsters have not yet realized the change, this informant added. Their work in the killing of Winkler was as efficient and merciless as in the killings in the days of Capone and the Aiello brothers.

It was about 1:30 p. m. when Winkler, riding in a small new automobile, arrived in the vicinity of the beer distributing company owned by County Commissioner Weber, who has all the 3.2 beer concessions in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair.

The car was parked, facing west on the south side of Roscoe street. Winkler, not even troubling to lock the doors, stepped out and strolled nonchalantly across to the north sidewalk. He paid no attention to a small green paneled truck that had been parked on the north side of the street perhaps fifty feet west of the office entsance for a full hour.

The truck also faced west. It was a shiny new vehicle without markings of any kind. In the doors at the rear were two oval windows and in these windows, securely screened from sight, were men with shotguns.

Killed by Shotgun Slugs.

Winkler was standing less than five feet from the front door of the beer distributing company when there was a blast, then another, then two more from the death car. The killers had fired low. Not a single slug struck the victim's head. But from his shoulders to his knees he was literally riddled, most of the pellets striking in his back.

As he fell the truck moved away, according to witnesses, with a certain amount of deliberation, to the west. At the next crossing the driver turned south in Greenview avenue and passed from the sight of the few who had seen the killing.

The story of the green truck, told by most of the witnesses, was disputed by two schoolboys who saw the shooting. They are Paul Geirsbach, 15 years old, and his brother Willard, 12 years old. They saw the slaying from a rear porch of their home at 3358 Southport avenue.

They asserted that the men who shot Winkler were riding past in a white sedan. The police accepted the other version, however, after they found several shotgun shells at the point where the green truck was said to have been standing.

Clerk Sees Truck Vanish.

It was at the threshold of the office door that Winkler fell. Inside at the time, alone, was Edward Conrad, 5454 Berenice avenue, a stock clerk. Hearing the shots, he ran to the door and opened it. The dying Winkler lay sprawled face down on the sidewalk.

The shooting was over and Conrad stepped out, to see the truck going west. He approached Winkler and the latter murmured:

"Turn me over; I can't breathe."

Sitting in a car across the street and near the little sedan in which Winkler arrived was Mrs. Jacqueline Nies, 1545 Roscoe street. She said she had heard the shots, but believed them caused by the back firing of a motor. She did not notice Winkler until a group of schoolboys ran by her shouting there had been a killing.

Conrad said that he recognized the victim, not as Winkler, but as a customer of Commissioner Weber's company known as Michael Rand.

In the pockets of Winkler were found cards identifying him under that name and showing that in addition to his apartment at 3300 Lake Shore drive he had a residence at 2738 Pine Grove avenue, another at 2241 South Kolin avenue, and that he was a member of the Hangar club in the Southmoor hotel and of the Maywood Golf club.

The first policemen to arrive at the scene were Roy Coutre, Gus Bellack and Stephen Languedera of the Town Hall station. They took Winkler, whom Coutre had recognized, to the hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Salvador Huerta.

Only two requests were made of the doctor by Winkler. One was to turn him on his back. The other was to call a priest. Both were granted. Speedily the clothing of the wounded gangster was removed. On his underwear were pinned half a dozen medals of religious significance and one scapular.

Priest Gives Rites.

The Rev. James Fitzgerald arrived and administered the rites for the dying. Winkler repeated in gasps as he was stepping closer to the line that separates life from immortality the prayer that had stuck with him since childhood:

"Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name——"

Before the recital was ended Winkler was dead.

Questioning of Conrad and of other employés of the Weber beer depot disclosed little of value to the investigation. Miss Leonora Carpenter, the switchboard girl, was out to lunch at the time. Edward Leich, a special bookkeeper hired by the proprietor to take care of the Streets of Paris account, was in the warehouse and knew nothing of the killing until it was all over.

A search of Winkler's clothing disclosed that he had $330 in his pockets, that his belt buckle was studded with five diamonds and thirty emeralds and that his diamond studded Swiss watch was uninjured by the fire of his enemies. It disclosed, too, that one of the religious medals had come from the Church of the Little Flower in Detroit, conducted by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, the radio priest.

Find List of Phone Numbers.

Also found in Winkler's pockets were business cards, a list of telephone numbers, and a gold pencil bearing the inscription of the 225 club, the night life center at 225 East Superior street that was operated by Lebensberger before his death.

The telephone list intrigued investigators. One number, Hyde Park 0438, is that of the home of William Rothmann, chief attorney for the sanitary district. Rothmann said he did not know Winkler nor any one named Rand.

Two other numbers were Wabash 0858, traced to the Direct Sales company, 431 South Dearborn street, and Keystone 1966, listed to Rebecca Stone, 3215 Leland avenue. Like Rothmann, she said she had never heard of Winkler.

Among the business cards found was one of A. L. Marovitz, an attorney who had represented Winkler. There was also a card of Robert Marcus, a bondsman. In a penciled memorandum were the names of West & Eckert, attorneys, and David Masnik.

Suspected of Gang Massacre.

The connection of Winkler with the Chicago gangs dates back only to February, 1929, when it was suspected that he and Fred [Killer] Burke were the men who put the seven victims of the Valentine's day massacre on the spot and mowed them down with machine guns in a North Clark street garage.

Winkler was then merely a satellite of the more noted Burke and of other gang leaders. He went into a sort of semi-retirement in Cicero for several years, acquiring there a reputation as a plotter of crimes he was not courageous enough to undertake and as a man who could dispose of stolen property advantageously.

His deal with the Secret Six in the Nebraska bank bond case brought him a great deal of notoriety. It made him, in the eyes of the police, important; in the eyes of the gangster world a man who could not be trusted.

Carefully he built up a front. He purchased an interest in the automobile sales business of Edward Bergl at 5348 West Cermak road. When the police arrested him as a vagrant he pointed to his status as a legitimate business man. No man in Chicago gang history ever played both ends against the middle so adroitly.

He became north side leader by some compromise of the underling gangsters after Ted Newberry was killed. As such he was a clearing house for information. When outside gangsters came here to commit robberies he was able to furnish them equipment and shelter.

When two messengers of the Federal Reserve bank were held up near the old postoffice on Sept. 22 the robbers fled in a car that had been equipped with bullet proof glass and smoke screen apparatus through the Bergl concern. In their flight the bandits wrecked their car and then shot and killed a policeman, Miles Cunningham. They escaped in a commandeered automobile.

A Chain of Coincidences.

Winkler was questioned on Sept. 24 and smoothly informed the police that he was no longer in business with Bergl. It was but a few days afterward that Machine Gun Kelly was caught. That might have been a coincidence. It might have been a coincidence also that Winkler talked with government men a day after Lebensberger and McLaughlin had been indicted. But the gangs did not believe that and Winkler's premonition of death took form.

At the detective bureau recently he was asked by a fellow prisoner to leave him the Swiss watch in his will.

"All right," replied Winkler, "and I had better write it in pretty quick. Because I guess I won't be around here much longer."

As to his friendship, if any existed, for Commissioner Weber, there was no information last night except the denial of the commissioner that he knew the man. Charles Conrad, a brother of the Conrad who was the first to reach the dying Winkler, is a partner of Mr. Weber and is said to have been quite friendly with the gangster.

Police Records Reveal Story of Winkler's Rise in Crime

Gus Winkler's record as an underworld character shows how he started as a gun toting ruffian in St. Louis when he was still in his teens and rose to be the suave leader of the north side remnants of the old Capone syndicate. The police records list many major crimes in which he was accused of taking a leading role.

He was suspected of a dozen killings, extortions and bank robberies in which loot totaling millions of dollars was taken. With his pal, Fred [Killer] Burke, who is now serving a life term in Michigan for killing a policeman, Winkler was questioned concerning the Valentine day massacre in which it was believed he had a hand.

One of the Egan's Rats.

From 1920, when the St. Louis police first learned that the young hoodlum, then only 20 years old, was a member of the notorious "Egan's Rats" of that city, he never passed a year without being in police custody. It was reported that he had been a safeblower and a gangster before then.

He seemed to be almost continually in trouble with St. Louis authorities. He was sentenced to prison for burglary, assault with a deadly weapon, and felonious wounding during the years from 1920 to 1926. In 1923 he was arrested for petty larceny; in 1924 he was locked up as a suspected robber, and in 1925 he was fined $500 for carrying a gun.

A Suspect in Massacre.

In succeeding years he was arrested for gun toting and as a robbery suspect until he left St. Louis, after having become a pal of Burke. He came to attention in Chicago in 1929 as a suspect in the Valentine day massacre on North Clark street.

In September, 1930, six men with machine guns robbed a Lincoln, Neb., bank of $2,800,000 in securities. Winkler was seized for that crime the next August when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into another car in Michigan. After months of litigation Winkler, who had become dapper, calculating, and smooth tongued, won his freedom when he struck a bargain with the authorities, turned over $583,000 worth of negotiable securities taken in the bank robbery, and furnished proof that registered securities worth $2,217,000 had been destroyed by the robbers.

Takes Newberry's Place.

When Ted Newberry, who had been piloting the north side affairs of the Capone syndicate, was slain, Winkler took charge in his place. He not only took Newberry's place in the gang's affairs, but he and his blonde wife moved into the Newberry apartment at 3300 Lake Shore drive. It was there he was arrested two weeks ago in connection with the robbery of federal reserve bank mail in the loop and the killing of Policeman Miles Cunningham.

In recent years Winkler had striven to appear gentlemanly. He donned eyeglasses to give himself a more dignified air and to make less noticeable the glass eye which resulted from his Michigan auto accident. When in custody he was quiet and generally respectful to his captors. However, his outward demeanor did little to sway the police from their knowledge of his true character as a gangster.

Bond Plea from McLaughlin.

The December mail robbery came to the attention of the federal court yesterday. Boss McLaughlin's attorneys, appearing before Judge James H. Wilkerson, demanded that the accused man's bonds be reduced from $50,000 to $25,000. Attorney George Callaghan declared that McLaughlin is ill with diabetes and should be removed from the Du Page county jail at Wheaton, where he is being held. Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Fisher fought the reduction in bail.

Judge Wilkerson ordered that affidavits concerning the health of the 66 year old McLaughlin be produced today, indicating he will rule on the matter when this is done. A reduction of bond to $25,000 was made for Joseph Sans, secretary to Lebensberger, who was also indicted in the mail plot.

THE WIDOW'S STORY

Mrs. Georgia Winkler, blonde, plump and 35, last night told Coroner Frank J. Walsh and Capt. Daniel Gilbert, investigator for the state's attorney, that her husband, Gus Winkler, had been in hiding for several days.

She added, however, that it was not fear of gangland enemies, who put an end to his career yesterday afternoon, that caused Winkler to conceal himself.

Hiding From Government.

"Gus knew," Mrs. Winkler said, "that the government wanted to question him about a mail robbery. He told me that he wasn't afraid of that rap and could beat it easily. He just wanted to be sure he could get out on bonds and he was going to surrender immediately. The talk about his being an informer in the case isn't true. Gus was crucified for something he didn't do."

According to the widow, Winkler left home on Saturday and did not tell her where he was staying. Yesterday morning he called her at their apartment at 3300 Lake Shore drive and told her to meet him at Diversey boulevard and the drive.

"We met there," she continued. "He was in a small car I had never seen before, and he told me he was hiding so Chief of Detectives Schoemaker wouldn't arrest him. And he promised that he would be home at 8 o'clock tonight."

Their meeting took place, she said, just about an hour before Winkler was slain in front of 1414 Roscoe street.

Calls Skidmore Story Absurd.

The widow was vehement in her denials that Winkler was an informer of the federal authorities or the police. A report that he had told the government agents to interview William R. [Billy] Skidmore, former politician and known now as a "fixer" for the gambling industry, about stolen bonds, Mrs. Winkler declared was absurd.

Skidmore, found in the office of his Lawndale Scrap Iron and Metal company, 2840 South Kedzie avenue, expressed surprise about the rumor of his connection with the mail robbery.

"Government men are not looking very hard for me," he averred. "They can find me at my desk here every day from 9 to 5. This is silly. I never had any dealings at any time in stolen bonds and I want that known."

Graf Hops from Brazil to Germany in 71 Hours

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 9.—The Graf Zeppelin returned to its home port from Pernambuco, Brazil, at midnight. She had made the flight in 71 hours establishing a new record. The dirigible will immediately be overhauled and put in shape for its trip to Chicago starting next Saturday. On this flight the Zeppelin will radio daily bulletins to New York telling of its progress and life aboard for the first time on her many Atlantic crossings.

CLUB OWNER'S 1ST WIFE THINKS HE WAS SLAIN

Will Fight Lebensberger's Will, She Says in N. Y.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—The first wife of Edgar B. Lebensberger, Chicago night club operator, who was found slain a few hours before it was revealed that he had been indicted by a federal grand jury in Chicago in connection with a $250,000 mail robbery, came forward here tonight with the statement that she did not believe Lebensberger had committed suicide, but that he had been murdered.

And she announced that she had engaged a lawyer and would contest Lebensberger's will, filed in Chicago, on the ground that she was never legally divorced from him.

The woman is now a manicure at the Hotel Manhattan, in West 47th street, where she lives under the name of Mrs. Grace Berger. She said she had not lived with Lebensberger since 1922 and had not been in Chicago since 1925.

Married in Crown Point.

"I was married to Lebensberger at Crown Point, Ind., in 1914," she said. "Since he was Jewish and I a Gentile, there was family trouble from the beginning. Edgar's father was a wealthy distiller. Edgar was persuaded that if I consented to a divorce he could get a lot of money out of the old man. I was promised that I would have a big share of this money.

"I went into court in Chicago—this was in 1916—and perjured myself to get a decree. I testified that we were separated and I was not living with him. The truth was that I was still living with him and he was waiting for me downstairs when I got the divorce. He took me right on home and I continued living with him until 1932, when his habits became such that I decided I had had enough."

She said that in 1922 she came to New York on a short visit, and that while she was away her mother found Lebensberger had grown friendly with Mrs. Luella Faecher.

Doubts Story of Marriage.

"I moved out and Mrs. Faecher moved in," she continued. "I notice that Luella says they were married in 1916. This cannot be true, as I was living with Edgar in 1916 and continued with him until 1922. In any event my divorce was the result of a frame-up and fraud, and I consider myself the one and only widow of Mr. Lebensberger. I have engaged an attorney and am to consult him again tomorrow regarding contesting the will. I shall claim my widow's rights."

She said that her husband and Boss McLaughlin and others had become involved in bootleg and other operations and that with her knowledge of what was going on, she preferred not to become involved.

"I certainly do not believe that Edgar committed suicide," Mrs. Berger continued. "He was not the type. He was too brazen. I have known him to take a plane up and pilot it while he was intoxicated. He had no fear of gangsters or anything."

Mrs. Berger said she could not understand why Mrs. Luella Lebensberger had left him at home alone if he was threatening suicide.

"Luella should have stayed right with him and prevented any such action," she said.

NEGRO TAKEN FROM JAIL AND SLAIN; 4 SUSPECTS HELD

Ninety Six, S. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A coroner's jury late today ordered four men held on a charge of murdering Bennie Thompson, youthful Negro, who was taken from the jail here last night and beaten to death.

This action was taken by the jury after Burley Leppard read a statement admitting that he and three white men took the youth from his cell and whipped him with "automobile tire tubes."

The other men implicated by Leppard were J. F. Morris, "Lesty" Mayes and "Toody" Webb. Leppard, a textile worker, and Mayes were in jail tonight, but officers were still searching for the other two men.

Chief Rush made a statement tonight denying the textile worker's charge that he had aided them in taking the Negro from his cell:

"I have been an officer a long time and I will never be guilty of such a dirty trick like that," he said. "I let the four boys talk to the Negro last night after he had been locked up and Leppard asked me to let him have the Negro, but I refused to do it and I said nothing about leaving the jail unlocked."

MOTHER TELLS WHY SHE LEFT HER 9 DAY TWINS

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The discovery today of two nine day old girls abandoned, one in a church and one in a subway station, led to the discovery of their 30 year old mother. She had written to her husband from a hospital that the two died at birth, because she didn't feel she and he had the means to support them.

Both children had been christened. The mother is Mrs. Marie Del Rosso. She was found by a search of the birth records of all twins born between one and two weeks ago. She admitted leaving Marie in the subway, the other, Roberta, in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. Her husband is a bellboy in the Hotel Lincoln. He makes $2 a day or less. The twins were sent to a foundling home.

Rob Hospital; Threaten Employes and Visitors

Five women employés and several visitors waiting to see patients, were threatened by six robbers who invaded the office of the Lutheran Memorial hospital, 1131 North Leavitt street, last night and took more than $400 from the safe. The robbers drove away in a small sedan.

4 Men, Woman Held for Hijacking; $20,000 Theft

Belleville, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Four men and a woman were under arrest today in connection with the "hi-jacking" of a truck near Washington Park, an East St. Louis suburb, and theft of $20,000 worth of merchandise, of which $15,000 worth was recovered in a dance hall.

U. S. HIGH COURT WON'T LET STATE TRY DRY KILLER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9. — (AP) — Colorado's fight to try Henry Dierks, former prohibition agent in a state court on a charge of slaying Melford Smith in Englewood, Colorado, in November, 1931, was lost today before the United States Supreme court

The high court denied the state permission to start proceedings seeking to compel Federal Judge F. Foster Symes to turn over Dierks for trial in the state courts.

The motion seeking permission to file an action against Symes was presented a week ago by Paul P. Prosser, Colorado attorney general.

Smith was injured while Dierks was attempting an arrest in Englewood and died shortly afterward. The state charged Smith's death was caused by blows inflicted by Dierks in making the arrest.

An order by Symes removed the case from the state to the federal court. He pointed to Dierk's claim that he was acting as a federal agent in making the arrest, stating the officer, therefore, was entitled to a federal court trial.

Colorado contended throughout the long legal procedure that the federal court was without jurisdiction.

PEACE IN SOFT COAL FIELDS IS BELIEVED NEAR

Steel Operator Will Meet Union Leader Today.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Possibility of a quick peace in the strike of 75,000 western Pennsylvania miners appeared tonight with announcement of Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, that Thomas Moses, president of the H. C. Frick Coke company telegraphed he is ready for a conference with union officials.

Murray said he received the telegram from New York, where Moses went today to confer with officials of his concern's parent organization, the United States Steel corporation.

Refuse to Return to Pits.

The labor leader said he interpreted the message to mean that Moses is ready to deal with the United Mine Workers of America as the collective bargaining agency of Frick workers.

More than half of western Pennsylvania's 75,000 mine workers refused to return to the pits today, with a battle cry of "not an ounce of coal until Frick signs the union."

Murray and P. T. Fagan, district president of the U. M. W. A., both said Frick recognition means a quick settlement of the strike and return of all workers.

The conference will be held in Pittsburgh tomorrow, Murray said.

Strikers Halt Picketing.

Steubenville, O., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Union pickets at the Weirton, W. Va., works of the Weirton Steel company, were called off their lines tonight by William Long, chairman of the Weir-Cove chapter of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, easing a tense situation. Long announced there would be no picketing, no parades and no demonstrations.

Fifty West Virginia state troopers had entered the mill town tonight, one of the laregst unincorporated cities in the nation, and patroling streets in light cruisers had forced all pickets back on sidewalks opposite the mile and a half long mill property.

Long, in a statement issued here, said "state police have established almost martial law at Weirton.

Union Will W hdraw.

"Labor thought it always had a right to picket and parade but it seems not. In view of the situation at Weirton, the union will withdraw. We do not want to be held responsible if anything occurs there."

He commented that Steubenville, O., men who work in the Weirton mill may return to work tomorrow, but asserted no Weirton residents would go back in the mill.

Long then promised he will head a group of labor officials and workers which will go to Washington Wednesday, to appear before the NRA compliance board there and present their grievances.

At Steubenville tonight, workers of the Steubenville plant of the same company voted 428 to 12 to return to their jobs tomorrow. The vote was announced as "a majority vote, binding all of us."

Strike Flares Into Violence.

Twice last week, their sympathy strike with Weirton's 11,000 workers, had flared into violence.

The vote to end the Steubenville strike was taken at a meeting in the county courthouse here. Five tellers checked the ballots and when the result was announced the workers cheered.

The men will go back tomorrow morning.

Texas 12 Year Old Shoots Boy Rival for Girl's Favor

ONE ACTRESS TO SUE HUSBAND; ANOTHER TO WED CHICAGOAN

LOUISE BROOKS.

Agnes Franey, former Follies beauty, who is to sue her husband, Logan Metcalf, a broker, for separate maintenance in Los Angeles. She left yesterday for New York to resume her stage career.

City Hall Ceremony

Deering Davis, member of a family well known in Chicago society, and Louise Brooks, film actress, will be married here today at the city hall. Miss Brooks came to Chicago from New York for the ceremony, which will probably be performed by a Municipal court judge.

Though rumors of the impending marriage were heard nearly two months ago, the decision to hold the wedding today was apparently a sudden one, since plans had not been fully completed last night. Mr. Davis said he was not certain who would perform the ceremony.

Miss Brooks was formerly the wife of Eddie Sutherland, film director. Mr. Davis is the son of the late Dr. Nathan S. Davis, founder of the Chicago Medical society. Mr. Davis was an army aviator during the war and was stationed in Italy. He is a polo enthusiast.

He was divorced three years ago by Peggy McNeal, one of America's best known horsewomen and a leader in Philadelphia society.

Not Compatible

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Marital pathways of Agnes Franey, former Follies beauty, and her broker husband, Logan Metcalf, former husband of Madge Bellamy, actress, have failed to run parallel, Miss Franey said today in announcing she intended to institute a separate maintenance action.

Her announcement came a few minutes before she left for New York to resume her interrupted musical comedy career. She said she had instructed her attorney, Gordon Levoy, to file the action.

"I lived with Metcale only eight months after our marriage in May, 1929," the former Ziegfeld Follies girl said. "It has become definite that we are incompatible. So I believe the separation should be made legal."

METEOR SHOWER CAUSES A PANIC; THOUSANDS PRAY

LISBON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Panic and terror seized thousands in Oporto and many Portuguese villages tonight as a result of a prolonged meteoric display.

It was the grandest shower in many years, but the superstitious, believing the stars were falling to the earth, fled into the streets screaming and invoking the mercy of heaven. Priests had the church bells tolled and organized penitential processions, in which hundreds joined, carrying lighted candles, and singing hymns.

(Dispatches from Berlin said 200 meteoric showers were seen there in 15 minutes. Astronomers described the chief center of radiation as the constellations Cygnus and Lyra. They said they believed the showers to represent disintegrated fragments of a comet drawn from its track by the earth's attraction and heated to visibility by friction with the atmosphere.)

FORBID MARCH ON SUPREME COURT; ONE PARADE IS ON

Negro Protest Halted; Textile Men in Line.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Capital police today prevented a threatened demonstration at the Supreme court by approximately fifty men and women, who arrived in trucks from Baltimore to protest the court's action in the case of a Negro convicted of murder on the eastern shore of Maryland.

At the same time a larger and more vehement demonstration by a group of disgruntled textile workers, led by Ann Burlak, communist agitator, was permitted to proceed. The textile workers paraded unmolested through downtown to the commerce department, where they attended the NRA hearing on a code for the textile industry.

Met By Police.

The demonstration at the Supreme court, it was said, was sponsored by the international labor defense. Two truck loads of "marchers" arrived on the capitol plaza and dismounted, waving banners and signs protesting the court's refusal to review the case of Euel Lee, Negro condemned to death for the murdar of a white farmer, near Ocean City, Md.

An escort of motorcycle police met the trucks on the outskirts of the capital. At the capitol, the demonstrators left the trucks and attempted to parade, but police forced them back into the vehicles. They left without a disturbance.

Textile Workers Get By.

The textile workers arrived in the city yesterday and spent the night, at the expense of a New Jersey congressman, in a tourist camp on government property in East Potomac park. This morning they staged a noisy parade with highly colored placards, singing the "Internationale" and yelling lustily at federal clerks in windows of government buildings.

At the commerce department, they marched in a body into the auditorium, where Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and Deputy Administrator A. D. Whiteside were opening formal hearing on the textile code. They heard Gen. Johnson tell the representatives of the textile industry that the NRA was attempting to "find some substitute for violence and trouble" in adjusting the relations of owner and employé in the industry.

Miss Burlak was a leader of the "hunger march" which descended on the capital last winter and was bottled up by police in an isolated section of the city.

WANTED BY NRA —THE FAIR PRICE FOR A HAIRCUT

New York, Oct. 9. — [Special.] — Swamped with barbers' codes, the recovery administratio.. in Washington has sent out an SOS which was picked up here today by W. Averell Harriman, state NRA chairman.

The distress call, issued as "release Number 1,052," under date of Oct. 5, reads, in part:

"Wanted by the NRA—the fair price for a haircut.

"This sounds like a gag, but it isn't. Over 200 barbers' codes have been received by Deputy Administrator John Power and they represent but a fraction of the country's 250,000 barber shops."

The release goes on to show that barbers' codes from different parts of the country represent all kinds of prices for haircuts and shaves.

The average for the smaller towns is 35 cents for a haircut and 15 cents for a shave. In the larger cities barbers' codes boost the average price of a haircut to 50 cents and of a shave to 25 cents.

FLORIDA VOTES WET? DRY? TODAY; BALLOT TANGLED

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The campaign to make Florida the 33d state to endorse repeal of the 18th amendment was brought to a climax here tonight. Postmaster General James A. Farley asked that all parties join to give an overwhelming victory at the polls tomorrow. Farley, Gov. Dave Sholtz, and others, spoke at a massmeeting.

There are 176 names on the ballot. Of these, the repeal forces have qualified 67 candidates, the number required to be elected to compose the repeal convention in November. Dry pledged candidates number only eight. They are in a separate column; in a third unpledged group there are 101 names, of which 59 were qualified by the drys and 41 by the wets. Those names are arranged alphabetically and without designation as to the candidates' views on the repeal question.

W. K. Whitfield, dry leader, feared numerous prohibitionists may not be able to remember the names of the dry unpledged candidates. All the wet voter has to do is to check each of the 67 candidates in the pledged repeal section. Voters will have 10 hours and three minutes in which to do their balloting tomorrow.

ESCORT BEATEN, WOMAN SHOOTS TWO ASSAILANTS

Covington, Ky., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A woman today engaged in a pistol fight with two men, wounded both and foiled a holdup after her male companion had been slugged.

Charges of highway robbery were filed against W. L. Ralls, 23, of Covington, and James Ralls, 26, of Gary, Ind., both of whom were shot in the side. Their condition was not serious.

Mrs. Mary Simon, 36, said she was seated in an automobile with Daniel Tranter, 39, about 1:30 a. m., when the men approached. Tranter was hit over the head when he failed to raise his hands quickly enough. Mrs. Simon grabbed a pistol from a car pocket and opened fire, and the men returned the shots, she said.

The pair escaped but were captured several hours later after they went to a physician's home for treatment of their wounds.

Will Sue in Mexico; Story Is Denied.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The romance of Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, was or was not headed for a Mexican divorce court today. Luis A. Trias, divorce lawyer, said "yes." Miss Pickford's studio officials said "no."

Trias announced he was acting for Miss Pickford in the courts of Juarez. Forthwith there came from Hollywood officials of the Mary Pickford company a denial that there had been any change in the marital status of Miss Pickford and her husband, and declaring she has no immediate plans for divorce.

It was specifically denied she intended to file suit in Juarez. Trias, in announcing suit would be filed "in about two weeks" said a property settlement was being arranged in Los Angeles between the Fairbanks, among the richest residents of the motion picture colony. He said a Pacific coast lawyer, Wallace W. Davis, is handling details of the settlement.

Davis, in Los Angeles, denied the statement.

Trias said he believed Fairbanks, who is in London, planned to remarry —the prospective third Mrs. Fairbanks being an English actress. Miss Pickford was the second wife of the portrayer of red blooded heroes.

DOCTOR APPLIES STETHOSCOPE TO NEW DEAL IN U. S.

Warns Against Stifling Individualism.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Dr. J. Bentley Squier of New York, retiring president of the American College of Surgeons, applied a stethoscope to the New Deal last night. He gave the new dealers a diagnostic warning against stifling individualism too much in their efforts for a planned economy.

He spoke at the presidential meeting in the Stevens hotel at which his successor, Dr. William D. Haggard of Nashville, was inaugurated.

"Selfishness is the mainspring of the individualistic efforts which have built up our present capitalistic civilization, for better or for worse," Dr. Squier said. Even if the eugenists were given full sway, he doubts that it would be possible to breed that trait out of the human race.

Era of Social Stagnation.

Yet the proponents of a collectivist state and civilization would bind down that mainspring. A millennium achieved by such methods, Dr. Squier concludes, would be one of "social stagnation from inertia."

In place of the purely collectivist program Dr. Squier offered economists and capitalists a substitute—the oath of Hippocrates pledging unselfish service to humanity, which has governed his profession for twenty-three centuries.

The Hippocratian oath, he said, has saved the medical profession from the moral débacles suffered by the public utilities, banking and industry in the last few years.

"If we believe that many of our present day economic difficulties are, among other causes, the result of competitive overproduction," said Dr. Squier, "need we as a profession fear that the supply of health we are able to produce will ever overtop the demand? At the moment, practically the only tangible asset that any one has is health, if he possesses that, and there will always be a strong market for such wares.

Brings Relief to Masses.

"The economic system which the United States has followed is that of the capitalistic, competitive or economic type. While it has not worked perfectly, it has brought more relief to the masses than any other system which has been tried elsewhere in the world. But unstable conditions in industry, commerce and so forth are tending to replace competitive effort by collective effort.

"While, on the one hand, the various phases of special knowledge and capital outlay in large undertakings of any kind almost necessitate collective effort for true efficiency, on the other it is the indisputable fact that real success in collective effort is usually due to a single individual of the groups. Senescence, death or replacement of this individual results in an impaired efficiency of the collective group."

Medicine, and more largely surgery, have seen the growth of this team work, or collectivism, within the profession, Dr. Squier pointed out. He warned the medical profession against carrying this specialized efficiency, which is the objective of collectivized effort, too far.

Quotes Stuart Chase.

Quoting Stuart Chase, he warned his colleagues: "The price of efficiency of specialization is economic insecurity." But more dangerous to his profession than the collectivism within it, Dr. Squier believes, is the collectivism imposed from without, in the form of state medicine.

"To be merely a cog in the wheel of a great machine," he said, "can never be the ambition of those who have raised medicine to its present high position or of those who have carried it onward. Nevertheless, there are today groups desiring to make of medicine a machine powered by collectivism and under bureaucratic control. Any system which tends to lessen individual initiative cannot be the one which in the end will most stimulate scientific progress.

"In a world continually experiencing evolutionary and revolutionary changes survival of the fittest is dependent upon competition, most often inspired by selfishness. The great mainspring behind human effort is selfishness.

"It is of biological significance and I question whether, if eons were spent in scientific mating of the human race in an attempt to breed out this quality, a superman could be developed devoid of the primal instinct of self-preservation, which is selfishness personified."

Russia Is Trying It.

Russia is trying it in its collectivistic state. Dr. Squier said, but he pointed out that "whenever serious doubts of the final outcome have arisen in the minds of the more discontented, the Russian leaders have allowed a favored few to be stimulated by a mild dose of individualistic competition."

Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher, chairman of the committee on arrangements of its present clinical congress in Chicago, welcomed the members of the college at its presidential meeting. Dr. Haggard, in his inaugural address, took as his subject "Surgery, the Queen of Arts," and Dr. Loyal Davis of Chicago presented the annual John B. Murphy oration in surgery on the subject "The Story of a Master Surgeon."

"Surgery is comparable to the fine arts because of its beauty, its benignity and its sheer artistry," said Dr. Haggard.

"The formal invasion of the brain, the citadel of the soul, is at once the most audacious, highly technical, and artistic creation that surgeons have evolved. It requires the highest endowment. The demand is imperative but most forbidding in its inherent danger. In the invasion of the brain, it is as though the soul were poised ready for flight, but hoping for continued residence, awaits the verdict measured by the skillful feat of the operator.

"The heart is only two inches from the surface, yet it took two thousand years for the scalpel of the surgeon to travel that distance.

"Transfusion, so long desired, is the last rite in the ritual of salvation. The exsanguinated victim of injury or disease, who is sicklied over with the wanness and pallor of death, by the now simple art of transfusion is brought back to the pinkness of returning life and soon to the smiling realization of his blessed reprieve. It is like the magic of the gods."

Elimination of Cancer.

At least one form of cancer, that of the cervix, to which child bearing women are particularly subject, can be entirely eliminated by proper medical supervision, it was stated yesterday by Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood of Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore. Dr. Bloodgood delivered one of the public lectures at the World's Fair which have been arranged in connection with the surgeons' congress.

"If every mother will go to her physician for examination six months after the birth of her child, and return to him for a second examination in another six months and then continuously at intervals thereafter, cancer of the cervix, the cause of thousands of deaths each year in the United States, can be eliminated completely," said Dr. Bloodgood.

Continuous periodic examinations by the family physician and dentist are the best guard against cancer in all its forms today, Dr. Bloodgood added. Cancer of the skin and mouth are another form of the ailment which can largely be prevented by such means, he said.

Increased use of general hospital for the treatment of mental ailments in their earlier stages was advocated by Dr. Walter L. Bierring of Des Moines, president elect of the American Medical association, who spoke at the hospital conference of the college.

"The constant increase of mental diseases is one of the major economic and social questions of the day," said Dr. Bierring. "We gain some idea of the magnitude of this problem when it is stated that the number of new commitments to institutions for mental diseases has almost paralleled the increase in matriculation in the colleges of the country.

Early Diagnosis Important.

"Most mental patients have a long history with symptoms appearing years before the real condition is manifest. The hope of dealing with the problem lies in early diagnosis and proper treatment.

"While custodial institutions are doing what they can in the program of prevention, a much more important contribution can be made through general hospital and clinic facilities in the community itself. Patients with early nervous symptoms are prepared to go to a general hospital for study at a stage when help can be promised, whereas they are very unwilling to enter custodial institutions for early treatment."

At the hospital standardization conference Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the college, announced the list of hospitals in the United States and Canada which during the present year meet the requirements set up by the college as to equipment, records, and practices.

In Chicago the only additions to the list were the Woodlawn hospital and the United States Marine hospital, a government institution.

SCIENCE FINDS NEW HOPE FOR DRUG ADDICTS

Cure Without Its Tortures Now Possible.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Science has found a solution to the problem of the drug addict who attempts to free himself of slavery to narcotics. Speakers at the congress anesthetists at the Congress hotel yesterday related their success in relieving the drug addict of the tortures of fever, nausea, neuralgia and other afflictions by means of alcohol injections which deaden the nerves.

Most of the cases handled with success and without suffering on the part of the subject were persons who had contracted the drug habit as the result of intense pain during sickness or injury, Dr. M. B. Greene of New York explained. It is a different matter, he said, when the patient uses narcotics because he wants to and is not interested in breaking the habit.

Dr. Perry M. Lichtenstein, criminologist and anesthetist for the district attorney of New York, participated in the demonstration and illustrated lecture, together with Dr. Herbert Pierson of New York.

Deadens Nerve Centers.

The method of alcohol injections is used to relieve continuous pain following industrial injuries also. The alcohol injections serve to deaden the affected nerve centers. Alcohol is the one agent known that will paralyze sensation without affecting the muscles. While the pain is thus relieved, other treatments remove the cause and the patient eventually is able to resume his work.

Dr. W. Stanley Sykes of Leeds, England, told of a new method of gauging a patient's ability to withstand an operation. It is almost as accurate as the computations of an engineer as to what a certain piece of machinery will produce and is known as the "energy index test," Dr. Sykes explained.

"The systolic and diastolic blood pressures are added together and multiplied by the pulse rate," Dr. Sykes said. "A normal person has an energy index of 14,400 millimeters of mercury per minute, or the ability to lift that much mercury by the force of the heart exertion. If the figure runs to 45,000 or 50,000, as is possible, it demonstrates to the physician that the heart has enlarged considerably to carry this load and that an operation would be risky.

Conversely, if the figure falls below normal, it indicates that the heart muscles are giving out, and the lower the reading the greater the risk in operating."

Appears as Patient and Doctor.

At the Palmer house, where the sixteenth annual meeting of the American Dietetic association is in session, Dr. Harriet Edgeworth of the University of Chicago appeared as both patient and doctor in a discussion of myasthenia gravis, a malady characterized by severe muscle weakness. It is detected by such symptoms as drooping eyelids, sagging jaws, and speech difficulties, and is now practically conquered, according to Dr. Walter E. Boothby of the Mayo clinic.

Dr. Edgeworth's experiments in her own case, both as dietitian and physician, have contributed materially to the present understanding of and treatment for the illness, Dr. Boothby said. A diet of orange juice, milk, yeast, cod liver oil and vegetables is used to combat the effects.

During the convention the rôle of the dietitian in an economic crisis will be stressed, according to Dr. Kate Daum, president of the association, who lately returned from Washington, D. C., where she attended a child health recovery program of the United States department of labor.

New President Takes Office.

Mrs. Quindara Oliver Dodge of Boston assumed the presidency of the association at yesterday's session. Miss Laura Comstock, nutrition adviser of the Eastman Kodak company of Rochester, N. Y., was named president elect to succeed her.

Miss Jean Stewart, clinical dietitian at Leland Stanford university hospital, was named first vice president elect; Miss Ruth Atwater, director of home economics of the National Canners' association at Washington, second vice president elect; Mrs. Beulah Becker Marble of Brookline, Mass., secretary, and Miss Ella Eack, dietitian at Albert Merritt Billings hospital, treasurer.

DR. JAMES B. CONANT INAUGURATED AS 23D HARVARD PRESIDENT

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Dr. James Bryant Conant, internationally known chemist, today was inaugurated as the 23d president of Harvard university at a simple ceremony.

Only a picked audience of 150 persons attended the shortest and most unpretentious induction of a Harvard chief executive since the early days of the university. It was in marked contrast to the pomp and pageantry which attended the induction of Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, nearly a quarter of a century ago, when more than 13,000, including dignitaries from all parts of the world, attended.

The new 40 year old president was closeted with the Harvard corporation and the board of overseers earlier in the day and the ceremony, lasting hardly more than a quarter of an hour, followed.

The exercises were patterned closely after the early inaugurals of America's oldest university. President Conant received the traditional insignia—the college charter, seal, book and keys, which have been handed down to the college heads since colonial times and acknowledged them briefly.

SURGEONS' CHIEF SPEAKS DESPITE AUTO INJURIES

Although he received severe cuts about the head in an automobile accident in Springfield, Tenn., last Saturday, Dr. William D. Haggard, 61 year old president elect of the American College of Surgeons and professor of clinical surgery at Vanderbilt university, delivered his inaugural address last night before the opening session of the college.

Dr. Haggard and his daughter, Jean, 21 years old, were driving to Chicago Saturday night when their automobile skidded on a stretch of wet pavement and overturned, injuring Miss Haggard and cutting Dr. Haggard on the head. Twelve stitches were taken in Dr. Haggard's head wound at a Nashville hospital and he came on by train to Chicago, arriving yesterday morning.

Try Your Dentist's Way of tooth cleaning— USE POWDER

100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of toothpaste

No Grit—No Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to a less scientific way of tooth cleansing. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

COLDS

Go Thru 3 Stages

—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. 2,000 CITIZENS PRAISE RULE OF MAYOR KELLY

Sen. Murphy Pays Tribute at F. D. R. Club Dinner.

Mayor Kelly's civic accomplishments were lauded last night by the Franklin D. Roosevelt club of Chicago, an organization of the President's admirers. A banquet at the Stevens hotel was attended by more than 2,000 leaders in the business world, public officials and other citizens.

Particular emphasis was laid by the speakers upon the success of the crime war. A high tribute to the mayor was paid by United States Senator Louis Murphy of Iowa, a member of the Copeland senate committee who was detailed to investigate rackets in Chicago.

Breaking Gangland's Grip.

"I desire to bear testimony to the valiant efforts of Mayor Kelly," said Senator Murphy. "The conviction born in me after my months of investigation is that your mayor is earnestly striving with all the resources at his command to break gangland's hold upon Chicago. Police activity which he initiated against the criminal element admits no reasonable doubt of the sincerity and integrity of his purpose."

Mayor Kelly has served with "exceptional distinction," the senator added.

Such eulogy was the tenor of the speeches. The other speakers were County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, State's Attorney Courtney and Clerk Frank V. Zintak of the Superior court. Robert W. McKinlay, president of the club, presided.

Mayor Kelly Replies.

In response to the tributes Mr. Kelly gave a brief account of his stewardship. After thanking the municipal employés, the police and other workers who have aided him, he launched into a spirited defense of the school economy program, emphasizing the depleted treasury facing the new board of education and the necessity for strict economy.

"I suppose the board stepped on somebody's toes," the mayor said, "but the members did the best they could, regardless. Now let's see what has been accomplished. More than 42,000 high school students have been taken from portable buildings and put into warm buildings where they can get a full day's schooling; 363 rattle trap portable buildings have been dispensed with and 525 class rooms have been utilized as study rooms, at a saving of more than $27,000,000 to the public which would otherwise have been put to the cost of a huge building program.

Regrets Closing of Crane.

He regrets the necessity of closing Crane college, the mayor said, but explained that it was costing $600,000 a year—"which we did not have"—and was caring for only about 3,500 pupils. He hopes to see the day when it can be revived and when similar colleges can be established in other parts of Chicago, the mayor declared.

Turning to the crime war, Mr. Kelly described Chicago as "a safe city," and thanked State's Attorney Courtney for his coöperation in the hoodlum drive. "And it's not a flash in the pan drive," the mayor added. "It will continue while Courtney and I are in office."

Mr. Sweitzer substituted on the program for United States Senator William H. Dieterich of Beardstown, who wired his regrets and congratulations to the mayor. Sweitzer won applause by defining the NRA as "Nominate Roosevelt Again." Mr. Zintak spoke of the whole hearted support his nationality group, the Polish-Americans, is giving the mayor.

Push War Without U. S.

State's Attorney Coutrney told Senator Murphy that the mayor and he "did not wait for the senate committee but went after the racketeers and gangsters ourselves. We believe that we are waging the outstanding war upon crime in the country," he said.

At the speakers' table were most of the officialdom of Chicago and a representation of business leaders.

Among them were D. F. Kelly, Melvin A. Traylor, Lieutenant Governor Donovan, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, Edward N. Hurley, Bruce A. Campbell of Bellville, Former Governor Edward F. Dunne, Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district; Emmett Whealen, president of the county board; County Recorder Clayton F. Smith, Postmaster Ernest Kruetgen; P. A. Nash, chairman of the Democratic county committee, Charles J. Vopicka, Al Horan, bailiff of the Municipal court, and Judges John P. McGoorty, Denis Sullivan, Philip L. Sullivan, and John J. Sullivan.

Horner Wires Regrets.

Gov. Horner wired that urgent business in Springfield prevented his attendance and congratulated the mayor on "the honors which you thoroughly deserve."

United States Postmaster General Farley, Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago & North Western railway; James Gorman, president of the Rock Island railroad; Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Supreme Court Clerk Adam F. Block were also unable to attend but sent messages lauding the mayor.

COUNCIL BEATS EVANSTON FOES OF WATER TANK

Residents of the 6th ward, Evanston, last a round last night in their fight against the construction of an elevated water tank in their district when the Evanston city council, with the vote of Mayor Charles H. Bartlett, approved the project.

The tank and a reservoir are to be built through the aid of a $250,000 federal "easy money" allotment. The tank is to hold 1,000,000 gallons of water and the reservoir 5,000,000. The tank is to serve northwest Evanston and the reservoir the eastern and central sections.

When the improvements were first announced residents of the 6th ward objected, declaring the water tank would injure property values. The city council overruled these objections by a vote of 9 to 8, the deciding ballot being cast by the mayor. The council made a concession by recommending that the tank be built on the edge of the city limits. The fight against the tank will be continued.

JAPAN IS ANGRY WITH MOSCOW; MAY BREAK TIES

Calls Railway Plot Story a "Lie."

TOKIO, Oct. 10.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—A foreign office spokesman indicated today that diplomatic relations between Japan and the soviet government might become strained as a result of the distribution in Moscow of documents which Japan brands as "utter fabrications." The documents were purported to be official Japanese communications concerning a plan to seize the Russian owned Chinese eastern railway in Manchuria.

The spokesman said: "Whether the diplomatic relations between Japan and the soviet will continue depends upon the soviet's response to the Demarche which Japan undoubtedly will make shortly in this matter."

He said Foreign Minister Hirota is awaiting reports from Ambassador Ota in Moscow before deciding on a definite line of action. The spokesman declined to amplify beyond indicating that a protest and warning was most likely.

Retraction Is Demanded.

A spokesman in the war office, where the publication by the Soviet News agency of the alleged documents aroused great interest and indignation, said:

"Despite Japan's efforts to settle the Chinese Eastern railway problem peacefully, Russia is acting in bad faith. We must demand amends, a retraction, and guarantees of future good faith, otherwise stronger measures may be necessary."

Such measures, the spokesman amplified, would be twofold: First, discontinuance of the Russo-Manchukuo negotiations for the sale of the Chinese Eastern railway, which are at present deadlocked in Tokio, and, second, the remote possibility of a rupture in diplomatic relations, which the spokesman indicated he did not believe would be necessary.

May Expel Correspondent.

Japanese officials declared the Soviet News agency's publication of the Chinese Eastern railway reports were considered "an unfriendly act," and that guarantees against a repetition of such an act would be demanded, failing which the expulsion of the Tass correspondent in Japan probably would be considered.

Officials considered that the action of the Tass correspondent in circulating the alleged documents to Tokio vernacular newspapers after Rengo [Japanese News agency] had declined to publish them required some kind of punishment.

Only one Japanese language newspaper published the Tass story, although several printed brief digests of the alleged documents.

SPANISH CORTES DEAD; ELECTION BATTLE OPENS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 9.—President Zamora today signed the death warrant of the constituent parliament, which voted 462 laws in its two years and a month of existence.

In that time it turned Spain from a monarchy without a king into a republic which appears to be more or less acceptable to a majority of Spaniards, but on which they will pass definite judgment at general elections on Nov. 19. The first ordinary parliament of the second republic will meet on Dec. 8.

Zamora justified the dissolution of the cortes which elected him to office by alleging that it is now out of touch with public opinion.

Most of the 470 deputies traveling back to the provinces on free railroad passes, which expire at midnight tonight, to begin an electoral campaign which is likely to be as bitter as it is brief. It is complicated by the presence of 6,700,000 women voters who will make their debut in Spanish politics on Nov. 19.

OFFICIALS LEAVE TO PUSH RELIEF BILLS AT CAPITAL

Kelly Makes Appeal for State Program.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Mayor Kelly, Chairman Robert J. Dunham of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and others urging enactment of the $30,000,000 winter relief program left for Springfield last night prepared to plead vigorously for the adoption of the pending bond issue bills by the state senate when it reconvenes today.

"We must have the money," said Mayor Kelly, "and by that I mean not Chicago alone, but the entire state. There are only a few counties in the state which have not asked for aid already, and it would not be surprising if every one of the 102 counties requests help from the state commission before the winter is half over."

Funds to Be Repaid.

Both the mayor and Chairman Dunham emphasized that neither Cook county nor any other county is asking the legislature to give something for nothing, that each county allotted funds will repay the full amount by the diversion of that part of the 3 cent gasoline tax due to it and the cities within its borders.

The second effort to pass the bond bill and the companion measures setting up the machinery required to make money available until the issuance of the bonds is authorized by referendum next year—the approval of the voters of the state being declared certain—is to be made this afternoon.

On the occasion of the first effort in the senate last Thursday there were only 40 members present and, as a two-thirds vote, thirty-four, was required it was thought inadvisable to call up these bills. There is a minority downstate opposition which, proponents of the plan charge, is deaf to logic as well as appeals to humanity.

Calls Senatorial Caucus.

It is hoped there will be better attendance today. Mayor Kelly was accompanied to the capital by P. A. Nash, Democratic state chairman and national committeeman, who earlier had sent out telegrams for a caucus of Democratic senators to be held at Springfield this morning.

This step, it is believed, will insure the presence of nearly all if not all the Democratic senators; and it is understood that Gov. Horner, pointing out that the relief program is entirely nonpartisan, has appealed to Republicans as well as Democrats to be on hand promptly.

If the senate should adopt the relief bills today it is possible that they might get through the lower house—the second step required for enactment—before the end of this week. If the senate acts favorably and the house is in session the bills can be sent across the hall and read immediately for the first time. Then if two-thirds of the representatives are on hand and ready to vote in the affirmative the measures could be passed as early as Thursday.

There is some doubt as to whether this speed can be attained, and a third week of work for the special session is contemplated, not only because of the possible delay of these bills but also because of the NRA enabling measures that are pending.

Senator Harold G. Ward, chairman, has announced that public hearings will be held by the special commission on liquor control legislation in the senate chamber this evening and tomorrow evening.

Hold Up Action for Report.

The executive committee of the Chicago Recovery Administration, created by Mayor Kelly to reduce operating expenses of the major local governments, deferred action yesterday on the report of the subcommittee on relief until tomorrow.

The subcommittee, headed by Edward L. Ryerson, announced that the members believed that the use of the sales tax for relief should be continued after Jan. 1, 1934. The present legislation provides that the sales tax shall be used for relief only until the first of the year.

In case it is impossible to obtain legislation to provide for continuing the use of the sales tax, the subcommittee report said, the members favor the program now before the legislature. This provides for the levy of a $38,000,000 state wide tax, the sale of $30,000,000 worth of tax warrants against the levy, and the submission of a $30,000,000 bond issue to the public in 1934 to retire the warrants.

The subcommittee report opposed the adoption of the Lantz bills which propose to put the relief burden on local governments. These bills, the report said, would add 29 per cent to the tax rate in Chicago and would fail to produce relief money in time to do any good.

CUBAN MINISTER PREDICTS EARLY U. S. RECOGNITION

Returns to Havana from Mission in Washington.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 9.—Predictions that the United States will recognize the Grau San Martin government in the near future were brought to the palace late today by Dr. Carlos J. Finlay Jr., secretary of sanitation.

Dr. Finlay returned today from New York and Washington, where he went on a special mission for President Grau. Finlay said that although his primary object was health and medical matters, he had conferred with the state department at Washington on recognition of the present Cuban government, which has now been in power longer than the preceding government of President de Cespedes. Dr. Finlay said:

"Although I am not in charge of negotiations now going on in Washington to obtain the recognition of the United States, I am certain that it will not be long before the United States grants Cuba not only official recognition, but economic assistance."

Financial Matters Pressing.

Recognition is regarded as the most pressing problem of the Grau government.

Financial matters appear to be getting pressing, although the treasury is said to be in better shape than was surmised a few weeks ago.

A report in circulation that an American loan was in sight without recognition was denied by Col. Manuel Despaigne, secretary of the treasury.

"Financial assistance from the United States without previous recognition of the Cuban government is utterly impossible," said Despaigne, who is rated the strongest member of the Grau cabinet. He is a hard boiled financier who was in Gen. Enoch Crowder's cabinet of "honest men" a decade or so ago.

Rumor Change in President.

The conferences which have been going on with a view to a coalition gave rise to several reports this morning. One was that Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the army and strong man of Cuba, would push President Grau out.

"It's all false. It's the usual revolutionary pipe dream," was Batista's comment on the report.

United States Ambassador Sumner Welles conferred with Batista at Camp Columbia today. One of the subjects supposed to have been discussed was the necessity for adequate protection for American properties and lives in Cuba, especially at sugar mills.

Last night and today 95 officers of those captured last week in the battle of the National hotel were removed from Principe hill and Cabanas fortresses to the Isle of Pines penitentiary on the ground that living conditions are better there.

Public schools throughout Cuba were reopened today. The University of Havana will be reopened on Nov. 1, Dr. Costales Latatu, secretary of public instruction, said.

Plunges 9 Floors to His Death from Roof of Hotel

Earl Kenneth Porter, 44 years old, plunged to his death yesterday from the roof of the nine story Saranac apartment hotel, 5541 Everett avenue, where he lived. His body landed in a courtyard of the hotel. Porter for 17 years had been a yardmaster of the Pennsylvania railroad. His widow, Mrs. Mary Porter, said her husband had been in ill health.

PREPARE TO HOLD PARLEY WITH U. S. ON CANAL LOAN

Federal Official to Be Here Tomorrow.

Officials of the sanitary district made preparations yesterday for the coming conference with federal officials regarding the proposed loan of $120,000,000 to finance completion of Chicago's sewage disposal program. Solicitor Lloyd H. Landau of the federal public works administration is expected to arrive for the conference tomorrow.

Two courses have been charted by Secretary of Interior Ickes, the public works administrator, by which the loan may be obtained. One would be outright federal construction of the sewage treatment works, while an alternative is that the district would carry out the project under government supervision and financed by federal funds. In any case the brunt of the cost of the program ordered by the United States Supreme court will be borne by the taxpayers.

Legislation Is Required.

After the conference the needed legislation to meet the requirements of Ickes will be drafted for adoption by the general assembly in Springeld.

"I don't see where any trouble will develop in the conference," said William Rothmann, attorney for the district. "There has been talk that the government wants legislation to make our bonds more gilt-edged. However, it is unthinkable that the bonds, principal and interest, will not be paid some day."

Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district, has estimated that more than 16,000 men will go back to work if the full loan is obtained.

Latest Figures on Cost.

A table showing the latest estimates on the cost of completing the program follows:

Treatment projects.	Amount needed.
Calumet—
Treatment	$ 6,520,000
Sewers	7,620,000
West side—
Treatment	1,576,000
Sewers	11,562,000
Southwest side—
Treatment	5,077,000
Sewers	12,776,000
West-southwest side—
Treatment	37,650,000
North side—
Treatment	1,875,000
Sewers	3,517,500
Sanitary improvements—
Controlling works	3,200,000
Miscellaneous plants and sewers	2,000,000
West towns sewer	3,500,000
Upper Des Plaines sewer	4,000,000
Racine avenue pumping station	4,000,000
South side sewers	15,500,000
Total	$120,367,000

Estimate Cut $59,376,500.

Since the Supreme court entered its original decree on April 21, 1030, the estimated cost of completing the program has been reduced to about $120,000,000 from $179,744,000. This reduction, $59,376,500, was brought about as follows: Expended by district, $10,942,000; economies in design and drop in cost of materials and labor, $15,551,500; new process of disposal by incineration, $26,883,000; and reduced estimate for miscellaneous plants and sewers, $6,000,000.

According to plans, 70 per cent of the $120,000,000 allocated to the district, or $84,000,000, would be a federal loan and the rest, $36,000,000, would be an outright gift.

A subapplication, requested by the government, asks for $7,874,477, which would be included in the $120,000,000 total. This represents the amount of work contracted for but halted in February of 1932 because of lack of funds. Mr. Ickes has indicated that this request will be acted upon within a few days.

Bystander Hit as Police and Hoodlums Open Fire

Anton Goralczyk, 17 years old, of 1021 North Winchester avenue, was shot in the right arm and side last night when he was caught between the gunfire of police and hoodlums at Winchester avenue and Thomas street. Physicians at St. Mary's hospital, where he was taken, described his condition as critical. The hoodlums were being pursued by Sergt. John Racek and a squad from the Warren avenue station. Racek sighted them in a car at Damen avenue and Lake street, and during the ensuing pursuit a steady exchange of shots resulted. The fugitives got away. Whether they or the policemen shot the boy has not been determined.

HIGH COURT BARS NEW HEARING IN LAKE DIVERSION

Puts Responsibility on the State of Illinois.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Supreme court today denied Illinois' petition for a rehearing of the sanitary district lake diversion case which the court recently decided in favor of the complaining states of Michigan, Indiana, and New York.

The court's refusal to reopen the case reaffirms its original decision placing full responsibility for prosecution of the Chicago sanitary district program on the shoulders of the state of Illinois.

The Illinois petition, filed by Attorney Gene l Otto Kerner on the opening day of the current court term, pointed out certain defenses which it declared the court appeared to have overlooked in its original decision in favor of the complaining states. Among these, as set forth in the petition, was the legal right of Illinois to a fair proportion of the waters of Lake Michigan.

"Illinois asserted that standing on a plane of equality with the complainant states," said Mr. Kerner's petition for rehearing, "it possessed a right to appropriate a reasonable portion of the waters of Lake Michigan. It also was contended that an equitable appraisement of the relative necessities and benefits to the state on the one side as contrasted with the comparatively slight injury claimed by the complainants, would result in an allowance to Illinois of at least its reasonable requirements."

In addition, the Illinois petition averred that the court overlooked the fact that the state cannot, because of constitutional restrictions, muster sufficient finances to begin and complete the sanitary district program in scheduled time.

The court's denial of the petition was made without amplification of the reasons on which the refusal was based. It also was noted today that the semi-annual report of the sanitary district should be "received and filed."

Virginia Hickman Ware Sues Husband for Divorce

Mrs. Virginia Hickman Ware of the Ambassador East hotel, yesterday filed suit in the Superior court for a divorce from Harlan Ware, writer and an assistant manager of a loop hotel. The bill filed by Attorney Lloyd A. Faxon, charged cruelty. Mrs. Ware asks for the custody of their son, Richard, 4 years old. The couple were married on Nov. 6, 1924, at Milwaukee and separated recently. Attorney William Boyden, counsel for Ware, said that the suit would not be contested and probably would be heard within a few days.

ASKS FOR SEPARATE MAINTENANCE IN HIS SUIT AGAINST WIFE

Lee Garner, a printer living at 6942 Normal avenue, yesterday filed a bill for separate maintenance in the Superior court against Mrs. Inez Garner, 659 West 60th street. This separate maintenance action on behalf of a man is one of the few ever filed in the Cook county courts and is the first within the last five years.

Attorney Jay J. McCarthy, who filed the bill, said that Mrs. Garner earned more money than her husband and that he expected to ask for alimony under the new state statute by which the court may order women to pay it. Garner alleged in the bill that his wife refused to allow him to enter their home and that she struck him with a rolling pin last June 17. They were married on Jan. 10, 1930.

NOW, WHAT CAN POOR COPS DO IN CASE LIKE THIS?

For the second time in two days yesterday Eugene Iacovetti, 19 years old, 901 South Loomis street, escaped identification by an alleged robbery victim. Iacovetti was seized Sunday as he ran from the Isaac Ward clothing store, 210 South Halsted street, where a robbery was in progress, but two clerks in the store refused to identify him.

Yesterday Sergt. John Hanrahan, who captured Iacovetti took a suit of clothing found in the prisoner's room and made a tour of west side clothing stores. It was identified by Jacob Neisbach as one of 77 suits taken from his clothing store at 838 West Roosevelt road in a robbery two weeks ago. Neisbach was taken to the Maxwell street police station to identify Iacovetti.

"I don't know the man," Neisbach said after studying Iacovetti's glowering visage," but tht suit is mine."

The police refused to give him the suit.

ORDERS SERVICE ON GRANT PARK RAILWAY HALTED

Superior Court Judge John P. McGoorty yesterday signed an order halting service on the narrow gauge railroad operating in Grant park from Monroe street to the 12th street entrance of the World's Fair. The order also directs that the railroad be dismantled and removed from the park within 30 days. The judge said his order was based on the theory that the railroad was trespassing on public property.

A suit against the railroad, which was constructed less than three months ago, was filed on Aug. 2, by the John A. McGarry Construction company. The bill asked for a receiver, alleging that the road owed the company $20,000. Assistant Attorney General James G. Skinner then requested the injunction which was granted yesterday. Judge McGoorty denied a plea to let the road operate unil Monday. He named Geortge Kenney as receiver.

You too, can have A GOOD HEAD OF HAIR . . .

and it costs you nothing to find out HOW

WHEN you were a child your scalp contained the necessary structure to grow 121,630 hairs. This same organic structure remains alive in your scalp as long as you live. It is ready to function as Nature intended it should, when properly stimulated and when relieved of the burden of scalp disorders, such as dandruff, itching scalp or falling hair.

Thomas' treatment does exactly these two things: (1) Cleanses the scalp of all infection and leaves it antiseptically free of baldness-producing germs; (2) stimulates the dormant sources of hair growth. Thus, Thomas' treatment ends dandruff, stops abnormal hair fall and permits hair to grow again on the thin or bald spots. For Quick Relief Always Say "BAYER Aspirin" When You Buy

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the space of two seconds after touching moisture.

The illustration of the glass, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headaches, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN does not harm the heart.

See though, that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But always to ask for "BAYER ASPIRIN" when you buy.

MORE LEADERS QUIT TAMMANY TO BACK McKEE

Brooklyn Sheriff Nominee Latest to Desert.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Brooklyn and Queens became hotbeds of political rebellion today as regulars in the Democratic party bolted the leadership of the old line bosses and declared for Joseph V. McKee for mayor.

Both John H. McCooey, leader for a quarter century in Brooklyn, and John Theofel, a newcomer in Queens, are now threatened with rebellion in every section of their big boroughs.

Frank J. Quayle, Democratic nominee for sheriff in Brooklyn, and leader of the big first district, left the McCooey leadership and came out for McKee. Half a dozen other district leaders are wavering and reports are that they may follow any minute. This revolt led to a report that McCooey was being urged to step out, as the case appeared hopeless. The veteran boss was much disturbed.

"I am not going to quit; that is a lie. It comes up every hour. Tell 'am to go to hell with my compliments; I am going to stay here as long as I want to stay."

See Leadership Tottering.

However, Mr. McCooey's old régime seemed to be tottering. With McCooey's grip broken, Tammny control of the city and Mayor O'Brien's candidacy appeared to be drifting on the rocks.

In Queens, Mr. Theofel was less emphatic when he learned that District Attorney Charles S. Colden, nominee on the regular ticket for borough president, had gone over to McKee. That was a body blow. Next came word that Joseph Doyle, leader of the third and deputy tenant house commissioner, was through trying to hold his district for O'Brien against McKee. That covers the big Corona section, where the McKee sentiment is running high. John Sheridan, leader of the first in Long Island City, followed into the McKee camp.

Mr. Theofel will ask his leaders to stand up and be counted later today and then decide what to do about it. An effort will be made in the executive committee to swing the organization officially for McKee.

The entire membership of the Democratic county committee in the Sixth assembly district in Queens voted unanimously tonight to support McKee and the remainder of his ticket in the mayoralty election. The Woodhaven Democratic club also voted to bolt the regular ticket in favor of McKee.

Backing from Fusion Camp.

While these desertions are undermining the O'Brien candidacy on the one side and are menacing to the Tammany leadership which the mayor sponsors, the rush from the Republican and fusion camp to the McKee candidacy is running a close second. Mr. McKee is drawing from both sides.

Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the Republican national committee in 1916; close friend of the Charles E. Hughes, the nominee for President that year, and twice delegate-at-large from this state to national conventions, offered his help to Mr. McKee today.

Party lines are being wiped out completely in this campaign. Nothing like what is happening these days has been witnessed in New York in two generations. Democrats and Republicans alike are turning from the old banners and slogans and falling in line with the McKee parade. The idea in all minds appears to be to turn out Tammany and it is accepted that McKee is the man to do the job.

Curry Holds Conferences.

John F. Curry the big boss of Tammany had a long talk today with Thomas J. Dolen, Bronx park commissioner and leader of the Fourth district in that borough, who was the one and only regular to stick with Tammany when Ed Flynn broke away and got back of the McKee candidacy.

As a result of their talk, Mr. Dolen was designated the new Bronx leader to succeed Flynn in the Tammany organization.

Mayor Meets La Guardia.

Mayor O'Brien announced tonight that he would issue a statement at noon tomorrow "covering the entire political situation in New York." The mayor made the announcement in the presence of Mr. La Guardia, his fusion opponent, and 500 guests attending a dinner given by the Gridiron club of Flushing.

Before the mayor was called on to speak La Guardia entered. They shook hands and Mr. La Guardia told the mayor that he looked "pretty tired," adding that "this is a tough campaign."

MOVE TO SEIZE RENTS, GOODS OF MISSING BANKER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9—[Special.]—Writs of capias tonight were issued on behalf of County Treasurer Clarence M. Sommers for the seizure of the household goods and rents from properties owned by Isaac J. Rosenberg, missing convicted banker, because he failed to pay the interest and penalties on his 1929, 1930 and 1931 income taxes and in 1932 did not pay the income tax itself.

Rosenberg's delinquency, according to Mr. Sommers, amounts to $4,863.

Deputy sheriffs and the county treasurer tonight visited the Rosenberg home at 2477 North Grant boulevard with the intention of attaching the banker's household property, but learned that all of the furniture was held in Mrs. Rosenberg's name and returned without action.

Garnishment of the rent paid to Rosenberg directly or to the Lavo corporation, a soap manufacturing company owned by him, was ordered by the county treasurer tonight after a series of conferences with Oliver L. O'Boyle, county corporation counsel.

The action on the part of the county treasurer came late today after the $20,000 bond on which the convicted banker is at liberty was ordered forfeited by Circuit Judge Gustave G. Gehrz.

The rents paid by the Gimbel Brothers' store parking lot at North Plankinton avenue and Michigan street to the electric company, which leased the property from Rosenberg, and the Wisconsin News-Sentinel company, which leases the building from the Lavo corporation, will be confiscated, Sommers said.

Sommers declared that all the rents paid by these companies filters through to Rosenberg himself. Instead of collecting the rents directy, he assigned them to the Lavo corporation, of which he is president. Last week the Lavo pant was partly destroyed by fire. The plant is insured for $90,000. Louis Rosenberg, the banker's son, is vice president and manager of the plant.

The $20,000 bail was provided by Louis Rosenberg and Benjamin Rogatz. The judge's action was caused by Rosenberg's disregard for a commitment order signed last week.

Sheriff Joseph J. Shinners was ordered by District Attorney William A. Zabel to ask New York police to arrest the missing banker. A letter from Rosenberg, postmarked New York and dated as of yesterday, was read in court.

PLENTY OF GOOD WHISKY READY, OFFICIALS SAY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Definite assurance that plenty of "good" American made whisky will be on hand to meet the demand after repeal of the prohibition amendment was given today by government officials following a survey of the probable requirements and the available supply.

This finding on the part of bureau chiefs decreased immediately the likelihood of any unusual change in treasury regulations whereby the gates would be opened wider for whisky imports before the actual date of repeal has been definitely fixed by action of th 36th state in ratifying the 21st amendment.

End 13 Year Old Drought.

This mature conclusion came on the eve of the 33d state repeal referendum—that in Florida tomorrow.

Conceding that the greatest demand for whisky ever known in the United States might follow the 13 year old drought, officials insisted that the supply would be ample. The required gallonage, up to an excess of 100 million, they said, could be furnished from a quantity of very old bottled in bond goods now in the warehouses, a larger volume of two years' age and over, and a still greater quantity of newer stuff that either already is aging or to be put in the wood between now and early December.

Well Regulated Production.

In anticipation of prohibition repeal, treasury leaders already have begun steps to insure well regulated domestic production and importations from abroad. The annual quota for domestic manufacture of spirits has been stepped up from 3,000,000 gallons at the beginning of the year to 18,000,000 gallons. Eight large distilleries are now working night and day on that quota and promise to complete it around Dec. 1.

At least five other distilleries are expected to be ready for operation immediately upon repeal of the 18th amendment. Several distillery construction jobs are said to be going on in the city of Baltimore alone.

TROOPS CONTROL INDIANA MINE BATTLE ZONE

Two Homes at Sullivan Damaged by Bombs.

Sullivan, Ind., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Indiana National Guardsmen with fixed bayonets quickly restored quiet today in the Sullivan county mining district, nervous after a night of bombings and a daybreak skirmish between pickets and coöperative miners.

By proclamation of Gov. Paul V. McNutt the entire county was placed under military control. The governor's action was just short of martial law. The civil courts were left to function, but civil authorities were designated as agents of the military in the preservation of order.

General Brings Proclamation.

The governor's proclamation, carried by Brig. Gen. D. Wray Deprez, 76th infantry brigade commander, became effective tonight. Some time before two Terre Haute companies of the 152d infantry were on hand to take charge. Three other companies were held in readiness in nearby cities should Gen. Deprez decide more troops were needed.

The Starburn mine, a shaft located near Shelburn in northern Sullivan county, was the storm center of the trouble. This mine has been worked by a group of miners on the coöperative plan whereby they share in any profits resulting from its operation. United Mine Workers' officials contend that the coöperative plan violates the wage agreement between the union and the operators.

Miners' Homes Bombed.

During the night dynamite explosions damaged the homes of two miners at Sullivan. Other explosions were reported at Hymera. Apparently the blasts were directed at the homes of the Starburn coöperative workers.

The bombings were followed by the clash at the mine. Workers making their way to the shaft under the escort of county authorities were surrounded by a group of pickets. Some stones were hurled and two shots were fired. Sheriff Cleve Lewellen said he did not know whether the shots were fired by the pickets or by the miners.

Throughout the disorders no one was injured. Word that National guardsmen were on their way spread quickly and the pickets soon dispersed.

Would Donate Work.

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Miners employed at Sahara mine No. 10 at Eldorado have signed a petition addressed to the Sahara Coal company offering to donate a day's work on the reconstruction of the tipple at the mine if the company will rebuild. The tipple was destroyed by a mysterious fire last week. Workers at other mines also are said to have signed the petitions and have offered to work a day without pay. Four hundred and twenty-fi[ve] miners were employed at that mine.

Word from Springfield was that leaders of the Progressive miners had extended the truce on picketing of Saline county mines four days pending efforts of NRA arbitrators to settle the Illinois dispute between the Progressives and the United Mine Workers.

TRIAL OF J. J. DAVIS ON LOTTERY CHARGE ENTERS FOURTH WEEK

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The fourth and probably final week of the second federal lottery trial of United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania opened today in federal court with a Long Island undertaker testifying that "whatever Jim Davis took out of the Moose, he put twice as much back."

The testimony was given by William Nast, a supreme councillor of the Loyal Order of Moose, after he had been cross-examined at length about Davis' interest in the Moose organization department.

Louis Mead Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, asked Nast if he knew how much money Davis took from the Moose for organization work every year.

Nast said that he didn't, but he shook a finger at Treadwell and shouted:

"Whatever he took out, he put twice as much back. Take Brooklyn lodge alone. He gave it $20,000. He saved many another, too."

Return Open Verdict in Killing of Rental Agent

A Kane county coroner's jury returned an open verdict at Elgin yesterday in its investigation of the death of Donald Mecartney, 26 years old, Wilmette rental agent, who was found shot to death on Sunday 15 miles northwest of Elgin. Evidence available did not establish whether he had committed suicide or was murdered. The police incline to the suicide theory. Attorney Newell Mecartney of Evanston, brother of the slain man, was a witness at the inquest. He knew of no reason, he said, why his brother should have killed himself or of anything that would have caused some one to murder him.

HUMPHREY ASKS FEDERAL TRADE FIGHT; GETS IT

Barred from Commission Meetings.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The doors of the federal trade commission were officially closed to William E. Humphrey today by commission recognition of the executive order removing him.

Humphrey himself maintained that he still was a member, asked that the commission officially record its decision to recognize President Roosevelt's removal order, and laid the foundation upon which he will raise his legal claim that the President had no power to remove him for the reasons ascribed. He showed no hurry, however, to take the case into the courts.

Lays Basis of Court Fight.

The adoption by the commission of its formal resolution holding that Humphrey was out of office by virtue of the executive order, was considered by him and his friends as strengthening his legal position for the inpending court fight.

The commission had decided that Humphey could not attend further meetings, to which Humphrey said:

"The action of the federal trade commission was taken at my request in order to preserve any legal rights I may have. I want it understood I was not hauled on the carpet because the meeting was friendly in every respect."

Has Republican Support.

Republican leaders, in private comment, said "Mr. Humphrey has been given a raw deal." One added:

"That commission was organized as an independent agency and members of different parties were provided for so that it could not be controlled. Mr. Humphrey was removed for political and patronage reasons. The fact that the President said he wanted somebody whose mind ran along the same channels as his means that he wants control and intends to have it."

Friends of Humphrey said the most likely legal approach probably would be an action to force payment of his salary. This would force the government to prove that he was removed for "inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office," in the words of the federal trade commission act, it is asserted.

Humphrey's correspondence with the President, Humphrey holds, shows the removal was based entirely on the grounds of disagreement on commission policies.

George C. Matthews of Wisconsin, appointed to Humphrey's place on the commission, was not expected to reach Washington for a week or ten days.

Allegan, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Fred C. Ring and his wife, Ophelia, arrested Labor day, charged with indecent exposure for running a nudist colony 9 miles west of Allegan, were arraigned today before Circuit Judge Fred T. Miles. They waived examination and entered a plea of not guilty. They were released on the same bonds. Judge Miles suggested two weeks from today for the trial, but attorneys did not agree.

FAT PEOPLE CAN REDUCE SAFELY WITHOUT DRUGS

Dr. Orland Explains New Safe Scientific Method of Weight Control

According to Dr. Frank S. Orland, well-known authority on the dangers of excess weight, it is no longer necessary for fat people to face the problems of reducing with revulsion and fear. Speaking over Station KYW Dr. Orland said that dieting, the bane of many a fat person's life and which often results in lowered vitality, can be dispensed with, as can strenuous exercises. Dangerous drugs (unless taken under direction of a competent physician) should be avoided, as well as all other drastic reducing methods.

"Now it is absurd for anyone," he continued, "to take dangerous drugs or anything that rushes food through the body half digested and leads to chronic constipation. Vannay, a convenient sugar-coated tablet, is the safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies. Avoid fattening foods.

"You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it."

This remarkable product is on sale at all Liggett Drug Stores. Any of our clerks will be glad to give you an interesting booklet, "How to Reduce With Absolute Safety."

474,000 REALTY PARCELS UP FOR DELINQUENT SALE

County Treasurer McDonough made formal application before County Judge Jarecki to hold tax sale of 474,000 parcels of real estate on which are delinquent $15,000,000 in special assessments. Judge Jarecki announced that he would hear all objections to the sale on Oct. 19, and enter the court order that day so the actual selling of the real estate can begin on Oct. 30. Most of the properties involved are subdivisions on the outskirts of the city.

Officials in the county treasurer's office yesterday said Judge Jarecki's suggested plan for the treasurer to issue receivership certificates which would be sold to the public, was unworkable. "Why should the public buy such certificates when we can't even sell tax warrants," they asked. They added that only about 25 per cent of all the properties now in tax receivership would have any funds above operating expenses during the winter months.

Yesterday was the last day for paying first installment of 1931 real estate tax bills with a 6 per cent penalty. The penalty which accrues at the rate of 1 per cent a month became 7 per cent today.

DAIRYMEN RAISE HOB OVER SLOW U. S. AID TO FARMS

Industry Gets the Gravy, Delegates Told.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Officers of the National Coöperative Milk Producers' federation, representing 360,000 dairy farmers of the nation, opened the federation's annual convention here yesterday with a bitter denunciation of the "new deal" for agriculture in Washington. The dairymen are meeting at the Morrison hotel.

Every speaker on the first day's program save one, and he spoke for the farm adjustment administration, attacked the farm administration's delays and changes in policy toward the dairy industry.

"The principal beneficiaries of the farm adjustment act up to the present time," said Harry Hartke, president of the federation, "have been the railroads and hotels. Farmers are being put to an unjustified expense in trying to secure the benefits of the act. Their disappointment is made doubly great because of the immediate and far reaching benefits which the administration has conferred upon industry."

Battle Centers Here.

The fight of the organized dairymen, representing the milk farmers in metropolitan areas of 41 states, is centered about the agricultural adjustment administration's trade agreement on milk for the Chicago area, declared Charles W. Holman, secretary of the federation. He joined in a denunciation of the "dilatory methods" of the AAA and stated that the farm act would be out of existence before its benefits would reach the dairy industry if action was not forthcoming.

Holman said the federation supported the aims embodied in the Chicago milk marketing agreement. These include the vigorous enforcement of such marketing agreements as drafted by the organized farmers and distributors, with aid of the AAA.

The federation, he said, stands for the right of the government to define an area of equitable distribution of milk, within which all prices to farmers and to consumers should be on a uniform basis.

More Battles Threatened.

Delegates at the federation indicated that outbreaks of milk warfare were being threatened in several metropolitan milk sheds over the delays of the AAA in enforcing agreements and in approving those already before it. Thus far 147 trade agreements have been submitted to the AAA, Holman declared, of which 125 apply to milk and cream. Only 7 agreements have so far been approved by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Holman characterized the attitude of the AAA toward enforcing the agreements as "very slow and by no means firm." He said that while cases were being prepared against those who violated the licenses issued by the AAA, the violators were "raiding the business of distributors who are purchasing their supplies under the terms of the agreement."

Another problem now being worked over, he said, is that of utilizing the existing surplus stocks of milk in Chicago and other city areas for the unemployed.

Davis Tells New Plan.

Chester C. Davis, production chief of the AAA, presented to the dairymen the newest government scheme to reduce the mounting production of dairy products. He declared that a processing tax would be imposed upon milk, its products and some products competing with milk and butter in the near future. From this tax dairy farmers would be paid for reducing their herd production.

"Farmers will work fewer hours and yet produce all that the market will take of their products," Davis said.

Davis also gave the first intimation of the government's plan to cut corn acreage for 1934. He said that it was probable an attempt would be made to take 20 million acres of corn land out of production next year.

POULTRY SHOW STARTS TODAY AT COLISEUM

Sixty-four experts on poultry, pigeons, guinea pigs, and rabbits are scheduled early today to begin pinning ribbons on the birds and animals from 41 states, Canada, France, and other European countries entered in the 23th annual Chicago Coliseum Poultry show. The exhibit is being staged in connection with the World's Fair international egg laying contest, and is said to be the largest collection of small stock ever assembled in the central west.

The show will be opened officially at noon today by Walter W. McLaughlin, state director of agriculture, representing Gov. Horner, and by Dr. A. W. Bitting, chief of the foods division of A Century of Progress Exposition. It will close Sunday evening. Gov. Horner is offering one of the principal trophies.

A feature of today's program is the dinner tonight at the Auditorium hotel, at which veterans of the poultry industry will be guests. Among those invited is Charles McClave, who was in charge of the water fowl department at the Columbian exposition in 1893. He is to officiate as judge of water fowl at this year's show. O. L. McCord, 70 years old, of Peoria, is another pioneer of the '93 fair who will be a guest.

Rider Seriously Injured in Fall from Horse

Carl Weinrich, 24 years old, was in a critical condition yesterday in the Lake County General hospital, Waukegan, after he was found unconscious Sunday on a gravel road southeast of Wauconda. Weinrich apparently had fallen from a horse which he had ridden from his home at Prairie View. His mother, Mrs. Laura Reed, said that Weinrich left home on the horse Sunday morning. The horse returned riderless later in the day.

U. S. WON'T FIX PRICES OF BREAD, BAKERS ARE TOLD

Convention Hears Head of Industry's Council.

Henry Stude, chairman of the National Bakers' council, yesterday told members of the American Bakers' association in the opening session of their convention at the Hotel Sherman that there will be no federal fixing of bread prices such as is being attempted in the milk industry. A clause in the bakers' code, now before government authorities in Washington, provides for open prices and against loss in selling, he said.

Mr. Stude said that the baking industry has reason to resent unwarranted allegations about the price of bread because of its coöperation with the government in boosting by $3,500,000 a week the income of farmers who supply the industry with its materials.

Sees Help in Code.

He warned the bakers not to expect their code to solve all the problems of the industry. It will help, he declared, because it will make for coöperation and will remove some obstacles. He added that the bakers' association is "part of the great army of industrial guinea pigs," on which the government is experimenting.

"Bread has been used as an example of high distribution costs, to emphasize the spread between what the consumer pays and what the farmer gets," Mr. Stude said. "The time has come to distinguish between service and distribution and to point out that service is a part of the American standard of living, representing money and wages which are not waste or profit."

Bruce Barton Talks to Bakers.

Earlier in the day Bruce Barton, New York editor and advertising executive, addressed the bakers' convention.

"The dole is here, by whatever name you choose to call it, and it will have to remain until business is good and all are again employed," he said.

Commenting upon the statement of President Roosevelt that "no one shall be hungry, nor cold this winter in a country which has so much of everything," Barton characterized unemployment as "not casual but chronic," and said that all the consumer buying possible will not prevent it.

C. L. WILEY SUED BY HIS WIFE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Mrs. Anna Wiley, 143 North Parkside avenue, filed suit for divorce yesterday against Charles L. Wiley, 3901 North Kimball avenue, head of a furniture company, charging cruelty and adultery. The bill, filed in the Superior court by Attorney Victor Frohlich, asserted that Mrs. Wiley, during the last months of 1932, began to miss furnishings from her home. One day, according to the bill, she saw her husband carry a chair out of the house and, following him, saw him go to an apartment at 3133 North Luna avenue, where he was living with another woman.

Wiley ran for congress last year in the Seventh district. He was prosecuted by federal authorities in November, 1931, when he asked his apartment janitor to make a few bottles of home brew for him. Mrs. Wiley asks for alimony and a property settlement.

BAKER PLEADS FOR 'JAKE THE BARBER' IN SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, appeared in the Supreme court today for John [Jake the Barber] Factor, whose extradition is demanded by Great Britain on a charge arising from the alleged swindling of British investors of $7,000,000 in stock sales.

Factor was recently released by kidnapers for a reputed $50,000. The charge, receiving property known to have been obtained by fraud, was not a criminal offense under the state of Illinois, where Factor was arrested. Therefore, Factor cannot be extradited, Mr. Baker argued.

Former Attorney General William D. Mitchell opposed this interpretation of the extradition treaty between the two countries in behalf of Great Britain.

DIAMOND THIEF CAUGHT AFTER 7 YEAR SEARCH

William [Switch] Ritchey, 32 years old, who has been sought for more than seven years for thefts of diamonds which were valued at more than $500,000, was arrested in St. Louis yesterday. The Pinkerton National Detective agency had been on his trail for four years.

Ritchey's system, the police said, was to follow a jewelry salesman to railway stations and switch an empty bag for the baggage containing the gems. He is wanted for such substitutions in Chicago, Kansas City, New York, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Providence, Newark, Hartford, Detroit, Baltimore, and Philadelphia.

When detectives raided Ritchey's room in a St. Louis hotel they found three revolvers, 800 bogus baggage checks, 100 hotel room and master keys, pliers, tape and wire and a national directory of jewelers.

Ritchey is wanted in Chicago for a $75,000 theft accomplished by switching a trunk with a salesman for a New York wholesale jewelry concern.

U. S. LABOR AIDS TOLD TO RESPECT LIBERTY OF PRESS

Must Not Interfere with It, Official Warns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—All agents of the department of labor have been notified, it was announced today, that no federal statute, not even the NRA, gives them any right to interfere in any manner with the freedom of the press.

The notice was given to the agents by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins following an investigation made by Assistant Secretary Turner Battle into a case involving Eugene H. Dunnegan, a mediator for the department's conciliation commission.

Alabama Paper Involved.

Charges had been brought by Dick Thompson, editor of the Tallassee [Ala.] Tribune, to the effect that Dunnegan had entered his office and had threatened a federal prosecution if Thompson continued his editorial attacks on unions.

Dunnegan informed the editor that his comments were in violation of the labor provision of the national industrial recovery act, according to Thompson's account, and when the editor refused to give his promise to cease his criticisms, the federal agent threatened to have the district attorney commence a prosecution. Thompson, defying the agent, published an article disclosing the agent's activity, and asserted his reliance upon the constitutional right of free speech and free press.

Editor Alone to Decide.

The case was brought to Secretary Perkins' attention by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as one involving the constitutional guarantee, with the result that a warning notice has been served upon all agents.

"Officers of the department have been advised," said Assistant Secretary Battle, "that they have no right to tell any editor what he may or may not print, and that nothing in the NRA, nor any other federal statute, gives them such a right."

HIGH COURT TO SAY IF SUNSTROKE DEATH AT GOLF IS ACCIDENTAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Supreme court today agreed to decide whether death on golf links from sunstroke is accidental.

The question was raised in a case from Tennessee brought by Florence S. Landress, seeking to collect double indemnity under two life insurance policies carried by her late husband, Thomas L. Landress.

Both policies carried provisions under which the companies issuing them agreed to pay double the face value in the event of death from accident.

Landress was overcome by heat while playing golf on Aug. 5, 1930. The two insurance companies paid the widow the straight life insurance of $10,000 and $5,000 respectively, and were sustained by the Federal District court at Chattanooga, which held that death from heat under such circumstances was not caused by accident.

The decision was affirmed by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which attributed the death to the voluntary conduct of Landress.

AVOID INDIGESTION!

Do you tax your stomach with modern "quick lunches" and too-rich dinners?

Take this precaution. Stop pouring caffeine into your system. This stimulant... found in all ordinary coffees ...often aggravates indigestion and high blood pressure, and causes sleeplessness.

Switch to Kaffee-Hag Coffee! 97% caffeine-free. Kellogg's original idea in taking out the caffeine was to make Kaffee-Hag a safe coffee. Recent tests prove that it's that...and more. It's delicious! Blend of finest Brazilian and Colombian coffee beans. Made mellower by the removal of the bitter caffeine. Cook it strong. It's never bitter... always mellow, smooth.

Make this test. Enjoy Kaffee-Hag morning, noon and night, for three weeks. See if you don't feel better.

Ground or in the Bean . . . Roasted by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Vacuum packed. Buy it from your grocer. Satisfaction guaranteed, or money back.

KELLOGG CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

HOLDUP KILLERS' TRIAL DELAYED FOR SIXTH TIME

State Makes No Objection to Defense Move.

The trial of three hoodlums for the murder of a bank cashier was continued for the sixth time yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers without objection by the state. The defendants are John Scheck, already under sentence of death for the courtroom murder of Policeman John G. Sevick, and Carl Grundhoefer and Frank Keglovitz.

They are alleged to have shot and killed Cashier Harry Mueller during the robbery of a Niles Center bank. The numerous delays have given rise to the rumor that powerful political interests are seeking leniency for Grundhoefer, the actual killer.

The murder, according to prosecution evidence, was cold blooded. Grundhoefer is alleged to have shot the cashier without preliminary as Mueller returned from lunch during the robbery.

Record of the Continuances.

It was pointed out yesterday that the state has concurred in all of the continuances in the case, and has not objected to any of the defense moves to forestall trial. The three defendants were indicted on May 11, 1933. Since then the record in the case is as follows:

May 31, 1933—Continued on the motion of the defense until June 26, 1933.

June 26, 1933—Continued on motion of the defense until July 24, 1933.

July 24, 1933—Continued on motion of the defense to the September term of court.

Sept. 6, 1933—Continued by order of the court until Sept. 27, 1933.

Sept. 27, 1933—Sent to the chief justice for reassignment on motion for a change of venue from Judge Walter P. Steffen; assigned to Judge William V. Brothers, and continued until yesterday.

Judge Brothers announced yesterday that his call had been cleared to start immediate trial of the case. Defense Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane moved that the case be transferred out of Cook county. The attorneys held that a defendant would be unable to get a fair trial because of the recent action of Judge Benjamin Epstein and Judge Thomas A. Green in reprimanding juries for alleged leniency to criminals.

Case Delayed Till Friday.

The case was continued until Friday to allow the defense to produce affidavits in support of its motion. As in past instances the prosecution announced that it would not object to a short continuance. Defense motions for a separate trial for Keglovitz and for a 30 day continuance also were continued until Friday.

The trial of James Ryan, alleged Touhy gangster, for the murder of John Rinelli, northwest side roadhouse keeper, was continued until Oct. 18 yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy. The Ryan defense also demanded a change of venue from Cook county on the same ground as that given in the Scheck-Grundhoefer-Keglovitz case

Police Slayers on Trial Today.

Trial of Emil Manzone, Richard Basile, and George Chevas, alleged members of the 42 gang, for the murder of Policeman Maurice Marcusson, was continued until today by Judge Harry B. Miller after Defense Attorney M. M. Ward had asked to be allowed to withdraw from the case. The attorney announced that he had been appointed an assistant state's attorney and for that reason did not feel free to continue with the defense.

Tony Rocco, 24 years old, one of the robber gang who killed Policeman Marcusson, was sentenced last week to serve 199 years for the crime. He had asked and received a separate trial.

A coup planned by the state failed yesterday in the court of Judge Benjamin Epstein when three youths who had been convicted of the murder of Vito Pisciatti withdrew their motions for a new trial. Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller had planned to concur in the motion in the hope of getting more severe punishments at the second trial.

Three Sentenced to Prison.

The three defendants—James Palumbo, 26 years old; John Terracino, 25 years old, and Frank Pascocciello, 35 years old—were sentenced after they withdrew the new trial motion. Palumbo, the alleged killer, and Terracino were sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary and Pascocciello was sentenced to 14 years.

The punishments, considered light in view of the crime, were fixed last week by a jury. Judge Epstein criticized the jurors and dismissed them from further service. The three found guilty, with Sam Mirabile and Tony Venezia, who were acquitted, are alleged to have shot and killed Pisciatti

GOVERNOR HERE

GOV. B. B. MOEUR.

Dr. B. B. Moeur, governor of Arizona, was given a 19 gun salute and military honors when he visited the Fair yesterday morning. He was accompanied by Mrs. Moeur and Congresswoman Isabella Greenway of Arizona. The party was taken for an automobile tour of the Fair grounds, stopping at the Travel and Transport building to view the Arizona state exhibit there. Gov. Moeur, who is en route to Washington for a conference with President Roosevelt, suffered an attack of angina pectoris at El Paso, Tex., on his way to Chicago. He was reported improved yesterday.

during a robbery in his home at 3152 5th avenue on Feb. 4.

Prosecutor Mueller went before the grand jury later in the day and true bills charging robbery were reported to have been voted against the five men in the case. Mr. Mueller said that he hoped to obtain the maximum penalty of one year to life for the five and also hoped to have the sentences run consecutively with the sentences already imposed on the three found guilty of murder.

Three Others Are Sentenced.

These sentences and three others brought to 393 the number of criminals sent to prison since the opening of the crime war last August. The others sentenced are:

BERNARD PINET, 43 years old, sentenced to one to ten years in prison by Judge Epstein for embezzlement of $5,000 from Mrs. Martha Flynn, 4211 North Kedvale avenue.

ELIJAH WISE, 32 years old, colored, sentenced to one to 14 years by Judge Steffen for assault with intent to rape an 8 year old colored girl.

RALPH PEYTON, 21 years old, colored, sentenced to one year by Judge Miller for statutory rape. The complainant was a 15 year old colored girl.

Judge Thomas A. Green did not hold court yesterday, and four trials under the new vagrancy law were continued until today. The defendants scheduled to appear are John [West Side Jack] Barry, labor racketeer; Martin O'Leary, alleged Touhy gangster; Paul Marino, west side police character, and James Micelli, member of the 42 gang.

TWO MURDERERS FILE WRITS TO DELAY EXECUTION

Petitions for writs of supersedeas were filed with the state Supreme court at Springfield yesterday by Kenneth Smith, alias Ross King, under a death sentence for the murder of a policeman, and for George Dale, alias Kennedy, who was sentenced to death for slaying a holdup victim. Both the appellants seek to delay executions set for this month.

Smith has been sentenced to die on Oct. 16. He was tried for the murder of Policeman Harry Redlick. Kennedy was the sweetheart of Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, the "blonde tigress," who aided him in a bandit career and who now is serving a prison term for her part in the slaying of Gustav Hoeh, 72 years old. Kennedy is under sentence to die on Oct. 13.

nection with the Kellys" was when he went to District Attorney Hyde, at Arnold's request, and told him that the Kellys would surrender if the government would release Mrs. Shannon, her husband and their son, Armon. This was turned down and the Shannons all were convicted at the first trial, the parents receiving life sentences and the 22 year old Armon a ten year suspended sentence.

The first witness, Gay Coleman, 18 year old farm boy of near Stratford, pointed out Kelly as the man he heard boast "there will be a kidnaping" on the same day Urschel was seized, but when he said he could not remember some of the incidents which he had testified previously, Prosecutor Hyde remarked: "Who's been talking to you since the first trial?" At this Kelly broke into a loud guffaw.

Evidence Half Submitted.

By the time the day had ended almost half the government's testimony had been submitted, including Urschel's story of his 9-day abduction.

Kathryn's tears flowed as her aged grandmother, Mrs. T. M. Coleman, who lives on the farm near Stratford, testified from her wheelchair she had driven Kelly and Kathryn from her home early Sunday morning, July 23, "because they told me that they had a kidnaped man there."

Urschel's own story followed. He recounted, as he did at the first trial, how he had been taken away, his eyes taped securely shut, "so I couldn't tell daylight from darkness," and moved to the R. G. Shannon farm in Wise county, Tex., where he was held until ransomed for $200,000.

"Is that the man who told you he was going to blow your head off?" asked Hyde. "That boy smiling over there with the red hair?"

"Yes," said Urschel, adding the hair had been dyed.

The millionaire said he talked at length with Kelly while the latter guarded him at the Shannon farm.

"He told me about his bootlegging experiences, about the penitentiary he had been in," he said.

Then came the testimony of John G. Catlett, Tulsa oil man and friend of Urschel, who received the first letter sent by the kidnapers in establishing channels for payment of the ransom.

NOTE IN HIGHWAY CLEW TO MISSING NAVY RADIO MAN

"I've Been Kidnaped," Reads Letter.

The first clew as to the whereabouts of Harold V. Westphal, 26 years old, who has been missing from his Philadelphia home since last Friday, was discovered yesterday in a note found in Ridge road in Homewood. Westphal is an airplane pilot and radioman at the Naval Aircraft factory in the Philadelphia navy yard.

The note, scrawled in pencil on an envelope, had been tucked in a leather picture holder and dropped on the concrete highway. It was found by children on their way to school. Signed with the printed name of Westphal, it said that the writer was in the hands of kidnapers, and asked that his wife be notified at 420 Kent road, Upper Darby, a suburb of Philadelphia.

"If any one finds this letter please notify my wife," the letter said. "I have been kidnaped. Her address is 420 Kent road, Upper Darby, Pa. I am bound hand and foot in the bottom of a black sedan. They are making a deserter of me. They don't know I am writing this. I don't know where I am."

Philadelphia officials were notified and made public the fact that Westphal had been missing from his home since Friday. They said that Westphal disappeared after leaving his room at the United Service club in Philadelphia for a suburban home which he had just rented for himself and his bride of two months.

Mrs. Westphal told Philadelphia police, according to despatches, that her husband had feared kidnapers "because of some deal in which he was involved." She could give no details as to the "deal." The Philadelphia police expressed some doubt of the kidnaping theory and pointed to the fact that it would have been difficult to write the note while bound hand and foot.

The Philadelphia authorities said that Westphal had been paid shortly before his disappearance and suggested that he may have deserted his wife.

Mrs. Westphal, who is 26 years old, was formerly Mrs. Harold Schmidt, wife of a Baltimore policeman, and has two children by that marriage. She divorced Schmidt ten years ago. Westphal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Westphal of Elmont, Cal. His second four year enlistment in the navy will expire Nov. 26.

Chief of Police Walter Gleason of Homewood, received the note from two girls who found it early yesterday. They said apparently it had been dropped only a few minutes before it was found.

Backfire Starts $75,000 Blaze; 18 Trucks Burned

The backfire of a motor truck as it was being started in the garage of the Jewett & Sowers Oil company at 3838 South Michigan avenue shot flame into a tank of gasoline and started a fire which destroyed the building and 18 trucks stored there early yesterday. The damage was estimated at $75,000. The firemen fought the blaze for two hours and kept the flames from reaching a 2,000 gallon gasoline tank in the building. A 2-11 alarm was sounded.

C.A.C. COMMITTEE LAUDS ELEVATED AUTO ROAD PLAN

160 Mile Network Finds Favor with Experts.

BY HAL FOUST.

The street safety committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday applauded the Massen-McClintock traffic report recommending the prompt initiation of an elevated highway construction program that would give the city 160 miles of fast, safe motor routes in the next twenty-five years.

Attending the committee meeting, a luncheon session in the La Salle hotel, were representatives of the three political units called upon in the report to carry out the program, the city, the state, and the county. No official action will be taken by the committee until its members have had time to study the survey which was first made public in yesterday morning's newspapers.

Quinlan Approves Plan.

"The general conclusions are obviously correct," said Maj. George Quinlan, Cook county highway superintendent. "To afford any substantial relief from the hazards and wasteful delays of Chicago's congestion, we must have motor routes with continuous grade separation, facilities for uninterrupted fast and safe travel for large masses of automobiles.

"On the details of engineering and routing I won't be prepared to make any comment until I have had time to study the recommendations."

Leslie Sorenson, city traffic engineer, and Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the state highway department, were in the same position. Telephone calls to Springfield disclosed that neither Gov. Horner nor Director Kingery of the department of public works had as yet seen a copy of the Massen-McClintock study. Mayor Kelly, reached at his city hall office, said that because of official duties he had not time as yet to study the report.

Massen Summarizes Survey.

Ald. John A. Massen, as chairman of the city council traffic committee, gave the Association of Commerce group a summary of the conclusions reached in six years of study:

1. Chicago's traffic problem is an integral part of the state's traffic problem, the inefficiency of the city streets detracting from the efficiency of the rural roads.

2. The separation and segregation of vehicular flows are the only effective ways of reducing traffic accidents and delays in Chicago.

3. The construction of major traffic arteries does not enhance the value of abutting property and thus special assessments cannot be counted upon to finance new motor facilities. Bond issues cannot be considered because taxes are already strangling realty and industry, the existing gas tax is the only equitable means of financing the elevated highways.

4. Elevated highways can be designed so that they will be within the means of the public to construct a system with the revenue from the present state gasoline tax.

Dr. McClintock Reviews Report.

Dr. Miller McClintock, head of the Harvard university bureau of traffic research, under whose direction the survey was conducted, reviewed his report. He put emphasis on the conclusions, based on statistics, that expenditures for elevated highways might be justified solely by the time saving to motorists and that, without placing any value on this time saving, the elevated highways are economically sound because they can be built at 15.5 per cent of the cost of widening surface streets to obtain the same traffic capacity.

The professor discussed his suggestions for design, pointing out that this is the first time an engineer has had the opportunity to plan a pavement with motor traffic as a sole consideration.

Pioneering in Designs.

"In conventional city street work," he said, "the engineer must consider the uses of abutting property. The elevated highways will be separated from abutting property. In the lighting, the city engineer must consider pedestrians. There will be no pedestrians on the elevated roads.

"So in these suggested designs we are pioneering. The essence of our design is the use of an open grid pavement, probably of steel, light in weight so that foundations and supports can likewise be light. The arrangement of the ramps is such that four lanes will always be available for continuous high speed travel, free from parking, free from cars slowing for turns, and, of course, free from any stops for cross-traffic or for pedestrians.

DOCTOR AND WIFE VISIT FAIR AGAIN AFTER 40 YEARS

Dr. Daniel N. Brown, a dentist of Crystal Lake, Ill., and his wife, Lilie, visited the Fair yesterday, Chicago day, forty years to a day after their visit to the Columbian Exposition. On that day they rode the Ferris wheel. Yesterday they rode on the sky ride and visited the observation platform.

Dr. Brown is 87 years old and is still in active practice. A son, T. M. Brown, of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, Chicago, accompanied his parents on their tour of the Fair grounds.

Glen Sees Fair from Fish's Point of View

Glen Whittle, 8 years old, 3250 Beach avenue, and Bob Daughman, 12 years old, 3256 Hirsch street, a fellow pupil at the Lowell grammar school, went to the Fair yesterday. In the rear of the Electrical group they discovered the communications pool. Glen conceived the idea of spearing some gold fish with a souvenir cane, supporting his body on a second cane. The support gave way and Glen joined the goldfish. Police pulled him out. Dr. Frank W. Baylor gave him some medicine and sent his clothes to the cleaners.

CROWDS THRONG STATE ST. FOR BIRTHDAY FETE

Centennial Festival Gets Under Way.

Simultaneous with the celebration of Chicago day at A Century of Progress, State street yesterday inaugurated its centennial festival. Crowds thronged the shops and stores along the famed thoroughfare to take advantage of the special features each establishment presented.

No special program was presented yesterday because of the festivities at the Fair, but this morning brings "Home Needs" day, the first of a series of special bargain days that will continue through the week. In mid-morning, a parade of floats carrying the prettiest models from the stores will formally announce the beginning of these special days.

Feminine Fashion Day Tomorrow.

Everything for the home will be given particular attention today. Tomorrow, "Women's Apparel" day will be set aside for the glorification of feminine fashions.

The national observance of Columbus day on Thursday also brings "Children's day" in State street with the attention turned to clothing and furnishings for young America. Friday is "State street" day, a general merchandising event, and Saturday is "Men's" day. The fiesta closes Saturday night.

Tomorrow is expected to prove a high point of the week when at noon a mammoth cake, bearing 100 candles, will be cut at State and Madison streets, the "busiest corner in the world." Mayor Kelly will make the principal address. Gov. Horner will attend if his duties at Springfield do not prevent. Other scheduled speakers include Gordon Strong, chairman of the board of the State Street council, and Walter Gregory, its president.

Drama and Fun.

This noonday celebration will have its moments of drama and fun. Drama will be present in a minute of silence when the crowds will pay respect to the memories of the founders of the street, the men whose pioneering culminates in this celebration of 100 years of successful merchandising.

Also especially honored will be a group of veterans who have been employed on State street for 40 years, since the Columbian exposition in 1893. These veterans will surround the huge cake. Breaking the frosting from the inside will be a pretty girl chosen as the spirit of State street.

The large stores will have relics and exhibits on display commemorating the rise of the street from a muddy trail of a century ago to the famed thoroughfare it is today. From this modest beginning in the history of barter and exchange, the street has grown to where it does almost a half billion dollar business annually.

ROYAL SCOT WILL LEAVE FAIR FOR WEST COAST TOUR

The Royal Scot, famous British railroad train, which has been on exhibition at the World's Fair, will leave the Union station at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow to start an exhibition tour to the Pacific coast and through Canada. Exposition officials released the train before the close of the Fair to make the tour possible.

The Royal Scot will travel along the Burlington railroad line as far as Mendota, Ill., accompanied on parallel tracks by a Burlington train representing the Aristocrat. Railroad officials denied that the trains, both noted for speed, would engage in a race. The Aristocrat representative train will accompany the Royal Scot because the Royal Scot and the original Aristocrat have been neighbors during the Fair exhibition.

Arriving at Mendota, the Royal Scot will transfer to the Illinois Central system and proceed to Bloomington. It will eventually proceed to California, up the coast to Vancouver, B. C., and eastward through Canada to Montreal where it will be loaded on a ship for return to England on Nov. 22. More than 2,000,000 Fair visitors inspected the Royal Scot.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Fifteen thousand persons visited the Art institute's $75,000,000 exhibit, Sunday, a record for a single day's attendance. Institute officials said that more persons had visited the exhibit than had attended any other similar collection in the world. The institute will hold a "free" day on Monday, Oct. 16, for jobless men and women on the county relief rolls.

"Indian villages," the World's Fair's "all-American show" organized by Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole, anthropologist of the University of Chicago, and J. F. Cornelius, started the week by breaking paid attendance records for all Exposition attractions that are not nudist. In twelve hours the tribes from as nearby as the Wisconsin dells and from as far away as Arizona performed their songs, dances, and rites to 15,000 spectators.

The Columbian exposition day ceremonies in the court of the Hall of Science tomorrow will be preceded by a parade of the members of the world's Columbian guard. The guard was similar to the uniformed guides at the 1933 fair. They wore the uniforms of the French gendarmes and carried a short sword. The guards will parade in the Court of Honor and the Avenue of Flags, starting at 11 a. m., headed by the U. S. Marine band.

Only 22 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

Commander T. G. W. Settle will probably make his second stratosphere flight attempt from the Fair either tomorrow or Thursday night, officials announced yesterday. Commander Settle, who is in Akron completing preparation for the flight, yesterday telegraphed Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the U. S. Marine corps, assigned to the Fair, that weather conditions tomorrow or Thursday probably would be favorable for the flight. Maj. Fordney, who is in charge of the mathematics exhibit at the Fair and an aid to Capt. Frank L. Roberts, naval attaché at the Fair, may accompany Commander Settle on the flight.

The Lord's prayer, with a music setting arranged by Josephine Forsyth, composer, poet and vocalist, will be included on the church hour program every Sunday morning hereafter over the public address system at the Fair, it was announced yesterday. The music was written on the occasion of her marriage to Phillip A. Myers in 1928.

The boats of the lagoon fleet are being sold, singly and in lots of two or more. The entire fleet is to be sold on or before Oct. 31. They are the property of the Progress Amusement corporation, with offices at the Fair.

An oil painting of the late Mayor Cermak, the work of the Baroness Violet Beatrice Wenner, was unveiled yesterday in the Illinois Host building. At the ceremony were Mayor Kelly, Gov. Horner, and Senator Richey V. Graham, a son-in-law of the late mayor.

Mayor Kelly yesterday presented Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, with the new Chicago flag, carrying three stars to signify the three major events that helped shape Chicago's destiny. The flag consists of two blue and three white bars, with three red stars in the center bar. The blue stripes signify the two branches of the Chicago river, the white stripes the three sides of Chicago, and the three stars commemorate the fire of 1871, the Fair of 1893 and the Fair of 1933.

Miss Marie Andersen, 22 years old, 5135 Cullom avenue, was crowned queen of the fur industry yesterday in the Floating theater at A Century of Progress. After the coronation ceremoney Miss Andersen, a pretty brunette, and her maids of honor were escorted to the Streets of Paris, where they will model furs in a style review.

Paid attendance figures for A Century of Progress Exposition and for corresponding periods at the 1893 Columbian Exposition follow:

Sunday, Oct. 8, 1933	304,568
Sunday, Oct. 8, 1893	88,056
Total, including Oct. 8, 1933 [135 days]	18,754,533
Total, including Oct. 8, 1893 [161 days]	15,792,321

The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

SUGGEST PLANS TO AVERT SLUMP AFTER THE FAIR

Three proposals to prevent a slump in business after the close of A Century of Progress were considered yesterday by the special committee on business stimulation of the Association of Commerce, meeting in the Palmer House. This committee is working on plans for a permanent use of the World's Fair grounds, but had no report to make at yesterday's session.

One of the proposals submitted was to hold a city-wide Toy day in all business districts on Nov. 18. With this special day would be inaugurated the regular Christmas shopping season, a fortnight ahead of the usual date. Advocates of this day said it would insure employment for many extra sales clerks, and suggested that parades be held, similar to those of the New Orleans Mardi Gras.

Another proposal was to have Thanksgiving day set ahead one week. The business men at the meeting expressed the opinion that most shoppers look upon that day as the real start of winter and that an advance in the date would aid in boosting winter sales and employment. A third proposal was to make this year's Armistice day celebration a two day event.

THOUSANDS GO TO RELIGIOUS SERVICE AT FAIR

Religious services were held yesterday at 11 a. m. in the court of the Hall of Science in conjunction with Chicago day at the Fair. With George W. Dixon as master of ceremonies, some of the most prominent church members in Chicago conducted the services before a crowd of several thousand.

The service opened with the congregation singing "How Firm a Foundation," following which invocation was given by Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary. The principal address, "My Chicago," was given by the Rev. Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, central church, Chicago. Benediction was pronounced by Bishop Callistos of the Greek Orthodox church.

SUE TO PROTECT 'VENUS ON HALF SHELL' AT FAIR

Caesar Zwaska, one of the owners of the concession, "Venus on the Half Shell," in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair, filed a petition in the Superior court yesterday to restrain city and Fair police from forcing the model who poses as Venus to put on her clothes. The bill, drawn by Attorney Norman Becker, asserted that only the image of the model is seen and this is reduced by mirrors to a size of seven inches. The bill also charges that the arrest of the model on Oct. 4, was damaging to the reputations of Zwaska and of Tony Sarg, the artist.

State Street's 100th Anniversary week

THE Palmer House Shops in the World Famous Palmer House have assembled in the Arcade-entrances, State, Wabash and Monroe a vitally interesting exhibit in celebration of State Street's 100th Anniversary.

We urge you to see the elaborate and exciting pictorial displays of street scenes, with miniature figures that graphically portray Old Chicago. Actual Nineteenth Century vehicles may be seen in the Arcade. A series of exhibits, composed of scores of household and personal items, from the collection of pioneer Chicago businesses, tell the story of a century. This presentation is assembled for your enjoyment at the Palmer House Shops.

The Palmer House Shops are a unit of sixty separate, intimate shops that serves the needs of the individual. As a special measure of celebration this unit is offering an unusual variety of merchandise at extraordinarily low prices. Each shop bears the acceptance and the recognition of the Palmer House.

THE PALMER HOUSE SHOPS

Prophecy and Fact

POTTER Palmer, Chicago pioneer, founder of the vast Palmer Estate, was first a merchant, then a hotel man, as a part of his vast interests. In 1862 Mr. Palmer was the sole owner of the largest mercantile house in the Northwest. It was his business that was later purchased by Marshall Field and Levi Leiter. It was he who first fore-saw the possibilities of the muddy road which was later to become State Street. He bought land, built on it. Today, State Street is a continuous exposition of the merchandise of the world.

•

THE Palmer House Shops perpetuate the fundamentals and ideals of Potter Palmer. His fundamentals of business relationship, his principles of merchandising are recognized today — unchanged, unaltered. In fulfilment of his vision, in realization of his prophecy that one day State Street would become the world's greatest retail market, this shops unit was designed as part of the Palmer House.

•

WE want you to become acquainted with the Palmer House Shops. We want you to know the intimacy of shopping without being rushed, without being urged to buy. Here you will see the newest in style and recognize the genuine desire to serve.

•

SHOP leisurely. Think of the convenience of driving up, stepping out, and having someone care for your car while you take your time about shopping. A low rate parking service relieves you of the trouble of parking your car.

•

PAUSE in your day's shopping and enjoy the marvelous food at reasonable prices served at any one of the five famous Palmer House restaurants.

•

GERMANY JAILS COUPLE; DANCED TO NAZI ANTHEM

Seized During Playing of Horst Wessel Song.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—A young couple were placed under five days' protective arrest at Tettnang, Baden, today on a charge that they had "danced vulgarly when the Horst Wessel anthem [official Nazi song] was played in a restaurant." At the same time, the names of four farmers were published in a "pillory of shame" at Wittmund, East Frisia, for refusing to contribute to the winter relief fund.

Restaurant keepers in Baden and Wuerttemberg have been warned they will be placed under "protective arrest" if they serve a guest with more than a 17 cent dinner on the first Sunday of the month. Authorities declare the serving of a meal costing more than 17 cents per person is a "sabotage of the Sunday sacrifice." Money saved from this "sacrificial" dinner is turned over to the winter relief fund.

Permit Women to Work.

Meanwhile, it was announced that women workers will not be stopped from earning their living. Teachers, nurses, saleswomen, typists and secretaries will be allowed to retain their posts "for which they are beter suited than men." Elimination of women from academic posts is aimed to provide openings for young men to enable them in turn to provide homes for their wives.

Jobs were found by 274,000 unemployed during the month of September, it was announced today, reducing the idle total to 4,850,000. This figure represents a decline by 2,237,000 since Chancellor Hitler's government assumed power.

Improvement in the labor market in September was especially marked in industrial centers and was attributed to government measures to combat unemployment and stimulate new investments in machinery. Unemployment was also reduced through the "voluntary labor service." Industries, and farmers also were compelled to hire additional men.

Public works programs now authorized involve an expenditure of around one billion dollars. Three-fourths of this sum is devoted to highway construction and special auto roads.

Shift Arson Trial to Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 9. — (AP) — Dramatic possibilities were seen tonight as the Supreme court transferred its deliberations on the reichstag building fire from Leipzig to the scene of the famed arson. The third week's sessions open tomorrow in the charred building where Marinus van der Lubbe will be asked to rehearse his movements on the night of the fire.

The sittings will be held in the undamaged reichsrat chamber since the plenary hall still is being restored.

Of those hitherto examined, Van Der Lubbe, a dutchman, alone appeared to hold the key to the mystery of the blaze.

Will a slip on the youth's tongue reveal the tantalizing secret?

Will a sudden realization of his hopeless position overcome him?

Will desperation put life into his grotesque, puppet like figure, replacing his resignation with a fighting spirit?

Will a gush of memories at the scene of the deed tear down the barrier of his unnatural restraint?

Youth Remains Unmoved.

Exhortations and curses failed to move the Dutch youth last week when defense counsel, prodded on by the fist shaking, Bulgarian communist defendant, Georgi Dimitroff, demanded that Van Der Lubbe "tell the whole truth." But all the judge succeeded in extracting was a monosyllabic denial that he had had accomplices. The court, however, asserted there was little plausibility to such a statement.

Two young communists, Otto Woythe, 19, and Willy Rochow, 18, today were sentenced to death for killing a Hitler youth, Fritz Schmitzberg, in the Grunewald woods near Berlin, March 16.

Meanwhile, the government confiscated the property of the Jewish banker, Hugo Simon, who is abroad. A short communique observed that Simon "had a close contact with the Socialist and communist deputies even in 1918-19." Simon was an art patron and also supported Leftist magazines.

GERMANY WINS POINT IN FIGHT AT GENEVA OVER JEWISH EXILES

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—German representatives, agreeing with a league of nations assembly subcommittee, decided today that a high commissioner on Jewish refugees should make reports to a governing body representing interested nations and not to the league of nations.

This solution meets Germany's objection that there should be no regular league management of the Jewish refugee problem.

Among those suggested as high commissioner is Nicholas Roosevelt, former United States minister to Hungary.

A subcommittee of the political commission, drafted a report on minority peoples, with Germany voting against a provision stipulating that no racial group whatsoever shall be excepted from the equitable treatment guaranteed in the minority treaties. The Germans said the Jews in their country should not be singled out as especially entitled to minority treatment. The high commissioner is to deal with Jewish refugees as a social problem.

ITALY TO STATION 20,000 TROOPS CLOSE TO BORDER

ROME, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Reports published abroad that the number of Italian troops in the Alps will be tripled were received in military circles here today with the comment that they refer to a transfer of the army corps command from Verona to Bolzano, in the Tyrolean Alps at the end of August.

Preparations are now being made to receive 20,000 men in this corps, which will be permanently located at Bolzano.

The transfer order coincided with a tense Austro-German situation, military leaders said, but execution of the order coincides with winter maneuvers.

POWERS RELENT; READY TO GRANT GERMANY ARMS

Political Problems Only Barrier to Accord.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—The wave of indignation which has been rippling around the various allied capitals over Germany's demand for rearmament produced no visible effect when the steering committee of the disarmament conference met here this afternoon to clear the way for the general commission of the conference to resume work next Monday.

In fact, the 21 members of the committee seemed to accept tacitly the principles of the German claim when they allotted the rest of the week for private conversations to settle the two great outstanding political problems in the way of a disarmament convention. These questions are conceded to be that of sanctions and of just what defensive arms the Germans will be entitled to possess.

Conversations Open Today.

The conversations will open tomorrow and continue until Saturday. There will be another meeting, which doubtless will be secret.

Following the meeting of the steering committee, Dr. Rudolf Nadolny, German delegate, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, went into a huddle in a corner of the lobby.

The main job, which must be accomplished before next Monday, is to bring these two together. Contrary to general belief, it is not the German demand for increased armament that is the principal obstacle in the path of a Franco-German understanding. In reality the Germans were virtually promised—in secret naturally—that they would be allowed a sort of "token rearmament" before Baron Konstantin von Neurath, their foreign minister, left Geneva a couple of weeks ago.

The intransigeant counter proposal sent out by Berlin to London and Rome threw a chill over the friendly attitude which the British, American and Italian delegations had manifested toward the German thesis. Consequently Nadolny was subjected yesterday to stiff questioning by both Capt. Anthony Eden, British undersecretary for foreign affairs, and Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large.

German Delegate Conciliatory.

The British, it is understood, inquired pointblank whether Germany really wanted a disarmament convention or not, and indicated that if she did it would be necessary to furnish some token of Germany's good faith.

Today Nadolny was meek and conciliatory. Behind the closed doors of the bureau session, it is understood he informed his colleagues that Germany is anxious for an early arms convention.

The British and Americans now seem to be thawing out toward Germany. They are ready to grant some real concessions. In the first place, the trial period which the French are insisting upon before real disarmament starts will be shorn of all the moral odium attached to it and will be disguised in some way to avoid hurting German sensibilities.

There also is talk of reducing it from four to three years.

Want Program from France.

Regarding the second stage of disarmament, the British and Americans are agreed that the French will have to submit a detailed and substantial program of weapons which they intend to scrap and just when they intend to scrap them.

As regards effectives, the reichswehr [regular army] together with all armaments it now possesses will be doubled. Germany also will be allowed some additional weapons not authorized by the Versailles treaty, but not defined in the future convention as offensive weapons. This means artillery and perhaps small tanks.

As far as sanctions go, no progress has been made. The British and Americans have agreed to refuse any sanctions, but the French are still holding out for the right to intervene by force if Germany should rearm secretly.

Britain to Send Foreign Chief.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The British cabinet at a special session today decided to send Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, to Geneva to attempt to end the disarmament deadlock. The British policy is decidedly pro-French and in agreement with the United States, whose unofficial warning that Germany would be held to the disarmament clauses in the separate German-American peace treaty was widely quoted in Europe's press.

Simon is expected to leave for Geneva either tomorrow or Wednesday. The cabinet today gave him full power to deal with the critical situation as he sees fit. Great Britain is still hopeful that the French scheme for arms supervision for Germany will be accepted at the conference.

Promises Investigation Into Nazi Propaganda in U. S.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Samuel Dickenstein, chairman of the committee on immigration of the house of representatives, announced here today that he would start an investigation next week into pro-Nazi propaganda in the United States.

AUSTRIA STRIKES AT SOCIALISTS; BANS NEWSPAPER

Singing League Is Also Suppressed.

VIENNA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The government of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today struck two blows against the Austrian Socialists with the suppression of the Socialist Singing league and of the Socialist newspaper, Arbeiter Zeitung.

The Arbeiter Zeitung was virtually outlawed in a decree promulgated by Emil Fey, vice chancellor. The decree prohibits street sales of the newspaper and all other deliveries except through the postoffice. In view of the size of the edition and postoffice limitations such a regulation would mean at least a 24 hour delay in the delivery of each edition. The postoffice also assessed a double postage charge on all copies of the newspaper.

Deny Strike Rumors.

The action against the Singing league was taken because of its meeting yesterday in the Vienna stadium, where 50,000 members heard Burgomaster Karl Seitz ridicule the administration of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Socialist leaders tonight disclaimed any intention of calling a general strike at present in reprisal for the government's actions. They voiced suspicion of such rumors as emanating from quarters seeking justification for a new drastic move against the labor unions.

An unconfirmed report was circulated here today that the family property of the former reigning house of Hapsburg was to be returned by official decree. The property was seized by the Austrian government in 1919. The monarchist party newspaper, Staatswehr, today made a public appeal to Dollfuss to abandon uncertainty and declare himself chancellor of a Hapsburg monarchy.

Clear Assassin Suspects.

Two Carinthian hotel men held in connection with the attempt to assassinate Chancelor Dollfuss were cleared today of all suspicion that they had foreknowledge of the attempted slaying.

The mother, stepfather, and six other associates of Rudolf Dertil, who confessed firing the two shots which slightly wounded the little chancellor, remained in custody.

The hotel men were questioned after authorities said it had been disclosed that they spoke with the chancellor last Tuesday a moment before he was shot.

Hitlerite Killed in Clash.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Flaming swastikas on mountain sides near Meyerhofen had a fatal aftermath early today when the Nazis who lighted them clashed on the top of a cliff with home guardsmen who were assisting armed policemen in rounding up the Nazis. One Hitlerite was killed and one guardsman wounded.

HELP THE BAKER HELP THE FARMER—AND YOU HELP YOURSELF

BAKERS WELCOME THIS OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE

CITY jobs will be more plentiful when agriculture—the Nation's biggest consumer of city-made goods—is able to buy.

But how can the farmer buy unless he can sell his produce at a profit?

That's the purpose of the new tax on processing wheat. To give people who live on farms—millions of men, women and children—the money they need to buy city-made goods—to put city men back to work.

And a large part of this first "Business Revival Tax" must be collected by the baker to be passed on to the farmer. This is the law of the "New Deal."

The baker serves us all. Let us recognize his efforts to maintain the low price of nature's most economical food.

Let us remember that all of the tax on processing wheat goes back to the farmer, soon to return for city-made goods—thus the circle will be complete.

So let's eat two more slices of bread every day and help the baker help the farmer and help our jobless neighbors. Workshops will open when the farmer begins to buy.

STATE TO CLOSE CASE AGAINST STEVENS TODAY

Seeks to Show Insolvency of Hotel.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

With evidence intended to show that the Hotel Stevens was insolvent in 1931 when officials of the Illinois Life Insurance company, now in receivership, loaned the hotel $1,600,000 of the insurance company funds, the state will rest its case this morning against Ernest J. Stevens, who is on trial in Judge Michael Feinberg's court on a charge of embezzlement.

The defense of Stevens, former vice president of the insurance company and manager of the hotel, will begin at once and last about three days. The general character of the defense, according to Attorney Franklin J. Stransky, is that there was no intent to defraud, that the loan was made to protect the policyholders on their big investment already made in the hotel, and that the transfer of funds called illegal and criminal by the state was a mere matter of bookkeeping. Stevens, who had a confident manner in the courtroom, is expected to go on the witness stand.

Secretary Is a Witness.

The trial proceeded toward its close yesterday in an atmosphere of somnolence, due to the financial nature of the testimony and the impersonal nature of the records presented. It was enlivened for a moment in the late afternoon, however, when George F. Raymer, secretary of the Stevens hotel, former auditor for the insurance company and personal secretary to James W. Stevens, father of the defendant, declared from the witness stand that the state's attorneys had tried to intimidate him.

He was recalled to the stand by the prosecutors, John O'Hara and Earl C. Hurley, for questioning about the minutes of a meeting of the board of directors of the life insurance company.

Questions by Prosecutor.

"Isn't it a fact that during the noon hour in the hall you told me about the meeting?" asked Mr. O'Hara.

"I told you about the minutes. I do not actually know whether the meeting was held or not," was Raymer's reply. He was then questioned as follows:

Q.—How much did James W. Stevens borrow from the Illinois Life during 1931? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Was it a million? A.—No.

Attorney Stransky took over the witness.

Q.—Is James W. Stevens ill from a stroke now? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you not say that you had borrowed a large amount of money from the insurance company for James Stevens, but had signed your name to the note, and with James Stevens unable to defend himself aren't you trying to palm off these notes on a defenseless man? A.—No.

Charge Intimidation Effort.

Q.—Did the state's attorneys threaten to indict you if you did not tell what they wanted? A.—They tried to intimidate me.

Q.—You knew that James W. Stevens was helpless to deny your statements? A.—I don't think he would.

Q.—Did you sign an immunity waiver? A.—Yes.

Arthur B. Hall, receiver for the Stevens hotel, testified that the hotel had unpaid real estate taxes of $242,222 for 1929, $442,738 for 1930, and $573,553 for 1931 at the time he took charge. The quick assets were $6,000 in treasury bonds, $6,000 in Liberty bonds, and a small amount of cash. An appraiser had been hired at a cost of $25,000, he said, to revalue the hotel for tax reduction purposes.

Broker to Be Called.

Prosecutors O'Hara and Hurley said that the state's final step before closing its case today would be to call Edward Cooley, a broker, who is said to have handled the sale of $600,000 in Liberty bonds for the Stevens hotel after they had been transferred to the hotel by the insurance company.

The annual report of the life insurance company for Dec. 31, 1931, was presented in evidence to show, among other things, that the company had $792,791 in cash on hand and in banks on that date. The company subsequently went into receivership.

Clarence C. Walker, auditor for the state's attorney, who has spent many months on the books of the hotel and the insurance company, where the financial interests of the Stevens family were interlocked, testified that there was an entry of $711,417 cash in the books of the insurance company which was predated, showing cash the company did not have.

James W. Stevens, who was chairman of the board of the insurance company, which had elaborate offices on Lake Shore drive, loaned $522,000 to the insurance company in an effort to strengthen its financial position in 1931, Mr. Walker testified on cross-examination by Attorney Stransky.

A Little on the Subject of Writing New Pages into Old Histories

There has been quite a lot of excitement recently emanating from Washington and reverberating throughout the land.

We have a Donald Richberg saying in effect over the radio that "it's foolish to talk about a future revolution: we are in the midst of a revolution now."

We have the Whaley-Eaton Service, a confidential news service to business men, saying in one of their bulletins regarding affairs in Washington: "It is a wartime Capital, as men swarm in the hotels and Government corridors, trying to find out what it is all about and what will happen to them and their interests. Many seem faintly to grasp that a revolution is in progress, perhaps the more real because it is under cover of regularity."

And so the news and the noise of this revolution, if you want to call it such, goes racing over the ether and the wires as a startling event, when all that President Roosevelt has done is to put some pep into an economic and social change that has been going on now for over a dozen years.

It somehow brings back the old story of the Dramatic Coach who tried to pep up the Yale Dramatic Club. You remember, this Coach had a slow, good-natured football player for the hero of his play. At the climax of the play when the pistol went off and the hero was shot, this good natured chap with a grin on his face would invariably drawl out, "My—God—I'm—S-h-o-t."

Something had to be done to pep him up. So, on the opening night the Coach loaded the pistol with pepper and salt. The climax came. The pistol went off. The hero started his usual, "My—God—I'm—S-h-o-t." Then, suddenly clapping his hands to the seat of his pants, he yelled out,

"Oh, my God, I am shot."

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

This revolution, if you want to call it such, has been going indolently on for a long time. Apparently all Coach Roosevelt has done is to stand in the wings and load his pistol with pepper and salt. But that was enough. For good-natured business America has been running around ever since with its hand on the seat of its trousers and yelling its head off.

As a matter of fact, this particular revolution that we are all so excited about was really started by Henry Ford (or at least he was one of the first to start it) over ten years ago.

Ford began paying higher wages than he had to—higher even than his workers ever hoped to get.

It is hard to think of any greater revolutionary act than that in a capitalistic era. If he had tried this even twenty years earlier, some of his friends or relatives would have had him put away where he couldn't do any more harm.

But Ford was making too many automobiles. He had to have wider markets. He hoped by doing this, and persuading others to do it, to create those wider markets. And others saw the idea, and followed. Before long, literally thousands of substantial manufacturers were complacently accepting and even proposing higher wages and shorter hours.

Here at True Story Magazine we saw all this and recorded it in pages similar to this years ago.

Mass Production had become the new phenomenon in American affairs. Mass Production axiomatically had to have Mass Consumption. And the only place you can get Mass Consumption is from the Masses.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Since sixty-eight per cent of the people of America belong to our wage-earning masses, so sixty-eight per cent of our Mass Production of America just had to go to those wage-earning masses. It couldn't go any place else.

When prices went down, wages went down. But the ratio of consumption remained the same. It couldn't be otherwise. Your moneyed classes didn't go in and buy fifty tooth brushes or fifty automobiles just to keep the mass production under way.

Now that we want more mass production, we propose to raise wages, shorten hours and put millions more people to work. Thus making our wage-earning masses even a greater market than ever before; and thus adopting the most revolutionary policy of all.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

But what are we to do? If we tried to go back to the old "economic aristocracy" which used to be our market, every member of that economic aristocracy would have to stand and buy new tooth brushes every ten seconds of the day every day in the year, just to keep up with our present tooth brush output. They would have to buy new razor blades every twenty seconds, new shirts or socks or underwear or collars or ties every five seconds and new automobiles at least every two months.

Their wives would be worse off. They would have to buy some kind of kitchen cleanser every two seconds, coffee every two seconds, stockings or shoes or undies every five seconds and dresses every three minutes at most.

The "dollar value" of any of these commodities before we had a mass wage-earner market is the best evidence of these facts.

So, you see we just had to have a revolution of some kind. But after all, revolutions are not bad, except for those who become shot. In fact, throughout all history, on the whole, they have been rather good—except for those who became shot. And, since in this one quite evidently nobody is going to become shot, why worry?

True Story Magazine with its great wage-earning mass of writers and readers can assure you that the overwhelming majority of the American wage earners are watching the progress of these changes intelligently, and are more than willing through ready expenditures to continue to be the great mass market you are looking for. "The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE CHURCH AND ITS LAYMEN IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

The new note of conservatism in the conclusions the Rock River annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church reached on political questions is attributed to the influence of laymen, admitted for the first time with a voice equal to the clerical. The Methodist conference has been taking a position as a church on public affairs not related to questions of church doctrine. The clergymen had given a radical direction to the official pronouncements of the church. Under the influence of the laymen this was decidedly toned down.

The clergy tended towards what might be regarded as uncompromising idealism. It led them to extreme declarations against capitalism, for rigorous control of morals, against national defense, and for a pacifism sacrificial if required. Idealists in the church may think that the lay influence was worldly and compromising, but it proceeded from men less familiar with the academy and the theological school and more in touch with realities as they encounter them day by day. They give more weight to the probabilities of human action and it may be without less wish that it might be otherwise.

Many clergymen may feel that adjustments are unworthy of sincere religious convictions and that compromise is not only a spiritual error but a fault preventing the attainment of what idealism holds attainable. Sincere laymen, on the other hand, realize that uncompromising doctrines and unrealistic idealism frequently destroy the usefulness of the persons so stubbornly committed.

If the church enters political action, an activity which is much questioned both by theory and experience, it enters a field of action in which moderate courses are dictated by the elements of nearly every controversy. Compromise is nearly always the wise course in reconciling opinions and in adjusting conditions to realities. It is a realization of them which the lay representatives have impressed upon the deliberations of the Methodist church. The clergy regard public affairs as a proper field for church activities. If such is to be the case the voice of the layman will be heard for property rights. The exuberance which works itself out in pranks and noise and clowning will be attributed to the carnival occasion, but the loss caused by destruction of property adds nothing needed to the celebrants' happiness and it is in this regard that a comparative few of the Legion members can bring down criticism upon the whole as an organization.

THE LEGION AT PLAY.

The American Legion is growing up, but years have not yet stamped sedateness upon the occasion of the annual convention. Following each convention there have been critics who deplored the conduct of the Legionnaires, even holding it up as scandalous and as a reflection upon the character of the veterans as an organization. Generally these critics had a point to make and for the most part it was against the demon rum. Inasmuch as all the conventions of the Legion have been held under the rule of Volstead, criticism could be directed against prohibition as justly as against anything else. A stunt value had been put upon extravagant use of intoxicants and conventions of all sorts had become occasions for the grand fling. It wasn't only the Legion which stepped aside in that direction.

Chicago doesn't have to be told that there was a good deal of carnival in the convention proceedings here. Nights were given over to high jinks resembling several very well thought out New Year's eve festivities. Nevertheless, the city is intact and hilarity was accepted in the spirit which prompted it. The convention brought to Chicago many thousands of still vigorous men from all parts of the country. In their post uniforms and regalia they still have a touch of the military shoulder and something reminiscent of military service about them. The majority of them conducted themselves as orderly American citizens, although celebrating the occasion which brought them together. They have a bond of certain common experiences and many of them a recollection of dangers encountered and survived. It is very probable that half as many younger men from the higher institutions of learning, celebrating some such thing as a football victory or assuaging the disappointment of a defeat, would have given the police twice as much trouble and have disturbed the sober citizen quite as much. Some of the Legionnaires accept the freedom of the city literally and go on the theory that they are not subjected for the time being to the decorum of the old home town. They are in the big city for all it is worth.

Probably in subsequent years, as maturity increases and as intoxicants have less circus meaning, the conventions of the Legion will have a quieter tone. Eventually the veterans will be going down the avenue with more use for their canes and with a slower step. If the counsel of the quieter and more reasonable Legionnaires would be accepted by the others, the Legion, even now, might be advised to emphasize a little more regard

EXCISE TAXES AND THE BOOTLEGGER.

Raymond Fosdick and Albert Scott, studying liquor control for the Rockefeller interest, suggest a probability which is the reverse of the one usually considered. It is the danger arising in a dry state to the orderly regulation of intoxicants in a wet state. For the most part it is the contrary which has been in mind, the probability that a state permitting the manufacture and use of alcoholic beverages would be the source of an illicit supply for one trying to prohibit all or any of them.

The Rockefeller investigators suggest that a state permitting and taxing the sale of beer, wine and spirits may find its regulations defeated by bootleg supply coming in from a supposedly dry state which hasn't controlled illicit production. Mention is made of the American bootleg trade in Canada and of the Canadian bootleg trade itself.

Bootlegging is older than prohibition and in its oldest form it is for the evasion of excise taxes. The rum smuggler was a historic figure of the English coast when importations were prohibited or heavily taxed. Moonshine was first known here in the mountain regions which could market corn in alcohol much more easily than shelled or on the cob. Canada's bootlegging is not caused by moral laws but by revenue imposts.

America, desiring to get rid of the illicit trade and the lawlessness which goes with it, should keep in mind that excessive taxes can cause the same conditions that existed under moral prohibition. The moderate course has everything to recommend it. If a buyer can satisfy his wants legally but has to pay too steep a tax he's a customer for the bootlegger again. The sale of these beverages can be made a revenue producer, but excessive taxation here as in all other things will diminish the return and increase the lawlessness.

PROF. EINSTEIN'S LIBERTY AND LAWS.

Dr. Einstein, a refugee in England from the Nazi rule in Germany, emerged from his retreat to speak in London. The meeting of Londoners was anti-Hitler, but Einstein was restrained and moderate in his comment. He spoke feelingly of the blessing of liberty, without which, as he said, the life of a self-respecting man was not worth living. But in taking account of the troubles of the world he said, "Without doubt these present economic difficulties will eventually bring us to the point where the balance between the supply and demand of labor and between production and consumption will be enforced by law."

Prof. Einstein is himself a victim of law which at least makes the pretense of doing what he believes will eventually be regarded as desirable everywhere. Hitler thinks, granting him some sincerity, that he can rescue Germany from the various misfortunes besetting the people. One of his ideas, and it is law, is to deprive one class of people of the influence, privilege and power which he thinks have been injurious to the country. Prof. Einstein, being one of this proscribed class, is unable to live in his own country. He has more sympathy with the law which prevails in Russia, where also men lose their liberties, and more if they are not favorably regarded by the men making the laws.

The kind of law Prof. Einstein thinks is required does not permit the liberty which he says cannot be sacrificed if life is to be endurable. It might be that he would like one set of laws administered by one set of men and be willing to submit himself to their impositions. But another man, quite as self-respecting and as much entitled to his liberty, might find the conditions oppressive beyond endurance. When a man seeks to retain liberty and at the same time to put human activities under a strict and comprehensive code such as all the dictators try, he is seeking the impossible. He cannot have them both. He must either cherish his liberty and be willing to accept responsibilities, even deprivations and perplexities, or he must bid his freedom farewell and make himself an obedient and responsive member of the controlled and regulated regiment.

The professor's ideals are hopelessly confused if he imagines he can have things both ways. His economic and political theories contradict his personal desires and he has found in one regimentation of men something he could not endure, although he thinks in the Russian regimentation he might be contented. Such laws as he discusses mean compulsion and obedience. Liberty dies between the covers of the code.

Editorial of the Day

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Chicago's Century of Progress—the magnificent Exposition which extends three miles or more along the lake front—has entered the final month of its existence, with a record of having attracted more than 17,000,000 visitors during the comparatively short period it has been in operation.

Tardy folk who have been intending to visit the Fair, but who have kept putting it off, now have but a few weeks left in which to translate their intention into action. October should and probably will prove one of the busiest, most interesting months in the Exposition's brief history. Late arrivals will not suffer by reason of their delay, provided they do not wait until the very last minute, when dismantling operations probably will begin.

A trip to A Century of Progress is more than worth while for every man, woman, and child who is in a position to attend. Probably not again during our generation, and certainly not for a decade or more, will there be anything to rival it in magnitude, interest, and beauty. Economic conditions of the next few years will preclude any more expositions for a long time to come.

The great majority of those who might go, yet who do not, probably will live to regret their lost opportunity. Educationally, historically, and from the standpoint of pleasure derived a visit to the Fair offers returns that compensate many times for the relatively slight expense and effort involved.

There still is time to go, but there won't be much longer. Better hurry!

PROOF FOR HIM.

He went boldly up to the box office at the big theater. "Have you three seats in the front row for the performance tonight?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the ticket girl with unconcealed eagerness.

He smiled pleasantly at her.

"In that case I don't want them," he said. "The show can't be much good."—Exchange.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE FURMAN of New York has overruled the application to remove Commissioner of Records Schorenstein on the allegation that the commissioner didn't know how to read and write. I approve the findings of the court. I have known college graduates and men so educated they could speak, read and write ten languages who didn't know enough to come in out of the rain. And I knew a doctor of philosophy who talked in Coptic and Sanscrit as easily as you do English, but who left a bottle of real Scotch with some friends not long ago with the strict injunction they weren't to open it until he got back. And when he got back—but why go into that? After all, ability to read and write isn't everything. Oh, not by a long shot.

MOONLIGHT LOVE.

Girt round with siren beauty,
She rides, the queen of night;
Bewitched, her glamour drinking,
The lake upheaves, and sinking,
Is steeped in eerie light;
Gold-fringed, the pine-wood surges,
And light with shadow merges
As wrong is merged in right.
Girt round with siren beauty,
She rides, the queen of night.

With charms more weird and stranger
Than those we deem divine,
Earth's darkness partly lighting,
And wrong things partly righting,
Her treacherous glories shine.
Peaks that are cragged in sunlight
The liquid glow of moonlight
Can soften and refine
With charms more weird and stranger
Than those we deem divine.

In words of tenderest passion
Love's moonlight vows are paid,
Their mystic fervor burning
In hearts where deathless yearning
An ecstasy has made.
While, spellbound, earth lies sleeping,
And she her watch is keeping
Who mingles light with shade,
In words of tenderest passion
Love's moonlight vows are paid.

When day destroys the glamour,
Then mourn your lone heart's fate;
Your wild, mysterious madness
Has dulled to aching sadness,
Your love has chilled to hate;
Those moonlight words were spoken
In daylight to be broken,
And lose their magic weight;
When day destroys the glamour,
Then mourn your lone heart's fate.

LORNA DOONE.

FRANCES PERKINS is going to receive a nineteen gun salute when she visits the Fair next Saturday. The amiable secretary was a little in doubt at first as to whether she should accept the salute as she is a stanch peace advocate. But why not have the nasty old cannon that will roar the salute tied up neatly in pink ribbons and American beauty roses? Or why not fire nineteen popguns? I'll have to talk to the pacifists about this.

ALL THIS TALK of an American Hitler as dictator of this country makes me nervous. There is only one man among us that looks like Hitler and that is Charley Chaplin. And if Charley becomes dictator he will tear down the American eagle from its proud eminence and substitute a custard pie. And in place of "E Pluribus Unum" Dictator Chaplin will substitute the words of that grand old Roman, J. Mortimer Caesar—"Giveam Swiftius Kickam in Pantsibus." And any guy that doesn't cultivate a Charley Chaplin mustache will be shot at sunrise. Hail, Charley Chaplin! Where do we go from here?

ANYHOW, THEY SWEAT BLOOD: AND DON'T WE ALL, THESE DAYS?

R. H. L.: Your mention of the police dog, today, brings instant response, for I love the dear little things just as you do! But when you mention the animule you would preferably lead around, Dick, please remember that the circus billed it as "the blood sweating behemoth of Holy Writ," not "of the River Nile." I have always thought this pious reference on the part of the circus publicity man was a master stroke—at once indicating his own familiarity with Holy Writ, and subtly the inference that his readers—even though interested in circus posters—could not fail to be interested in the blood sweating behemoth, even though (from a like high moral plane) the scantily clad equestrienne should be frowned on.

FREDDIGAGE.

AND DR. CHARLES MAYO says that before the next century has passed man's span of life will have leaped to 77 years. But if the price of groceries and pork chops and gasoline keeps going up and up, who the heck wants to live to be 77 years? I'd rather shuffle off early and then I wouldn't have to read any more about the nudists.

GOITER IN ART.

IN Chicago, as a part of the demonstration of progress in industry, science, and art, a collection of paintings is being shown at the Art institute. This institute is located without the Exposition grounds, but within the same park.

Certain rooms have been set aside for these paintings which were done in Europe and America but owned almost solely by Americans.

The arrangement of the pictures shows the progress of the art of painting from about the year 1300 to the present day—a stretch of six centuries. The people who go to the Art institute to see this exhibition are, in the main, those attending A Century of Progress. They are interested in the steps of progress in the past, the methods of the present, and the meaning of it all to the future. Some of them go to study form and colors, others the method of telling the story. Others are there in the pursuit of knowledge of other themes.

The writer knows nothing of color, form, or composition, or the methods of telling a story on canvas. He went to the institute trying to learn something of the human animal and how he compares with his successor of today.

Assuming that artists of the past picked models that were just about as representative as those picked today, that the proportion of freaks and monstrosities picked then was about that of today, and that the artists of then and now are about on a par as to their ability to draw what they saw—assumptions that need considerable defense—what can be learned about anatomy and physiology from studying these pictures?

The question is raised: Is goiter about to disappear? One gets the impression from studying pictures and statues done many centuries ago that practically every one had a goiter of some sort. A person is struck by this in very many pictures in this collection painted prior to 1600 and showing the neck in any detail. The disease must have been more prevalent among women than men, but much of it is shown in pictures of the latter. The goiter appears to have been of the exophthalmic type. The eyeballs are generally represented as rather overfilling the sockets. In fact, that is practically always true in the pictures of the women. In many of them the slit between the eyelids is very wide, proving exophthalmos beyond question.

Most of the pictures of the earlier periods represent mournful scenes taken from religious history. It is probable that the artists were trying to tell the story of much and prolonged weeping and, in doing so, made the eyeballs appear to be too large for the sockets. Therefore in many cases it is not certain whether the figures had exophthalmic goiter or had been weeping overmuch. But there are enough of them who certainly had exophthalmic goiter to establish that that disease must have been very prevalent hundreds of years ago.

WHITE FINGERS.

S. W. writes: I am 50 years old and twice last year two of my fingers became white and numb to the second joint. After about an hour they became spotted and finally normal. This week, after becoming thoroughly chilled from swimming, the same thing happened to all my fingers.

1. Is this an indication of some disease?
2. Is it infectious?
3. Do young people have this experience?

REPLY.

1. You appear to have a mild Raynaud's disease. You had better swim in a bathtub. The alternative is heating the ocean.
2. No.
3. It is at least very rare in adolescents.

BAD TASTE IN MORNING.

Mrs. M. M. writes: For quite some time I have been troubled with a bad taste in my mouth when awaking either from a nap or after a night's sleep. Every time I awake my mouth is full of mucus, making my breath smell bad. After I have rinsed my mouth and throat the odor disappears. I have tried taking physics in order to clean out my stomach and wonder if my nose or head could be causing the trouble.

REPLY.

I expect you sleep on your back, hold your mouth open, breathe through your mouth and snore. Train yourself to sleep on your side and with your mouth closed. Wearing a head stall helps to keep the mouth closed during sleep.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

W. B. A. writes: 1. Please describe the nature of the pain in the arm when one has angina pectoris. 2. Does the arm pain exist without pain in the chest or heart region?

REPLY.

1. As a rule, the pain is first felt behind the upper part of the breast bone. From this starting point it travels down the arm. Pains are not easily described. This one is very violent. It is accompanied by a sense of apprehension. The patient is afraid—afraid that something will break in the heart region, or that the beat will stop. There may be a feeling of weight as well as a pain and a feeling of anxiety.
2. Not often. The rule is generally the other way.

NRA Question Box

Following are typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers as given by the Chicago recovery council, which is aiding President Roosevelt's economic rehabilitation movement here. Other questions and their answers will be given in this column daily.

Q.—What are the hours for women laundry workers under the NRA?

A.—Until the laundry code is in effect, laundries flying the Blue Eagle have pledged themselves not to employ their women who are engaged in processing work more than 48 hours a week.

Q.—May gratuities such as tips be applied by an employer as part wages?

A.—Gratuities may in no case be applied by the employer to make up a part of the employé's wage.

Question—Will there be a code for proof readers, or will they come under the codes for the trades in which they are engaged?

Answer—There will be no separate code. Each proof reader will be governed by the hours and wages prescribed in the code for his own industry.

REPLY TO A NEW YORK TAUNT.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—"This couldn't happen in New York!" declared Mr. McCahey, former police commissioner of New York and a marcher with the New York City Legionnaires in yesterday's parade, as he stood between two crowds at Monroe street and Michigan avenue.

O, yes, it could, Mr. McCahey. It could happen any place when a scraggly 1,200 police are trying to keep back 1,000,000 people and won't be rough while doing it. The police were amiable, easy, and good natured yesterday. They didn't want to be rough, and tough, and sarcastic with a lot of Legionnaires and their families that were in the crowd, trying to see nice boys like you and your New York outfit marching along. The Chicago police, Mr. McCahey, when it is necessary, are tough cookies. Yesterday just wasn't one of those days. The spirit of Armistice was in the air.

And another thing, Mr. McCahey: New York's police outnumber ours four to one. New York would have had, at yesterday's parade, just about 6,000 police officers. You would have had them shoulder to shoulder. New York hasn't the wide, sweeping streets that our town has. Why, on your parade streets the building and the curb line are but a few feet apart. Enough people couldn't gather between the two aforementioned lines to worry any line of police officers that were placed six feet apart. You no doubt noticed our wide open, airy streets where millions can and yesterday one million humans did congregate. When the area is spread out like that you know it takes a lot of man power to police it.

At any rate, Mr. McCahey, when the crowd at different places did get a little anxious and wanted to get closer to you delectable and well groomed chaps from your city and other places, you noticed, if you were that much interested, that our "mounted" arrived instanter and cleared the streets in a very few minutes.

This is the second time in thirty years that a police line in Chicago has been broken, and yesterday's slight commotion can be excused. You know, Mr. McCahey, the police had to be lenient with the "Forty and Eights" and the Legionnaires that were in the crowd and wanted to get off a little excessive steam by doing a little pushing and crowding. It wasn't for meanness that they were doing those things, but just to get a little inborn mischievousness out of their systems. And, of course, they wanted to get as near as possible to the front lines.

TOM MCGRATH,
Lieutenant of Police.

P. S.—Mr. McCahey, am I right or did my eyes deceive me? Look at a newsreel of your NRA parade. Are those people that have swept over the streets, leaving a four foot space for the marchers, or are they just fly specks? T. M.

FROM AN I. C. PATRON.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—I wonder how many Illinois Central commuters agree with me on the following:

1. Trains marked "Special" that make all stops, including World's Fair stations, should be marked "Local" or, perhaps stretching a point, "Express." It is very annoying as well as misleading to those who work in the loop and have to report at a certain time. The trains seem to be running, however, for the sole benefit of Fair visitors, who have all day to reach their destination.

2. Signs on I. C. stations to the effect the running time to the loop is "eighteen, twenty, etc., minutes" would constitute a huge joke if the possible consequences were less serious.

3. It is to be hoped the I. C. officials are compiling new, fast service schedules for their old regular commuters, with plenty of seating capacity, to take effect Nov. 1.

MARCELINE SWEENEY.

WHAT'S NEWS!

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 29.—Why did you print a story on the front page of Thursday's issue about a policeman chasing a squirrel and print a scant half column on the thirteenth page about 18,000 people from a village of 60,000 [nearly one-third] visiting their neighbor, Chicago, and doing honor to its Century of Progress, putting on a wonderful pageant, amateur, of course, but with over 3,000 well drilled participants?

Had one of the horses drawing the covered wagon in the pageant sat up on its hind legs and socked the reporter in the nose, would we have made the front page?

A. F. VROOM.

BASEBALL FOR HIM.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—What is this game called golf?

When a man keeps out a friend with the remark, "Get some practice first," it is provoking.

It seems to me that any game that can be played by old men, fat women, and children don't need $5 practice for one who can handle a baseball bat and a billiard cue.

What makes one eligible to play? Is it a pair of baggy pants, fancy hose, and a nice necktie? Does one need a dozen clubs and a little skinny kid to trudge along to carry the load?

We see these practiced golf players every day posing pretty before the ball, swinging left and swinging right half a dozen times, and then socking the ball only a few yards.

What kind of a game is it that asks silence from the wind, the birds, and the gallery on the grass before the player begins his left and right swaying for a tap of the ball?

Give me baseball.

REVEAL TRANSIT LINES' PROGRAM FOR TRANSFERS

Work Already Started on Elevated Stations.

Details were learned yesterday of what the street car and elevated companies have done towards establishing universal transfers after the two transit systems are unified under the reorganization plan now going forward.

It was disclosed that the elevated lines have already enlarged many of their station facilities, and have purchased additional properties to expand other stations. It was also learned that the new form of transfer, which the surface lines have been using for the last year or so, was a step toward the universal transfer.

The new form, it was said, is likely to be used when the companies consolidate and the exchange of transfers between the two systems becomes a fact. A similar form of transfer would be adopted by the elevated lines.

Engineers Study Problems.

The problems of instituting the universal transfer are being studied by the technical staffs of the two transit systems. The engineers completed a study of transfer points and other aspects of the situation in 1931. Their work resulted in the adoption of the new street car transfer.

It was also learned that the transit interests have decided upon a gradual establishment of the universal transfer. It was said they will start out with a selected number of surface-elevated points and slowly add others as they are guided by experience. Transit officials assert that this gradual development is necessary for the wise expenditure of money on enlarged facilities.

The attitude of the transit companies is that there is no way of knowing in advance to what extent the universal transfer will be used by riders, nor which transfer points will become heavily congested and which little used. For this reason, they say, only experience will show them which rapid transit stations should have their facilities expanded and to what degree.

Hope to Avert Congestion.

It is by this careful procedure that bottle-neck congestion and confusion will be permanently averted and money saved, they assert.

Complete simultaneous establishment of the transfer privilege would be difficult from a financial point of view, it was said, and this obstable, according to officials, may delay the utilization of some important transfer points indefinitely.

The elevated company, it was said, cannot afford at present to bear the expense of some of the facilities which will be necessary. An illustration given is the Chicago avenue elevated station just west of Wells street, where a heavy exchange of passengers between the surface and elevated lines is expectd.

According to transit officials, it would produce great congestion at this station to have the transfer privilege without first adding two express tracks for through trains to and from the loop. The expense of purchasing additional property and adding the two tracks is estimated at $1,500,000, a sum, which officials say, the company is not able to expend at this time.

Kelker to Make Report.

Maj. R. F. Kelker, consulting engineer of the city council's local transportation committe, is to make a report to the committee, probably this week, on the universal transfer studies of the transit companies. The committe will meet again next week to discuss steps designed to speed up the unification of the two transit systems.

Attorney Walter L. Fisher is endeavoring to bring the financial interests of the street car and elevated companies into an agreement on the reorganization plan.

WAR IN DESERT

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Troops and munitions are being massed by King Ibn Saud, ruler of the Arabian Saudian kingdom, to defend the Asir and Nejran territories against the inroads of Sultan Yahya Imam of the Yemen.

Some skirmishes already have occurred in the last few weeks. King Ibn Saud is reported to be determined not to concede any of these territories to the Yemen.

King Ibn Saud, "the Puritan ruler of Arabia," is head of what he terms "the Arabian Saudian kingdom." The area includes the two holy cities of Islam, Medina, the burial place of Mahomet, and Mecca, the prophet's birthplace. Rebels in Asir province have marshaled forces against Ibn Saud many times, usually joined by other tribes.

ASSOCIATION TO PUSH CAR PLAN IS INCORPORATED

Incorporation of the Citizens' Transportation Association of Chicago, which was organized two weeks ago with the purpose of helping to hasten a settlement of the financial reorganization plan requisite to the merging of the street car and elevated transit companies, was announced yesterday by its president, Frank J. Durham, a La Salle street broker.

Membership of the organization is made up of holders of junior securities of both companies. The board of directors of the group are Mr. Durham, Fred D. Brett, president of the North Counties Hydro-Electric company; David A. Noyes, a stock broker; Arthur Stringer, an official of the Central Life Insurance Society Mutuel, and Howard L. Willett, vice president of the Willett company.

At a recent meeting the group condemned the 1930 Insull reorganization plan as "grossly unfair and discriminatory. The recent appointment of Attorney Walter L. Fisher to work out a modified plan was indorsed by the association. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has jurisdiction over the traction companies because they are in receivership, made the appointment when protective bond committees could not reach an agreement.

Indians Go on Warpath in Mexico; American Slain

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Newspaper dispatches from Guadalajara tonight said an American, William Helmer Lane, and two Mexicans were killed Saturday near Palo Alto, Nayarit, by 43 Coras Indians staging a local political uprising. The municipal president of the town of Huajicori was arrested, charged with instigating the uprising, and a strong detachment of soldiers was sent to round up the Indians.

U. S. WILL REJECT BRITAIN'S 10 PCT. WAR DEBT OFFER

Acheson Hopes Report of Proposal Is Untrue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Unless the British war debt negotiators make some offer more attractive than the 10 per cent lump payment that has been rumored, the discussions, which start tomorrow, are as good as closed already, Dean G. Acheson, undersecretary of the treasury, indicated today.

Undersecretary Acheson, who is to meet Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British delegate, and Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, at 11 a. m. tomorrow, said that he hoped reports emanating from London about a 10 per cent offer or flat refusal were false.

Sees Debts Bar World Recovery.

Although he is in direct charge of the American case under the negotiations, Mr. Acheson revealed today that President Roosevelt intends to keep close control over the direction of the conversations.

Sir Frederick tomorrow is expected to repeat to Acheson the general British position already set forth in notes last June, arguing that England has not the ability to pay on the present basis and that the war debts are retarding world recovery.

No definite proposal from the British will be laid before Mr. Acheson until Wednesday or later, according to present plans. Acheson said today he had been given no hint of what the British intend to offer.

When the proposal is made he will have to take it to the President, Acheson declared. He explained that he will have to call upon the President "freely and often" for instructions. If the British have any definite program, it is expected to be for a small lump sum settlement. Acheson indicated today, however, that unless the sum is larger than the 470 millions mentioned in London dispatches the discussions are as good as over already. He called the offer "ridiculously small."

Series of Token Payments.

A second possibility is agreement to a series of token payments for the duration of the depression, with the basic question of debt revision left until later. Although less satisfactory in the long run, this eventuality is considered more acceptable and more probable of adoption by congress, especially if it is accompanied by trade concessions.

Flat refusal of the British to pay, which would mean immediate death to the negotiations, according to Acheson, is not anticipated. Acheson said that England has been "a good debtor," and was expected to continue in this rôle.

YOUR HOME SPEAKS

"You have neglected me for some time.

"This is not complaint, for I know what merciless problems you have had to face. Groceries come first, of course, and clothing; and I have loyally kept silent.

"You have noticed with embarrassment the many things which cry for attention—the tables look their age; some of the chairs are weak and creaky; the grand old couch has open wounds; and some of the rugs are threadbare. Also some of my curtains and drapes have been laundered to a frazzle, and in other respects I'm distressingly out of date.

"I can hold in no longer. It is my duty to speak, now.

"Right now, still at a moderate cost, you can dispose of me as a problem for years to come.

"I can be hospitable, of course, in my old worn-out things; but you'll feel better and so will I, if I am fresh and new, attractive and interesting.

"So concentrate now on me—not just on my account, but on your own. For I am a part of you, as you are part of me. I am the symbol of everything you have, and love, and work for.

"Now is the time—my time!"

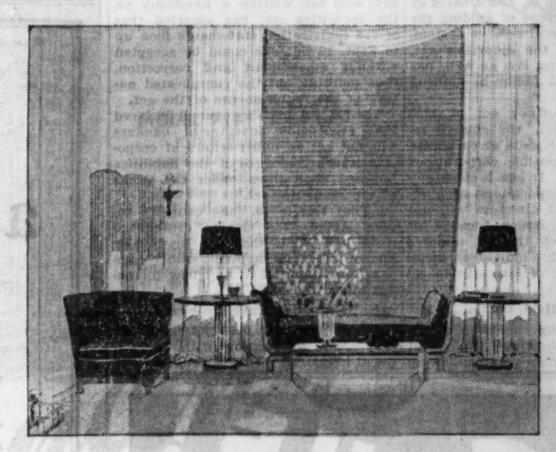
TRADITION HOUSE—You'll see here Tradition Furniture as it should be shown—a background in the best possible taste. You'll be impressed by the little touches here and there that are in direct style relation to the furniture itself.

Tradition Furniture is a delightful union of old and new. Famous Period designs are adapted to today's scheme of things, through the use of modern fabrics and color schemes.

We prize the high reputation of our Tradition Furniture Department.

Tradition Furniture is our own creation. No more need be said as to its quality. 8th Floor, North, State.

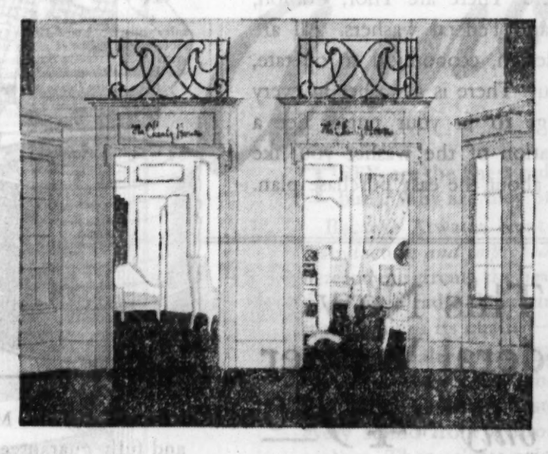


MODERN HOUSE AND BUDGET HOUSE—Here are startling beauty, unerring good taste; a miniature Century of Progress transformed into comfortable, livable homes. You feel like taking off your things and saying, "Home at last."

In the Budget House every item is moderately priced; shows what can be done with a modest budget.

A good many new homes will be established this Fall—young couples just starting, and older ones starting over again. Here is the ideal place to visualize your home as you want it.

Come in and see these charming houses—8th Floor, State Street, South.



CHINTZ HOUSE—You've never seen anything like this delightful spot, because never has there been anything like it, anywhere.

The important thing about it is this: You will see many things for your own home as you'd like to have them.

Here are windows, closets, corners, nooks, complete to the last detail; fascinating wall paper ensembles; hundreds of suggestions as to how you can get the effects you want—all in modern key. The fabrics themselves are the loveliest we have ever shown; many of them exclusive; all astonishing values.

The same refreshing idea of displaying fabrics as you'd like to use them is carried out all through the Drapery Section, 9th Floor, Middle, State to Wabash.

What the Modern Home Should Wear

A wealth of ideas—brilliant, all practical, all up-to-the-minute, many a little ahead: that is what will impress you about our 8th and 9th Floors.

Here is refreshing, modern merchandise—fine quality, of course; at modern low prices. And here—most important—is enthusiasm; a genuine interest in your home as a home; a sharing with you of our knowledge of how to get the results you want.

SECURITIES ACT TO BE AMENDED, IT IS INDICATED

Congress Is Expected to Revamp Measure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—With the new securities act operating to stifle credit and failing at the same time to provide the protection for investors which its sponsors promised, indications noted here today were to the effect that the act will be drastically amended at the next session of congress in January.

Charles H. March, holdover chairman of the federal trade commission, and other administration officials engaged in enforcing the act are still loudly defending the legislation in its entirety, but in the inside circles of the Roosevelt advisers, it was learned, the discussion turns on how far the amendments ought to go in order to provide a desired freedom of security issues and sales.

Willing to Relax Rules.

The administration, it was reported, is eager to maintain full protection for the investing public, but at the same time shows a willingness, in the interests of the larger success of its whole national recovery program, to relax some of the most stringent features of the act which are held to have operated actually to defeat the purposes of the law.

The entire administration, from President Roosevelt down, is publicly campaigning in many ways to release credit to business men seeking to expand operations. The new securities act, it is said, is not only preventing the financing of new capital but is making difficult or impossible the refinancing of old capital issues as they come due.

Thus some old established concerns, unable to refinance their debts, may be driven to bankruptcy at a time when the President is battling for releasing assets instead of freezing more of them.

On the other side of the picture are found some spokesmen for the trade commission, including the holdover chairman, March, who assert that the objections to the act are raised with improper motive.

See Responsibility Dodging.

These individuals declare that the investment houses and businesses generally are raising a hue and cry against the act because of an unwillingness to assume the responsibility for protecting the public. The defenders of the new law assert that the charge that it restricts credit is raised only to create sentiment for withdrawing the fangs which make the law effective.

One of the most significant criticisms of the law, coupled with a demand that it be amended, has come from the federal advisory council of the federal reserve board. This council, composed of the nation's leading representative bankers, and created by statute for the purpose of guiding the conduct of the federal reserve system, has declared that the securities act, and the new banking law as well, has been a most potent factor in limiting credit expansion.

"Since the securities act of 1933 came into operation," the council reports, "the normal issue of corporate securities by responsible corporations has almost ceased. It has become evident that large corporations with responsible boards of directors will not undertake capital issues because of the liabilities which the act imposes upon them and the individual members of the boards of directors in regard thereto."

Directors Held Liable.

The act, requiring the filing of detailed reports showing the most minute financial data concerning an issuing company, including also full data concerning all subsidiaries of the issuing company, holds the officers and directors of the company civilly and criminally liable for losses by the investor. If the purchaser of an issue loses money by his purchase, and can show any misstatements in the report filed with the trade commission, all the officers and directors of the issuing company may be sued for the amount of the investor's loss.

Some of the larger companies have declared that to comply with the regulations laid down by the trade commission would require a year within which to gather the complete information. Directors and investment houses have declared that even with the best intentions and full honesty in preparing a report errors or omissions may creep in which would result in subsequent lawsuits by imprudent investors. At any rate, the opinion is general that the larger companies are unwilling to ask their directors to assume civil liability for a ten year period and are consequently withholding all issuance of bonds until the alleged evils against the act are remedied.

Complicated Nature Cited.

Simon Michelet, Washington attorney, who has written a handbook on the securities act, has asserted that of 228 registration statements filed up to Sept. 23 not one could be accepted without amendment and correction, thus pointing out the complicated nature of the requirements of the act.

The federal advisory council declared that responsible investment bankers will not act as underwriters of corporate issues "because of the liabilities imposed upon them under the terms of the securities act."

"That this is so," the council's report stated, "is clearly established from the fact that no nationally known industrial or public utility company has undertaken any new financing under the act.

"Presents Grave Problem."

"This situation presents a grave problem in connection with the national industrial recovery program and with the orderly restoration of credit operations of financial institutions. Unless this situation is changed companies with maturing obligations will not have the usual facilities provided for the refunding thereof, and many sound companies may be faced with receivership because of inability to obtain capital funds for refunding purposes. Similarly, industrial progress requiring new capital will be prevented through inability to obtain capital funds, even though sought by sound and seasoned enterprises.

"There is nothing which will help so much in increasing employment and aiding in the consumption of capital goods as the possibility of carrying on adequate capital financing. The banks of the country could not undertake to lend their depositors' funds to corporations to enable them to discharge their maturing capital obligations or to make capital additions because the volume of loans required for refunding and new capital requirements would be beyond the capacity of the banks to meet.

"Under the banking act of 1933 banks are in effect prohibited from underwriting the capital requirements of the industries of the country, either directly or through affiliates. This provision has restricted, in a great measure, the investment banking facilities of the country.

Amendments Are Urged.

"It is essential that the industries of the country [including public utilities] be enabled to finance their ordinary capital requirements either for refunding or for new capital in the investment markets, and it is apparent that amendments to the law must be made so that it will not stifle the legitimate flow of capital into industry.

"Accordingly, it is hereby

"Resolved, That in aid of the national recovery program the securities act of 1933 and the banking act of 1933 should be amended in such respects as may be necessary to enable industries of the country to obtain capital funds in the investment markets, retaining in such laws such provisions as may be necessary properly to safeguard the interests of the investing public."

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Women to Aid by Wider Spending

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Woman, who does an estimated 86 per cent of the nation's buying, can, to a large extent, make or break the nation's industrial recovery. Therefore, she'll be doing the biggest patriotic job offered her since the war if she spreads her spending, if she cooperates with those selling agencies which are cooperating with the government, and if she shifts the emphasis from bargain prices to fair prices.

This was the gist of Mrs. Roosevelt's word to women at this morning's press conference.

Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, chairman of the consumers' advisory board, was present at the conference, at Mrs. Roosevelt's suggestion, to explain the setup of the new consumers' county councils to be set up in communities all over the country to help protect the consumer against unfair price rises.

For Spread in Spending.

Spread your spending, Mrs. Roosevelt urged, in order that seasonal peaks and valleys of production can come nearer to an all year round level.

"I am not an economist," she added, "and I realize that this is a question that has long engaged the attention of experts. It cannot be answered in any generalization. But it is something for the patriotic woman to think about."

Then somebody wanted to know if she meant to hurry out and buy Christmas gifts at once. Decidedly, it would seem, she did not. Right now, with debts and difficulties for many, she seemed to feel that it is no time to talk of buying Christmas presents.

As to the second point, coöperation, Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out that women, with that 86 per cent of the nation's buying power, were the first to translate any increased income into expenditure; therefore, the first to start the wheel of recovery spinning. That spin should be thoughtfully given, she counseled.

Fair vs. Bargain Prices.

The third objective, fair prices rather than bargain prices, has to be the goal of the buyer, she argued, if an American standard of living is to prevail among workers.

The newspaper women complained of the variety of price rises for the same commodity. Mrs. Ramsey nodded. She's already had plenty of similar complaints. "Nonparity of price" is her term for it. It will be corrected, she is confident, by these newly created consumers' councils. Here the small town buyer can take his grievance. The investigation will be made.

"Many of the inequalities will be adjusted right on the spot, locally," she predicted. "The more serious ones will go on up higher. Each board will be a sieve through which many complaints will pass. And the obstinate violations will go on up, to Gen. Johnson and to Attorney General Cummings."

The local consumers' council will have no police powers, she pointed out, and she's glad of that, for she believes that "volunteer vigilantes" should not be a part of this picture. But, even without police powers, she feels that the councils will do much to make out the "peace profiteer."

"We don't want hang dogs around; we want watch dogs," she declared. "Friendly economic watch dogs, I mean."

SPEED RECORD FOR AMPHIBIAN IS SET IN EAST

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Roaring over a three kilometer course, Maj. Alexander de Seversky established a new speed record for amphibians today at Roosevelt field by flying at the rate of 187.80 miles an hour, thereby breaking the record of 177.79 miles an hour which he established yesterday. The record is for the three kilometer course.

The flyer made eight runs over the course, and the fastest was at the 187.80 mile clip. The average speed for the eight laps is yet to be calculated.

In his racing yesterday Maj. de Seversky made four dashes along the straightway course at an average speed of 177.79 miles an hour in the amphibian of his own design.

Maj. de Seversky made his second race today, shooting at his own record of yesterday because it was found last night that the barograph, which had been placed in the plane under seal on Saturday, had not been wound, with the result that the flight yesterday was declared to be unofficial.

Guard The Danger Line★ with Squibb's Dental Cream, and laugh at groundless fears!

NEGLECT can cause trouble enough at The Danger Line—bleeding gums, pyorrhea, decay and infection. But when Squibb's Dental Cream stands guard there's no cause for worry.

Let your dentist make a check-up of your mouth. Then supplement his care by twice-a-day use of Squibb's Dental Cream. With its balanced, 5-way protection you can enjoy freedom from fear.

Squibb's cleans effectively and polishes safely. It prevents bleeding of the gums by safe cleansing—not by the use of dangerous astringents. It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay. And its use is true economy.

You'll like the clean, refreshing flavor of Squibb's Dental Cream. And you can trust its sure effectiveness, because it's made by Squibb.

★The Danger Line is the area where the thin edge of the gum encircles each tooth, forming tiny ledges, difficult to reach by brushing. Here food particles collect and bacteria multiply, generating acids. Not one, but all your teeth are endangered by unhealthy gums. When you use Squibb's Dental Cream, you force into the sheltered areas countless antacid particles which combat the germ acids and protect the gums.

HASTILY selecting an apartment can cause more than deep regret when the test of living proves the apartment unsatisfactory. It can mean also the loss of savings accumulated by careful shopping at the stores.

It pays well in dollars and cents to be careful about selecting an apartment. Rents are still low, and apartment values remain high, but changing conditions may alter this situation quickly. If you plan to move soon, give sober thought to your selection of an apartment.

There isn't time enough to inspect personally all the apartments available in the neighborhoods you prefer. But you can get a pretty good idea of what the most desirable apartments look like by reading the Apartments-to-rent want ad columns in the Tribune.

Comprehensive lists of apartments in practically all desirable neighborhoods are printed in the Tribune every day. A few minutes a day spent reading these offers will disclose many attractive apartments having the right number of rooms, the conveniences you want, near rapid transportation, and at the rent you want to pay. AURORA EXPLAINS $42,000 RESERVE IN RELIEF FUND

"Economy" Is Answer to State Commission.

The accumulation of a $42,000 reserve fund by the relief organization of Aurora has attracted the attention and concern of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, it was learned yesterday. Somewhat taken aback, the dispensers of relief in Aurora have been called upon to explain the economies they have practiced in spending taxpayers' money to feed, clothe and house the poor.

Thus, once again this city of 47,000, which received wide attention last winter when it was disclosed that it was feeding its poor well at a cost of only 64 cents a person per week, has attracted the public interest with its relief work.

The state relief commission was reported not to be too well pleased at the publicity given Aurora's low relief cost last winter. In Chicago the commission spends more than twice as much to feed the poor, and the relief bill has averaged more than $6,000,000 a month during the cold season. It was suggested that millions might be saved if Chicago adopted the Aurora system, but this was declared impractical by relief officials.

Explains Reserve Fund.

John Hunt, a member of the Aurora Associated Relief organization, which handles the relief work for Aurora township, and of the Kane county relief commission, yesterday told how the reserve fund of $42,836 has been accumulated.

"There is nothing mysterious about that reserve fund," he declared. "Because of our commissary system and other economical features of our relief program we are able to take care of the poor for less than one-half the expense required in Chicago. As a result, our relief costs less than any other county and we were able to save a percentage of the money provided for us each month.

"We had a certified public accountant publish a statement of our finances each month and the gradual accumulation of the reserve fund was outlined in it. With the cash in the fund we were able to effect further economies, buying foodstuffs in large quantities, getting discounts because of cash payments.

$17,600 Orders Canceled.

"Suddenly the Illinois relief commission discovered the existence of the reserve fund and told us that we would receive no more state relief money until the fund was exhausted. It canceled $17,000 worth of orders during the month of Agust, but I understand it is reconsidering that action.

"We told them why we needed the reserve. With the winter coming on, we can economize in the purchase of coal by buying carloads for cash. They believe we should have no reserve fund, or at least not such a large one, and the matter will undoubtedly be straightened out at a future meeting.

"We are just old fashioned and small townish enough out here to try to reach two objectives in our relief work; we attempt first to give the poor as good service as possible and secondly to do it as cheaply as possible."

The reserve fund belongs to the community, Mr. Hunt pointed out, and it is a valuable aid in saving the community money in the distribution of food, coal, and clothing.

"Whether the state relief commission distributes the fund or we do, matters not to us," he declared.

Criticize State Commission.

Other residents of Aurora were not so mild in their discussion of the state relief commission's action on the reserve fund.

"They want to penalize Aurora and Kane county for having the most efficient and economical relief organization in the state," said one man affiliated with the Aurora organization. "It looks as if they are trying to force us to have more expensive relief. Without a working reserve we can't buy flour and other food commodities in carload lots, pay cash and save the difference. Aurora has shown how to save money in dispensing relief and the Illinois Emergency relief commission resents it."

STATE RELIEF ROLLS DECREASE 29%, BUT COSTS DROP ONLY 17%

Despite a decrease of 29 per cent from April to August in the number of families on relief rolls in the state, commitments against the funds of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission decreased only 17 per cent. This was disclosed yesterday in a report by Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the commission.

In Cook county the number of families on the rolls decreased 33 per cent while the commitments decreased only 24 per cent. There were 195,147 families on the Cook county rolls in April and 130,200 in August, a decrease of 64,947. Commitments for April were $5,734,310 and for August $4,338,163, a difference of $1,396,147.

The relief cost for the entire state was $6,734,844 in April and $5,611,206 in August, a decrease of $1,123,638. During this period the number of families cared for in the state decreased from 316,141 to 223,018, a difference of 93,123.

According to the report, downstate commitments actually increased from $1,000,574 to $1,273,043 in the five month period.

"The fact that expenditures did not decrease as rapidly as case loads is due to several factors," Mr. Dunham said. "They are namely, increases in commodity prices, an injunction restraining the use of motor fuel tax funds for relief, thus reducing local funds for this purpose, increased rent payments, and the necessity of purchasing flour in downstate counties."

LAWYER DENIES BREAKING LAW AT GOLD TRIAL

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Federal Judge John M. Woolsey today reserved decision on a demurrer entered by Frederick Barber Campbell, lawyer and capitalist, twice indicted under the gold hoarding act.

The first true bill charged Campbell with failure to report possession of 27 bars of gold bullion valued by the government at $200,574.34, and the second charged failure to turn the gold in. The gold is in the Chase National bank, from which Campbell sued to recover it.

Campbell argued his own case and told Judge Woolsey he had obtained title to the gold at a time when government license was not necessary and before passage of the congressional gold hoarding act and before the President's proclamation as to gold hoarding had been issued. He contended he merely continued to hold title and that congress had not empowered the President to demand the surrender of his gold, or, if it had, congress had made an attempt to do an unconstitutional thing.

Judge Woolsey instructed counsel to mail briefs to him not later than next Tuesday.

DOCTOR PLEADS HARD TIMES AND ALIMONY IS CUT

Dr. Lars A. Garness, 3117 Logan boulevard, appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. De Sort yesterday and received a reduction of $6 a week in the $12 a week alimony which he has been paying his former wife, Marie, 3214 North Keating avenue. Mrs. Garness divorced her husband on Dec. 19, 1932, on grounds of cruelty. She is living with a son and daughter by a former marriage.

"There are 515 physicians on the county relief rolls," said Dr. Garness. "These are hard days for any doctor. I'm having to borrow money to keep my office open, and I'm wearing the same clothes I've had for two years. My wife's son has a job, too."

FIRE PREVENTION CHIEF LISTS THE DO'S AND DON'TS

Tells How to Avert Loss of Life and Property.

In observance of International Fire Prevention week, Chief George E. Graves of the Chicago fire prevention bureau yesterday listed a number of rules which if heeded by the public, he said, would "greatly reduce in the city the losses of life and property due to fire."

The list of regulations covers the principal causes of fires, according to Chief Graves. The most important "don't," he said, is that concerning the careless disposal of lighted matches, cigars, and cigarets. In a typical year this one hazard, according to his figures, is responsible for about $30,000,000 in fire damage. Chief Graves' "do's" and "don'ts" are as follows:

"Remove rubbish, waste paper, and all unnecessary combustible materials.

"Examine stoves, furnaces, and smoke pipes for possible defects.

"Fireproof your home with fire safe roofing.

"Have your electrical system inspected for possible faults.

"Be sure you know how to turn in a fire alarm accurately and promptly.

"Provide your business, wherever possible, with some means of detecting fire automatically.

"Keep the principles of fire prevention always in mind and practice them.

"Don't leave small children alone in the house.

"Don't be careless with lighted matches, cigars, or cigarets.

"Don't clean clothes with gasoline, benzine, or naphtha.

"Don't replace blown electric fuses with pennies or tin foil.

"Don't leave oily rags near inflammable material.

"Don't look for a gas leak with a match.

"Don't pour water into a pan of burning grease.

"Don't lose your head in case of fire."

The greatest single cause for loss of life and property in fires, according to Chief Graves, is delayed fire alarms.

IDLE IN BRITAIN DECREASE 86,000; TOTAL IS 2,336,727

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The ministry of labor's monthly returns, issued tonight, estimate that there were at work on Sept. 25 86,000 more persons than on Aug. 25. Since September of last year the totals of registered unemployed has fallen by 521,284 and now is 2,336,727.

Among the industries showing a marked improvement are coal, general and electrical engineering, cotton, woolen, jute, hosiery, auto, metal goods, potteries, and boot and shoe.

A decided improvement has been shown in the iron and steel industry, resulting largely from increasing orders for armaments.

An item in yesterday's TRIBUNE said that Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, would address the Illinois League of Women Voters Saturday at the Fair. The address will be delivered at a luncheon meeting in the grand ballroom at the Palmer house.

FRANCE OBJECTS TO THE COMPANY OUR BEANS KEEP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Several score Americans here are sadly shaking their heads tonight at the fast fading hope of smacking their lips over steaming plates of home baked beans. They are baffled by a combination of a hairsplitting customs service and French indifference as to what makes an expatriate happy.

The disillusioned Americans are members of the TNT club, which ordered $500 worth of beans from Boston for the annual brown October ale celebration to be imbibed with foamy Bass from England. The beans arrived all right, but they are lying disconsolately on the shelves of the customs warehouse, and there they will stay unless the American consulate can do something to pry the French customs loose fror them.

The beans are okay. It is the company they keep—pork—that annoys the French. The trouble started when customs officials opened a can to make sure no contraband was concealed. There nestling among the beans they found a little slab of pork. Some one fished it out and solemnly weighed it. It tipped the scale at more than five grams.

The customs decreed that canned beans are canned beans if unaccompanied by more than five grams of meat. When there is more than five grams they become canned meat. The import quota on canned meat has already been filled, so the TNT club's pork and beans were barred.

HEAVENLY LIGHT TRAPPED MATE, THEORY OF WIFE

Mrs. Stern Testifies in 4 Million Suit.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A "pillar of light from heaven" served as a tell-tale spotlight to reveal the identity of Allison L. S. Stern and Mrs. Ruth Erlanger Nathan as they stood outside Lyncroft inn in New Jersey one night in 1926.

So Mrs. Helen Vogel Stern of 930 Park avenue testified on cros-examination before Supreme Court Justice Hofstadter and a jury today during the hearing of Mrs. Stern's suit for $4,000,000 against Mrs. Nathan for alienation of affections, saying that Mrs. Nathan broke up her household and her married life with Allison Stern.

"It was dark, but there seemed to be a light over the figures," Mrs. Stern testified today under examination by George Whiteside, Mrs. Nathan's attorney, who urged her to tell again of the party at the inn following a Princeton football game.

Claims Heavenly Guidance.

"I recognized one as my husband," the witness said. "The other was Mrs. Nathan because I recognized her green dress. A pillar of light might have come out of the sky over Lyncroft inn that night, but maybe it was a light from heaven to guide me."

Mr. Whiteside asked "do you claim that there was a pillar of fire at night or a cloud by day to help you in following your husband?"

Mrs. Stern's attorney, Max D. Steuer, objected to the question. His client, he said, had said nothing about a daytime cloud. Justice Hofstadter interrupted to remark that the cloud "might not be found in the records, but it is in the Bible."

Later in the hearing today Mrs. Stern said when she warned her husband that "the path he was treading was a dangerous one," her husband, she said, replied: "If you think you'll keep me from seeing Ruth, you are mistaken."

Casual Friend of Rice.

The witness denied that she had been any more than a casual friend of Oliver Rice of St. Louis. She had known him since 1918. "He was at Palm Beach while I was there," she said. She admitted that Rice had called at her parents' home and perhaps had sent her flowers for Christmas and presents for her children.

Asked if she had ever kissed Rice or been kissed by him, she said:

"I do not recall. Maybe at some New Year's party."

Mrs. Stern added that when Rice was in New York a few weeks ago, he offered to testify for her and she asked him if he had ever kissed her. Rice, she testified, said that he had kissed her in 1919 at her brother's wedding. "I told him," Mrs. Stern said, "that he had a very good memory."

COURT DENIES CHICAGO PLEAS ON ESTATE TAX

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The executors of the estates of Victor F. Lawson and Catherine Bennett of Chicago and the administrator of the estate of Robert J. Bassett of Chicago were today denied reviews by the Supreme court in three cases brought to challenge the constitutionality of the estate tax provision of the revenue act of 1924.

The three cases were tried together in the federal district court at Chicago, which sustained the estate tax law as constitutional and also decided the estates were not entitled to a refund of that part of the tax which represented the value of real estate in Illinois which the taxpayers contended was exempt because real estate is not subject to payment of expenses of the administration under Illinois statutes.

In the Lawson case the court ordered a refund of $7,162 with interest, which it found had been paid on property which belonged to Iver N. Lawson and not to Victor F. Lawson.

HEARING TODAY OVER ALLEGED INSULL ACCOUNT

Efforts of Attorney Samuel Ettelson to link the fugitive Samuel Insull, deposed utilities magnate, with a trust account in the Harris Trust & Savings, will be renewed today before Federal Judge John P. Barnes. The court has restrained removals from the account with a temporary order and today's arguments will be based on a motion for a temporary injunction, which would have the same effect.

Suit to impound the account for the benefit of Insull creditors was brought in the name of Gus Lowry and both Insull and the bank are defendants. The account, alleged to have been worth $1,000,000 at one time, is in the name of Constantine Eftax, a former Chicago druggist now living in Athens, Greece. Eftax, in Athens, denied that Insull was any way connected with the account.

In 1926, when the government was investigating a dope ring, efforts were made to link Eftax with the conspiracy but he was never prosecuted. The government's investigation has been renewed as a result of the discovery of Eftax's account.

Greeks Bet Insull Will Win.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 9.—Forrest Harness, assistant United States attorney general, conferred for two hours today with Prosecutor Anthony Reganakos of the Greek Court of Appeals on the American government's effort to extradite Samuel Insull, fugitive Chicago utilities man, on charges of bankruptcy fraud.

Insull's lawyers maintained silence as to their defense plans, but they insisted that Insull's continued sojourn in Greece is certain.

Local Greeks today offered odds of 10 to 8 that Insull will not be extradited. One bet of 50,000 drachmas [about $420] was reported to have been made. Those taking Insull's side in the betting say he will be freed on the grounds that the present case is like the old one and has already been decided by the court.

Interest now centers in what judges will be chosen to try the case. There are 33 judges. Of these, five will be picked for the Insull hearing.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for coughs or colds that hang on, for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

U. S. ARMY USES JAPAN'S CEMENT; HAWAII PROTESTS

Product from America Is Undersold by Nippon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Oct. 9.—Honolulu contractors are protesting to Washington against the use of Japanese cement on army construction work in Hawaii.

Impetus was given to this movement by the unloading of a large quantity of Japanese cement from the steamship Asama Maru for construction work at Fort Ruger, Honolulu.

The army buys this cement because it is sold cheaper than the American product. Contractors here are asking for an anti-dumping order similar to the order recently issued against Japanese rubber soled shoes. The contractors assert that the Japanese cement is being sold at a price lower than the cost of production in the United States.

NRA Bars Jap Cement.

News of the purchase of this foreign cement by the government led to a reiteration that no goods of other than United States production will be used in the construction of any public works project under the national recovery act.

Maj. Stanley L. Scott, United States army district engineer and public works administrator for Hawaii, said no Japanese cement had been used in any project under his jurisdiction. E. S. Wheeler, principal engineer of the bureau of roads, department of agriculture, said only American materials would be used on roads built under his jurisdiction.

Quotations on Portland cement made in Japan, after the tariff has been paid, range in Honolulu from $1.85 a barrel of four paper bags containing 94 pounds each, to $2.15 a barrel, later revised to $2.05 a barrel. Quotations on Portland cement made in the United States range from $2.20 to $2.25, on which, of course, there is no tariff.

Blame Washington Office.

On some contracts the price differential is so high that use of American or Japanese cement might determine the profit on a contract.

The Japanese prices quoted are f. o. b. Honolulu incoming wharf, duty paid and free of landing charges.

Army authorities said, regarding the use of Japanese cement for the Fort Ruger work, that, under orders from the assistant secretary of war, the contracting officer virtually had to accept the Japanese cement or face court martial charges. The difference between the Japanese and American prices exceeded the "figure of merit" which had been worked out in the war department at Washington. Orders are that in this event the lowest bid is to be accepted, even if it comes from a foreign country, if the quality of the material is up to standard.

BRITISH FLYING BOAT FIRES 100 SHELLS A MINUTE

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The first royal air force flying boat carrying a quick firing gun capable of firing shells in addition to the equipment of ordinary machine guns has been completed by the Blackburn Aeroplane company at Brough.

Designed principally for submarine chasing, the new gun, which is mounted on a rotary turret in the forward cockpit, can fire 100 rounds per minute of 1½ pound shells over an effective range of 1,500 yards. The shells are held in clips of five.

The concussion from firing all five rounds in quick time is said to reduce the forward speed of the flying boat by ten miles an hour. The machine will be able to fly 132 miles an hour with a maximum range of 1,500 miles.

POLAND MAY ACT AS LINK BETWEEN RUSSIA, RUMANIA

WARSAW, Oct. 9.—(AP)—President Moscicki today bestowed Poland's highest honor, the Order of the White Eagle, upon Nicholas Titulescu, foreign minister of Rumania.

Although not officially announced, it is expected that Titulescu will ratify the non-aggression pact with the soviet government tomorrow morning, the Polish government acting as intermediary.

The procedure is regarded as unique, since it is believed here to be the first exchange and ratification of documents between two countries which do not have diplomatic relations.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

BRAZIL REVAMPS MONEY TO CURB TOURIST FRAUDS

Will Protect Natives' Savings, Too.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 9.—Brazil finally is about to adopt a uniform system of paper currency which will protect citizens from an unwitting loss of their savings and will prevent money changers from defrauding tourists.

It will follow the "cruzeiro" unit established by law of Dece. 18, 1926, and will be adapted to the decimal system. The cruzeiro, when completely stabilized, is to be a gold unit worth about $1.20 and equal to 10 milreis, the present unit of Brazil.

But right now gold is practically nonexistent as a circulating medium in Brazil and paper currency is plentiful in a multiplicity of designs—some of them beautifully printed with numerous pictures of prominent Brazilians. And there are three sources of issue, the Bank of Brazil, the treasury, and the Caixa de Amortizacao.

Hoarded Bills Voided.

From time to time the minister of finance announces that a certain serial of bills is retired from circulation. The average Brazilian fails to see the advertisement and keeps his money until one sad day he finds that his hoarded bills are worthless. To save something he looks for a currency buyer who "generously" offers him 10 per cent of the face value of the bills.

This broker is one of many who meet steamers coming into the big ports of Santos and Rio de Janeiro and greet foreigners as soon as they step on the pier. In exchange for good dollars and pounds the innocent traveler gets a handful of nice looking bills already retired from circulation. The currency vender clears not only 90 per cent profit but the real exchange advantage as well.

Finance Minister Dr. Oswaldo Aranha proposes to restrict paper currency to one official type and end the practice of invalidating money in circulation. He will stop the practice of printing a picture gallery on each bill and substitute a racial or landscape design which is typical Brazilian.

The bills will be printed in Brazil, the government having purchased abroad the necessary machinery. The printing of all currency, stamps, and bonds will be put under control of the mint.

The diversity of Brazil's present currency complicates the life of every citizen and one issue in particular deserves mention. It is a brand new serial of 50 milreis bills. They are accepted in Rio de Janeiro, but as soon as the possessor goes outside the federal district, merchants, hotel keepers, and even gambling salons refuse to accept them. The bills are perfectly genuine, but it seems that outside Rio de Janeiro, people do not like the color with which they are printed.

EXTORTIONIST GETS PROBATION.

Joie Gahlbeck, 20 years old, was placed on probation for three years yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes on a charge of sending an extortion note through the mail. Gahlbeck demanded $2,500 in a note to Edward Stiff of Arlington Heights.

FILIPINO SENATE REJECTS TERMS OF LIBERTY OFFER

MANILA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The senate tonight rejected the terms of Philippine independence proffered by congress. These provide for insular freedom in ten years, restriction of imports to the United States during the interim, and retention of American military reservation in the islands. Tonight's voice vote ratified previous senate action. The house is expected to concur tomorrow.

Both Manuel Quezon and Sergio Osmena, majority and minority leaders of the senate, said, however, that concurrent action on the present motion would not kill the Hawes-Cutting independence act, holding that it could be accepted up to Jan. 17.

At the same time Quezon sponsored a resolution providing for a new mission to Washington which he hopes will obtain administration assurance of enactment of amendments or of a new law in congress before expiration of the time limit on the present act. Otherwise, the Filipino leader hopes an extension of time may be granted. Quezon told the senate the object of the motion tonight was to show the Washington administration the legislature was against the independence act in its present form.

It is understood Quezon will leave for Washington Nov. 4.

MARION F. SAWYER—Director of the Free Press Institute of Home Economics and editor of Free Press Food Pages, who delivers lectures on food preparation and food products advertised in the Free Press to over 50,000 Detroit women yearly.

UNIQUE among all newspaper enterprise is the job being done by The Detroit Free Press in teaching Detroit what to eat. And the job is being personally administered. It is no long-distance, round-about effort.

All newspapers have "food pages." All newspapers print "recipes," and other kitchen lore. Most newspapers have "food editors." But no newspaper we know of anywhere has tackled the business of food interpretation in a manner comparable with that of the Free Press.

Wherein are we different? Through The Detroit Free Press Institute of Home Economics, presided over by Marion F. Sawyer, the story of good foods and how to prepare them was taken to over 30,000 Detroit women who attended one hundred sixty separate lectures held this year in their own neighborhoods with the aid of a specially designed traveling model kitchen, and a specially built blue and silver trimmed truck to transport it.

But that is not all. Up in the tower of the Free Press Building is a kitchen whose appointments quicken the heart of every woman who sees it. We really do things with this kitchen. It is no plaything. Here every recipe that appears on the food pages of the Free Press is tested out and proved right by Miss Sawyer. Women who read the Free Press know as they read it, that any suggestion offered by Miss Sawyer is something to be thoroughly depended upon. Reader confidence? Of course. And proved by the 7,000 letters that come in every month from these readers on food and household matters alone. Next door to the kitchen is an auditorium, in which Miss Sawyer will conduct special classes in food preparation for the women of Detroit. In all of this work and before the eyes of thousands of women the food products advertised in this newspaper are demonstrated and discussed.

This is the sort of consumer promotion that has lifted The Detroit Free Press to a commanding position among American newspapers in reader-responsiveness and advertising cooperation. It is a service no one can purchase individually. But you may have it with our compliments if your food and household advertising is scheduled for the Free Press.

A GREATER GAIN IN FOOD ADVERTISING

For the first nine months of the year, the Free Press shows a 40.9% gain in Food Product advertising, being THE ONLY DETROIT NEWSPAPER TO SHOW AN INCREASE.

Miss Channon Is Engaged to C. A. Schreiner

Wedding Will Be Held on November 8.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. JAMES HARRISON CHANNON is announcing the engagement of the youngest of her daughters, Letitia, to Charles Augustus Schreiner Jr., and at the same time is announcing the date of their wedding. They will be married on Nov. 8 at 4:30 o'clock in old St. Mary's church—"Tish" is changing from the Episcopal to the Catholic faith because her husband-to-be belongs to the latter faith—the Rev. Edward J. Mulally officiating.

Dennis F. Kelly will give his god-daughter in marriage. Only relatives and a few intimate friends will witness the ceremony which will be followed by a small reception at the residence of the bride's mother at 222 East Chestnut street.

Miss Channon, a tall brunette, is one of the handsomest young women in society and is very attractive and popular. She went to the Chicago Latin School for Girls and then to the Warrenton Country school in Virginia. She made her debut in the winter of 1928-'29, and is a member of the Junior league and the Service club. She has been active in the work of both organizations ever since she joined them.

Mr. Schreiner is the son of the Charles A. Schreiners of 5000 East Cornell avenue and a graduate of St. Thomas university in St. Paul.

Miss Channon's sisters, Mrs. William A. Blake [Elizabeth Channon Bendix] of New York and Mrs. Scott Nesbit [Ruth Channon] of Warrenton, will come to Chicago for the wedding and, of course, the fourth sister, Dorothy, Mrs. Roy Bard of Winnetka, will be there. The eldest of the five beautiful Channon sisters, Katherine, Mrs. Jerome P. Bowes Jr., died in May, 1931.

The announcement was made to Miss Channon's best friends yesterday at a luncheon given by her mother at their apartment, to which they returned about ten days ago from their summer place at Grand Haven, Mich.

Walcott-McKenzie Nuptials Nov. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Howe Walcott, who announced the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Roderick McKenzie last Christmas day at a tea in their Winnetka home, are today announcing that Miss Walcott's wedding to Mr. McKenzie will take place at 4 o'clock on Nov. 11 in the Christ church chapel in Winnetka. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will read the ceremony in the presence of the relatives and the most intimate friends, and a reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Walcott will have her sister, Julie, who is a senior at the North Shore Country Day school, for her only attendant. Mr. McKenzie, who is a son of the William D. McKenzies of Hubbard Woods, has not decided on his attendants. After a wedding trip Mr. McKenzie and his bride will be at home on Forest avenue in Evanston.

Helen Fulton to Bow Dec. 2.

Saturday, Dec. 2, the first Saturday after Thanksgiving, has been chosen as the date for that star of the tennis courts, Helen Fulton, to make her debut. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Fulton, will give a tea at their home on Hill road in Winnetka to introduce their daughter, who is the girl tennis champion of the United States and Canada.

Miss Fulton went to Leland Stanford university in California last year and will return there after Christmas, but she is staying at home to enjoy the first half of her debutante season. Her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Bebout of Loudonville, O., and her brother, Edmund Fulton of Montreal, will be here for her debut. Following the tea the assisting debutantes and their escorts will dine and dance at the Drake hotel as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton and their daughter.

Evanston Junior League Aids Community Chest.

The announcement that the Evanston Junior league is contributing $1,000 to the Evanston community chest was the reason for enthusiastic handclapping yesterday noon at the luncheon meeting of the league at the Georgian hotel. It was a gala occasion, opening the new year for the hard working members and fifteen young matrons and post-debs who have just been invited to join the organization.

The latter include Miss Mary Cook, Miss Polly Pietsch, Miss Jane Blessing, Miss Margaret Dunham, Miss Frances Lillian Buck, Mrs. William

IN accordance with our policy of letting you know about all kinds of things that go on about town, we report the service Conductor No. 7478 gives passengers on his West Madison street car. The other day when Attorney Nat Kahn got on the car and handed him his fare the conductor looked him straight in the eye and tendered a cheery "Thank you." He repeated the thank you with every fare paid. When the car started up after each stop he announced the next street and other helpful information in a loud, clear voice. For instance:

"Wells street, change for Sheffield, Taylor and Armitage cars. This car goes direct to the World's Fair. All aboard. . . . Clark street, change for Lincoln park. Take north bound cars. . . ."

As one of his lady passengers was leaving she nodded pleasantly to him in appreciation of his spirit of service.

"Did you have a good seat?" he inquired anxiously.

PERHAPS you saw the page advertisement listing imported wines and liquors and their prices for delivery promptly "if and when repeal comes," printed the other day in New York papers. It was inserted by a famous specialized luxury store that has served New Yorkers for nearly a century, supplying candies and cosmetics to New York wives and daughters, and packing gift baskets to send to boats. The advertisement looked anachronistic somehow, as if it has been reprinted, sentimentally, from an earlier day when friends could order a bottle of champagne sent to a boat instead of a basket of fruit, without resorting to under cover methods.

We draw attention to the advertisement because of a certain dramatic value in its listed brands and prices. It recognizes the completion of a historic cycle. And it probably was a little startling to read, right there in the home newspaper, that House of Lords gin might be delivered, upon your order, at $20 the case, and No. 1 Old Tom at $13.50, Martell 3 Star cognac brandy at $35, and Johnny Walker and Dewar at $25. Dry Monopole champagne is listed at $53.50 for twelve bottles, and Amontillado sherry at $24.

LADY ALEXANDRA METCALFE, who is of interest to Chicagoans because of her Chicago antecedents [her grandfather was the late Levi Z. Leiter], is a tall, gray eyed English beauty. You might have seen her lunching with friends yesterday, or touring the Field museum, wearing beige wool, with a blue scarf and a blue hat adorned with a Tyrolean feather. Her husband, Maj. Metcalfe, also tall, was practically a symphony in blue—blue and white checked tweeds, blue shirt and tie. On one occasion you also might have seen him wearing an orchid in his buttonhole, but it turned out that that is not one of his affectations. It dropped from the corsage of one of the ladies of his party and he thrust it in in a moment of whimsy. Last night they dined quietly and went to see Wings of a Century at the Fair.

Chicago High Alumni Day Will Be Held at Fair

All Chicago High School Alumni day will be held Oct. 22 on the World's Fair grounds, it was announced yesterday by Emil W. Ritter, general chairman. Presidents of alumni associations throughout the city have been named as members of the executive committee.

Open Exhibit of Works by Enid Stoddard

Remembering that his family had known the family of Miss Enid Stoddard for several generations back, Dr. Horace Bridges opened the celebrated English portrait artist's exhibition of miniatures and portraits yesterday afternoon in the French room of the Blackstone hotel with several words about her relatives and her work. Miss Stoddard, lovely in a black silk tea gown with a white bodice sprinkled with gold, responded with a friendly greeting both to Dr. Bridges and Mrs. William Ludwig Baum, who introduced Dr. Bridges.

Never did Mrs. Baum look more attractive unless it was in the portrait by Miss Stoddard that dominated a corner of the room. Yesterday she wore a tunic dress of white crepe with black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Brashears had come in from Winnetka to see the stunning portraits Miss Stoddard has done of each of them and likewise Col. and Mrs. George Fabyon had motored to town from Geneva to see their portraits in the exhibition.

A pencil portrait of Mrs. Helen Walton drew enthusiastic comment and so did those of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams and Mrs. Richard Simmons, the former Dorothy Marshall. Nearby hung the likeness of little curly headed, blue eyed John Noyes, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Noyes.

Hanging in the display are also all of the portrait studies that Miss Stoddard has done of British nobility and many prominent Americans, not least among them little Pauline Longworth, the daughter of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

Mrs. Bridges was enjoying a cup of tea as well as the exhibit yesterday. And so were Mrs. Robert Wheeler, Arthur Wheeler, Miss Agnes Foreman, the Francis Beidlers, and Mrs. Jacob Baur with her daughter, Mrs. Bartle Bull.

Leiter Heir

Maj. Edward D. Metcalfe and his wife, Lady Alexandra, arrived yesterday for a visit to the city in which her grandfather, Levi Z. Leiter, was a pioneer merchant. Her parents were the late Lord and Lady Curzon [Mary Leiter].

Maj. Metcalfe and Lady Alexandra have been visiting the Harold E. Talbotts on Long Island since they came from England, and the Talbotts came west with them for a visit to A Century of Progress.

The Metcalfes are at the Drake hotel and the Talbotts are staying with his mother, Mrs. Harry E. Talbott, at 1130 Lake Shore drive. The younger Mrs. Talbott's mother, Mrs. J. B. Fair, also is in the party and is the senior Mrs. Talbott's guest. Mrs. Talbott is entertaining at dinner for Mrs. Fair tonight, while Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin is giving a dinner for the Metcalfes and Talbotts.

Dixiana Will Dock in River for Stay Today

Showboat Reaches Harbor After Many Delays.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The showboat Dixiana, which has been a legend of the Chicago theatrical district and waterfront for the last year, proved last night that she is not another Flying Dutchman. The craft, creeping along the coast under tow from Port Washington, Wis., reached the harbor of Chicago at 8 p. m. and tied up at Navy pier.

Today at 11 a. m. the Dixiana's official entrance into Chicago's amusement life will begin. She will be brought up the river, banners flying, calliope playing and all troupers on deck in old fashioned costumes, to a berth on the south shore of the river between State and Dearborn streets. Performances will begin next Monday night with "No Mother to Guide Her," a melodrama of the President McKinley period, as the bill.

Although brand new, the Dixiana already has a career. Her owners, a group of Chicagoans containing a lawyer, a banker, and an architect, secured a permit to dock and operate in the Chicago river a year and a half ago. Then the late Mayor Cermak issued what amounted to an order of embargo against her, on the ground that she would compete with the established theaters. Round robin petitions addressed to the mayor by citizens who yearned for showboats brought about a cancellation of the embargo.

But the Dixiana failed to appear as promised. The work in building her superstructure, which contains a hall seating 1,200, a restaurant, and a refreshment bar, was delayed until she was frozen up for the winter in a Wisconsin shipyard.

The boat was completed late this summer and went on a trial cruise, giving performances in Sturgeon Bay, Green Bay, and Port Washington, Wis. She carries a company of 14 players, schooled in the traditions of showboat drama, under the management of Edwin Wapler, formerly of the Blackstone theater.

Pauline Frederick has postponed her departure from the Cort theater in "Her Majesty the Widow" until Nov. 4. . . . Olson and Johnson insist that their musical comedy, "Take a Chance," will remain in Chicago, either at the Erlanger or some other theater, until Jan. 1.

Katharine Cornell's nearest approach to Chicago this season will be Milwaukee, during the week of Dec. 4. She will give "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" there for the first four nights and the Wednesday matinée. Her new production, "Romeo and Juliet," will be acted on Friday, Dec. 8, and Saturday, Dec. 9.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Well—I've seen better musical comedies, but the picture at McVicker's is an entertaining if not outstanding show that should please lovers of light screen fare.

Bing Crosby is the production's greatest asset. He's proving himself to have been a real screen find. His singing is, to my way of thinking, secondary to a definitely winning personality, characterized by a grave humor that is delightful. If you liked him in "College Humor" you're sure to like him here.

"The Day You Came Along" is the catchiest tune Mr. Crosby sings. "Thanks," "Boo Boo," and "Bucking the Wind" are other number.

The picture's plot deals with the successful efforts of loyal revue members to break up Bing's engagement to Lilyan Tashman when they find out he's lost his heart to Judith Allen, a far, far worthier maid. Says a girl who loves Lilyan NOT:

"Lucille could never belong to the NRA. Because she couldn't be true to a guy forty hours a week.

Jack Oakie as one-half of a song and dance act—and a bozo who also loves Judith—gives a splendid performance. Skeets Gallagher does well as his partner. Miss Tashman and Harry Green provide some hearty laughs. The former is smartly dressed as always, but her hair looks terrible. A freakish and unbecoming coiffure. Other rôles are creditably played.

The film hath several stunning ensemble numbers, has been attractively mounted and is well directed.

Also on McVicker's screen is Father Hubbard's Alaskan picture. You will remember that he succeeded in exploring volcanic craters heretofore unconquered. The travelogue is interesting and well photographed and the priest's lecture informative and entertaining.

See you soon.

President's Mother Will Tour Old Virginia Houses

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. James Roosevelt, 79, mother of the President, is about to start on an automobile tour of the old houses in Virginia. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told of her mother-in-law's plans at her press conference today. The elder Mrs. Roosevelt will arrive at the White House Wednesday night, to leave with a friend Thursday morning on the Virginia trip, returning to the White House on Tuesday of next week.

Younger Set Enjoys Opera at Auditorium

Turns Out for Popular 'Madame Butterfly.'

BY INDIA MOFFET

The younger set was well represented at last night's performance of "Madame Butterfly" at the Auditorium, for John Luther Long's tragic story and Puccini's lovely music combined make an opera that is a favorite with the younger generation.

An attractive sextette in a box was composed of Miss Honore White, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Gwendolyn Juergens, the latter's fiancé, John R. Hurley, Charles Y. Freeman Jr., and Charles Connel.

Miss White was lovelier than usual in a black velvet gown, no blacker than her shining hair, however. It was most becoming to her with her gardenia white complexion and Irish blue eyes. The gown was cut high in the front and very low in back and there were bits of white lace at the shoulders. A huge bouquet of orchids testified to the devotion of some young man to this charming daughter of the Howard W. Fentons. Miss Castle was smart in black lace, and Miss Juergens lovely all in white.

Miss Betty Brawley, Miss Janet Fairbank, Miss Catharine Noyes, and Miss Peggy Hambleton were a few of the other younger people in the audience. Miss Brawley was beaued by McClelland Wallace and Miss Noyes' escort was Russell Green.

Prince and Princess Gallitzine, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Hume and Eugene Stinson were with Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed. Mrs. William W. Gurley, her daughter, Miss Helen Gurley, Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson, Miss Amy Brewer, and Mrs. Andrew Carriga of San Salvador were together and near them sat Mrs. Edward W. Everett, Mrs. Henry Everett, Mr. and Mrs. Philip R. Clarke, and Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn.

Mrs. Townsend McKeever's box guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin and Mr. and Mrs. Orville J. Taylor. Mrs. Welch Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Royden Keith, Mrs. E. Ewing Towles of Los Angeles and the William E. Vogelbacks were in one of the rear boxes in the lower tier. Also in a lower tier rear box was Mrs. Hayden B. Harris and her box party composed of Mrs. Stanley Harris of New York, Miss Anna Morgan, Chester Brundage, Harry Jackson and Huntington Harris. Mrs. Harris and her other guests were greatly worried about Miss Morgan early in the evening, for she fainted or had a dizzy spell and fell over in her chair, but after she had been taken home Mrs. Harris received the reassuring news that she was perfectly all right.

Some of the other familiar faces in the large and appreciative audience that was entranced by dainty little Hizi Koyke's interpretation of the part of Cho Cho San were Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, who was with Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Andrew Sherriff, Mrs. Allan Clement, Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick, looking very well after a summer abroad, the junior Albert F. Madleners, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Ames, and the George Woodruffs.

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, an American working on a Paris newspaper is her friend and counselor. Bun received a 'phone call from Mrs. Thelma Craymer, a stranger, who mentions a mutual friend. Bun agrees to have luncheon at her apartment. She is admitted by an ominous appearing butler. She takes an immediate dislike to Mrs. Craymer, but is favorably impressed by her uncle, James B. Finlay, a wealthy American. Finlay wants Bun to help find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. She returned annually to visit her family, the Bobianoffs, installed by Finlay in a villa on the Riviera. Her brother, Lorenz, he had brought to America. The last time Helene returned she disappeared, and no trace can be found of her or her parents. Bun agrees and accepts 200,000 francs in advance. A recent newspaper picture, showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clue Bun has to go on. That evening Bun has dinner with Fred Crawford and tells him of her strange commission. Fred hears from his pages that Finlay has been found murdered in his hotel room. When Bun returns she finds the apartment ransacked, her maid, Liberté, bound, and the money Finlay had given her stolen.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

MURDER FOR MONEY.

Liberté was not the sort of person that needed restoratives; but she did need a sedative, which was found in the form of a bottle of Bordeaux supérieur. Bun finally got her seated at the kitchen table, and after several glasses of the red wine had been consumed in quick succession, an account of what had taken place came out in a series of exclamatory and extremely dramatic phrases.

"It was like this, mademoiselle. The door bell rings. I go to it. A man and a woman ask for mademoiselle. Naturellement—I think they are some American buyers come to talk with mademoiselle. I think it is late for business, but with Americans—who can tell! They say they will wait. I look at them like this. She, the woman, wore a fur coat. The collar hid most of her face. The man, too, he wears a scarf and a hat which he did not take off. That made me think—well—as I say! I show them in the salon. As I turn on the lights the man, he grabs me from behind. So. But Liberté is strong, Mademoiselle knows that. I could throw the man—he is very, very light and thin. But—the woman, she catches me—also from behind. So. She, how do you say, trips me. I fall. I kick. They tie my feet—and my hands—and my mouth. When I look at them—from my back on the floor—I see they have put on black masks. Then they ask me where mademoiselle put the money she got today. I shake my head. The man—he kicks me. I say nothing. How can I with my mouth filled with that stuff! They begin to search the room, the salon, mademoiselle's room, my room. At last they find the money mademoiselle give me to hide. Then they go and leave me on the floor." Again the round of Gallic curses give life to what Liberté evidently found a colorless recital.

"You said you would know them?" Bun tried to make her voice soothing. "What did they look like?"

"I tell that to the gendarmes when they come. Mademoiselle should telephone them at once. We lose time. I go telephone now."

"Perhaps you'd rather not tell me about it tonight."

Bun laid a restraining hand on her arm. "No, Lib—wait. First tell me more about them."

"He was French. I know that. She—cette femme—no. She is étrangère."

Bun started. "American?"

"How can I say? She speaks with accent. No—not American. Maybe Italian."

"What did she look like—young—old?"

"Old—yes. She think not. She was painted so that one could not tell—except me. I can tell. She was older than the man. And she is—how do you say—boss. He does what she tells him."

"And he?"

"Little—high like that—with dark face—like a French apache in gentlemen's clothes."

"You said you would recognize them in purgatory. I don't find your description very definite."

"I make it so to the gendarmes, mademoiselle. You wait and see. I tell them everything. I go now telephone them."

Again Bun put out a restraining hand. "No, Lib. I don't think we'll do that tonight. At least not yet."

Liberté's amazement was contemptuous. "Mademoiselle acts like she wishes them to escape! Does she want them to carry off money like that—a fortune—two hundred thousand francs!"

Bun poured another glass of wine and handed it to Liberté. When she saw it had been drunk and that Liberté was ready to listen, she said quietly: "Sit down, Lib. I shall tell you my reasons. The man who gave me that money today has just been found murdered in his room at the hotel."

Liberté stared; her mouth opened, then closed like a trap; she nodded once or twice, then stared at Bun. "Then mademoiselle thinks——"

"I don't know what to think yet—only, for the moment, it's our affair and no one's else. You see what I mean?"

Liberté nodded several times. "That is bad. Mademoiselle will have to return the money she has no more. Is that it?"

"Something like that—yes."

Liberté rose in an entirely fresh explosion of wrath. "If mademoiselle does not wish to find them, Liberté does. She will. She will never die until she finds them. Remember, mademoiselle, the man—he kicked me when I was there on the floor. There are things a French woman never forgets. One forgets when a lover kicks—but an apache—a robber, never."

Bun rose. In spite of an effort to keep a cool head, she was not so steady as she had thought. "Pull yourself together, Lib, and try to forget—at least for the moment. Let's straighten up the salon. I expect Mr. Crawford at any moment."

Liberté's hands went out in protest. "Somebody else at this time of the night! Mon Dieu—what will the concierge say? It's past one, mademoiselle."

In a few minutes they had pushed in drawers, straightened rugs, and rearranged chairs. When the bell rang and Bun answered it herself—with Liberté beside her in case the apaches had decided to return—there was nothing to suggest to Crawford that the apartment had so recently been turned upside down by burglars. He followed Bun into the salon and slumped down in a comfortable chair without speaking, though all the time it was obvious that he was waiting until Liberté was out of the way. Bun poured him a whisky and soda—her mission that night seemed to be to furnish stimulation to distraught nerves—and placed the box of cigarets near him. Her first glance had told her that he was exhausted.

"It's my first assignment on a murder case." His mouth tightened grimly. "To be perfectly honest with you—I don't believe I like them. Something sickening in it all." He shook himself and smiled wrily. "Blood sort of turns me stomick."

"Poor old Fred! It's a little out of your line. Perhaps you'd rather not tell me about it tonight."

"I've got to. It's important for you." He swallowed the whisky at one gulp. "I got right into the room. The hotel director knows me and let me in. They were all there—police, detectives, Sûreté people. And the body—lying on the floor."

"How was he killed?"

"Shot. They say it was a clean wound—here," he pressed a finger against his temple. "No powder marks, and no pistol found—which eliminates the suicide theory, I'm sorry to say. Evidently he'd been in his room long enough to undress. He was in pajamas—blue silk. I didn't look at him any too closely."

Bun conquered a shudder. It seemed such a short time since she had been talking to the gentle old man. "What do they say at the hotel? Was he alone?"

"So far as they know. He didn't dine there. He came in about ten o'clock, asked the room clerk for his mail and went to his room. It was only by a fluke they found him tonight. He had ordered a bottle of Evian water sent to his room. The waiter did not take it at once; it was perhaps half an hour later. When he knocked on the door he got no reply. As the door was unlocked, he went in and found the old fellow lying on the floor—dead."

"Are there no clues?"

"None they told me of. They were looking for finger prints—all that sort of thing—while I was there. Fanchon's on the case. You've heard of him—of the Sûreté. The hotel staff are doing all they can to keep details out of the papers. The director thinks it's a simple case of murder for money." Crawford's eyes settled anxiously on Bun. "He told me confidentially that he knew Finlay had cashed a large check that day and was carrying the money round with him."

Beauty Answers

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

STUDENT: AT 15, THE CRACKling of the knees is due to insufficient exercise. The leg exercises in the West Point booklet will remedy that. Send five cents in coin or stamps if you wish the booklet.

DORIS: SURGICAL OPERATIONS for removing lines and wrinkles are successful only in the hands of reputable surgeons. The important step to take is to get the best recommendation from some hospital. Don't risk your face at the hands of some quack.

Banker's Wife Back to Seek Bits in Films

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Ruth Clifford, now enacting bits on stages where she used to star, dropped out as a leading woman in 1930 because she had married James Cornelius, a banker, and became the mother of a golden haired boy. "I'm glad I did," she says. "I wanted that child more than my career. When I dropped out everybody in the pictures told me it would be professional suicide." Reverses hit her husband's bank and now Miss Clifford is frank about her gratefulness for the occasional film stipend that comes along.

There's another slight edginess between Mae West and Marlene Dietrich. Both girls decided about the same time they wanted to rent Corinne Griffith's house while Corinne was on the stage in New York. Before Marlene went to Europe she had a lease on the guest house of Marion Davies' beach home.

There's an aged Chinese named Chung Duckin "going Hollywood" at Metro who survived the Los Angeles Chinese massacre in 1874, saved his American wages for sixty years, but lost it all a couple of years ago and now hopes to pick up enough money as a movie extra to get back to China before he dies.

Irene Dunne relieves the severity of a wool brown street dress by fastening a twisted gold chain at the neck with two clips.

Dolores Del Rio wears two rings, exact duplicates, one on each hand.

Buy Perfume by Number at Swanky Bar

Select Fragrance Suited to Your Personality.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Even the teetotalers and conscientious abstainers are stopping by "for cocktails" in a new nook just introduced in one Chicago store. It is something to get excited about, whichever way you believe, for the cocktails are as stimulating as anything fizzy in the way of liquid refreshments.

The cocktails are cleverly concocted perfumes, sold by numbers . . . they are served, sniffed, and sold over a swanky modernistic black and chromium bar with high chairs that invite you to loiter awhile. The bartenders, persuasively radiant, blonde, brunette, and red head, appraisingly offer the one cocktail they decide belongs to your personality.

It's a grand idea, besides being the thing to do . . . think what you can do when some thoughtless person insists upon knowing the name of your perfume. . . how gratifyingly evasive you can be when you whisper a number instead of a telltale name . . . or what fun it can be to travel the globe and nonchalantly wire or write for a supply of the number that is filed with your name, just as though it were a prescription in a drug store.

Next to the bar is a fascinating hideout where experts will tell you what you need for your complexion . . . whether you need oily creams, bland ointments, sauve soothing unguents, or tightening astringents and the like.

Remaking Mate MeansQuarrels Often Divorce

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Why shouldn't your husband resent you, Babe? What are you trying to do? Mold him to a pattern he can't possibly fit? And a pattern you'd probably want to change again once you did get it fitted?

Leave your man alone. Stop the nagging, the preaching, the scolding that I can read between the lines as part of his daily fare from you.

You married him for what he was. Bet you never once told him before marriage that you would like him different. Probably told him dozens of times that you would not have him different. So why start in now trying to undermine his morale with the constant pecking, pecking, pecking?

Don't you suppose, young woman, that there are times he says: "Migawd, is this the girl I thought I was marrying? What a wench she has turned out to be!"

He's just sport enough to take his disappointment on the chin, while you nag, and nag.

Why don't you let him be an individual and permit an individual's rights to his own temperamental differences, other opinions than yours? You're going to make a terrific mess of your life if you don't. Even if you divorce this husband you'll make the same mess of a second marriage, so long as you are the girl bent on remodeling a mate's character. If there is any reform to be accomplished the only way it can be managed is by letting your victim suspect that to be the last thing in your mind.

WEDDINGS

At 6 o'clock last evening in the Northminster Presbyterian church in Evanston Miss Beatrice Van Ness Mead, daughter of James L. Mead, became the bride of John Chandler Rooklidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rooklidge of Salt Lake City, Utah. The ceremony was read by the Rev. James Condon in the presence of about 200 relatives and friends, and a reception followed at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Mead, on Grant street in Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Anthony announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Adele, to Harry L. Oppenheimer, which will take place Thursday.

Twins Engaged

Ruth Mayer Janet Mayer

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Mayer of 5203 University avenue announce the engagements of their twin daughters, Ruth to Nathan W. Rubel, son of Mrs. Sadie J. Rubel of Winnetka, and Janet to Arthur Garfield Levy Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Levy of the Windermere East. Today is the birthday of the twins.

Finds Training of Crippled Is Saving in Tax

It is far easier for society to reclaim its crippled and disabled citizens through rehabilitation rather than to care for them permanently in charitable institutions, declared Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes of Winnetka, wife of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the department of interior and a member of the state legislature. She was speaking yesterday before the opening session of a joint conference of the National Rehabilitation association and the Federal Rehabilitation service, meeting for five days at the Hotel Sherman.

The conference is attended by 300 officials of government and private rehabilitation and social service organizations, from forty-four states which have joined in the appropriations for reclaiming persons who have been injured in industry, either through disease or by accident.

"The average cost of rehabilitation per person is $300," Mrs. Ickes said, "but to maintain such a person at public expense costs from $500 to $600 a year. The average age of the rehabilitant is 32 years and their work life may extend over a period of 36 years.

"Illinois was one of the first states to accept the federal rehabilitation act and in 1932 no other state equaled it in results. In this year the state succeeded in preparing for and placing in remunerative employment more handicapped persons than in any other year since the inception of the service. More than 1,598 individuals were trained and 723 were placed in employment."

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Members of the Oyster bay and adjacent colonies will center their attention next Saturday on the annual West Hills race meet, to be held on the estates of Former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Thomas J. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Brokaw have taken an apartment in the tower of the Waldorf-Astoria for the season.

Miss Channon Is Engaged to C. A. Schreiner

Wedding Will Be Held on November 8.

Littell, Mrs. Georgianne Gibson, Mrs. Carleton Blunt, Mrs. David Porter, Miss Margaret Harper, Mrs. De Witt Davis III., Miss Betty Lou Olmstead, and Mrs. Ralph E. Colville.

The end of October the league will have a second hand book sale to pour more money into its coffers.

Mrs. Harry Baxter, the daughter of Secretary of War Dern and Mrs. Dern, arrived from Washington yesterday to be the house guest of the William Jarmieh Kellys at their Elm street apartment. Because her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Dern, is so busy this week with the Service club revue, Mrs. Baxter will spend the entire week in town with the Kellys rather than with the Derns in Winnetka.

Short but sweet was the visit Mrs. John C. Greenway of Arizona paid to her new son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breasted, for she arrived on Sunday and left yesterday. She is on her way to Washington.

Winsor Frenches Here on Honeymoon.

Arriving in town yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Winsor B. French II., who are here to see the Fair for a few days as part of their honeymoon. Mr. French is the brother of Edward S. French, whose wife is the former Ruth Crossett, and his marriage to the former Margaret Perry, daughter of Mrs. Frank W. Frueauff, took place Saturday in St. Bartholomew's church in New York.

The hostess committee of the Illinois commission to A Century of Progress has invitations out for a program and reception for Mrs. Edward MacDowell of Peterboro, N. H., on Thursday at 2:30 o'clock in the Illinois Host house. Mrs. MacDowell is a distinguished guest of the Illinois Federation of Music clubs at the autumn festival and conferences and homecoming week.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the MacDowell society of Chicago, of which Mrs. Louis Yager is president, is meeting at the Ochsner home, 2106 Sedgwick street.

Two Interesting Lectures on Calendar Today.

There are two interesting lectures on today's calendar, one for those interested in contract bridge and another for those who want to know more of Japan's domination in the far east. At 11 o'clock Mrs. William B. Baker is giving the first of two lectures on contract bridge before the members of the Woman's Athletic club and their guests. She will speak again next Tuesday morning.

Far eastern affairs are to be discussed at 12:30 this noon by Owen Lattimore at the luncheon of the Chicago council on foreign relations at the Hotel La Salle. The subject of Mr. Lattimore, who has just returned to the United States after more than four years in Mongolia, Manchuria, and North China, will be "Frontiers of Inner Asia" or "The Importance of Mongolia to China, Japan, and Soviet Russia."

At the speakers' table will be Dr. Walter Lichtenstein, who will preside; Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Holgate, Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field, and Harley MacNair of the University of Chicago.

Dinner Tonight for Dr. A. N. Whitehead.

Dr. Alfred North Whitehead, who occupies the chair of philosophy at Harvard university and is regarded as one of the world's foremost speculative philosophers, is to be entertained at dinner this evening by President and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins at their Midway home.

Dr. Whitehead, whose recent volume, "Science and the Modern World," and "Adventures of Ideas," have been widely discussed, came to the university Sunday for a week's stay in the men's residence halls. This visit is the second made possible through a foundation established last spring by an eastern woman to bring notable personalities into contact with students. Mark Van Doren was the first.

After the dinner tonight Dr. Whitehead will lecture in Mandel hall and again on Thursday evening.

Wells college alumnae will be up bright and early this morning to take their places as saleswomen at the rummage sale the Chicago and North Shore Wells clubs are to have in the building at 2553 North Halsted street. The sale will continue through tomorrow and Thursday.

Medical Science Takes Up Study of Feminine Beauty Troubles

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One wonders if ten, fifteen, or twenty years from now, the medical profession will not be pretty deeply involved in the practice of those things we now presume to include under beauty problems?

I've been attending a few conventions lately which lead me to believe that's the way we are heading. Hair problems, skin problems, overweight and underweight problems, and so on, were presented. Perhaps it has always been a medical concern fundamentally. But my experience has been that up until a comparatively few years ago, the worthy profession frowned on identification with "beauty problems."

Now, they are willing to discuss quite openly and broadly the themes that most concern women. Certainly a healthy note in the progress of the day, I'd say. For who is better qualified to discuss hair troubles, skin or silhouette, than those familiar with the inner workings of the body?

There is a lot of undercover work going on in ethical medical fields, not quite ripe for presentation, on glands and their influence on the looks of the individual. I've wondered, too, if a few years hence we won't be dating the doctor instead of the beauty parlor for a gland injection instead of a massage or hair treatment.

But it is a healthy sign that men of science are willing to guide the layman out of his ignorance and lend a constructive hand in shaping him toward a better looking destiny. Furthermore, it reflects the growing intelligence of the lay person that so many women today put themselves in medical hands for reductions, for skin troubles and for other conditions that contribute to their looks.

It's proverbial that the feminine sex, at least, can be stirred to quicker action in matters concerning health if vanity is pressed into service. That is, a woman who ought to be consulting her physician for some constitutional ailment, will postpone the visit until some one reminds her she is looking badly.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ANSWERING MR. WOOLLCOTT.

Prof. Fordney turned to his friend William Schafer, owner of the Lindenhof training and boarding dog kennels of Chicago and said, "Here's a gruesome yarn, but it will interest you.

"A couple of weeks ago, Alexander Woollcott, well known critic, writer and commentator on the passing parade, repeated a story in his radio broadcast, stating it was making the rounds of the country.

"The essential facts related to Mr. Woollcott are these:

"A young married couple, invited to a party, took their year old baby with them and put her in the crib in the nursery of their host, Mr. Burke, whose own child was visiting its grandmother.

"The rather gay party broke up about 2 a. m. at which time the father went to the second floor nursery with his host to get the child. Outside the door they found Burke's thoroughbred, registered police dog (a German shepherd). As Burke started into the room the dog growled and snapped at him. The guest becoming alarmed secured a club and, when the dog refused to allow either to enter, knocked it unconscious. He then stepped into the room and found his child mangled, bitten and clawed to death by the dog.

"Mr. Woollcott," continued the professor, "asked any one listening in to send him either proof or unassailable denial of the truth of the story—stating he didn't believe it himself and. . . ."

"Of course, Fordney," interrupted Schafer, "you know how it could have been immediately determined whether or not the dog was guilty—although I'm sure he wasn't."

HOW COULD IT HAVE BEEN DETERMINED WHETHER OR NOT THE DOG WAS GUILTY OF KILLING THE CHILD?

[See solution on page 33.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Cream Cheese Finds New Uses in Pastry Line

Both Cakes and Pies Offer Varied Recipes.

BY MARY MEADE.

In cosmopolitan Chicago few folks are not already cheese-cake conscious. But I wonder if they've discovered there are just oodles of ways they can conjure up this topping off favorite. As a starter, it may be the child of cottage cheese or of cream cheese. A most appropriately named one of the first type is:

DELICIOUS COTTAGE CHEESE PIE (OR CAKE) CRUST.

1 2-3 cups finely crumbed graham crackers (about 22 crackers)
1-3 cup sugar
⅓ cup melted butter

Add the sugar and butter to the crackers which have been rolled fine. Mix well and press one and one-half cups of the mixture firmly into a pie pan, lining it on sides and bottom.

FILLING.

2½ cups cottage cheese
¼ cup melted butter
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
2 egg yolks, well beaten
Grated rind of one lemon
½ cup seedless raisins
½ cup chopped nuts

Combine all ingredients in the order listed and pour the mixture into the graham cracker crust in the pie pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for thirty-five minutes or until firm in the center. This pie may be cooked and served just this way. Or it may be topped with two stiffly beaten egg whites blended with two tablespoons of sugar. Over the top sprinkle the remaining crumbs, to which a little cinnamon has been added. If a meringue is used brown the whole pie lightly in the oven, chill, and serve.

But something perhaps even more pleasant is:

CREAM CHEESE CAKE.

1 package zwelbach
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
5½ packages cream cheese
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs, separated
1 cup cream

Roll the zweibach until fine. Add the butter and the two tablespoons of sugar, creamed together. Work together until evenly mixed, then press down into the bottom of a nine inch spring form mold. Blend the sugar, flour, and salt, cream them together, then mix well with the cream cheese. This will be simple if the cheese has been kept at room temperature for an hour before mixing. Add the vanilla and yolks of eggs, and beat. Add the cream and mix again. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour the whole mixture in on top of the crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour, or until the center is set.

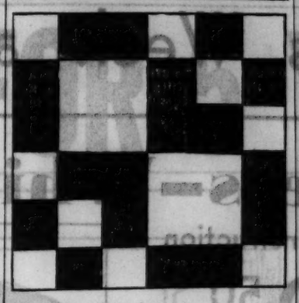
And by the way. Do any of you have the recipe for "Icebox Cheese Cake"? Spirits seem to have made off with ours (if we ever owned one), and it happens to be just the thing Mrs. E. G. is looking for.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained a company at dinner this evening, to meet the president of Panama, Dr. Harmodio Arias, who arrived today to be their guest until Wednesday, when he will go to the Panama legation to be a guest for a few more days.

Mrs. Roosevelt was the luncheon guest today of Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau of home economics of the agriculture department, at the department and then inspected the work of the bureau.

Game of Dominos Inspires Design of Vivid Contrast



Chained Dominos.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The old game of dominos inspired this quilt pattern, which dates it origin way, way back to the popularity of the game. It makes an impressive looking quilt if pieced in rather striking colors. Blue and white were the colors of the original, but of course this scheme need not be adhered to.

For a quilt pattern of this design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Swagger Coats Sport Linings of Shaggy Velvet, Collars of Odd Fur

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Swagger coats, bulkier, and ever so much heavier, are kept on in Paris styles for sports and travel this winter. The French style makers line them with fur, or with shaggy velvet, which is made to look more like the coat of a shaggy sheep dog than like its usual suave self. This kind of lining is exceedingly smart, and naturally it takes a pretty bulky coat to house it. Augustabernard is the one who makes her swagger coats with such linings.

The one in our sketch is so lined, in a mottled gray and black, and it has an amusing collar of fur in the same color, but don't ask me what animal grew the fur. The collar is a childish one with points in front, and it is twisted over at the back of the neck, as shown in the small sketch.

The coat is made of heavy blue wool, something like chinchilla cloth, and the way it fastens on the left side with three braid frogs adds a lot to its 1934 chic. So also does the way the sleeves have a dropped shoulder line, which becomes a yoke across the back of the shoulders. An inverted box pleat at the back of the coat, below the shoulder yoke, gives it a definite back flare.

GIANTS SIGN TERRY AS MANAGER FOR 5 YEARS

WHO'S IN LINE FOR AN UPSET NOW IN BIG 10?

Black Cats Prowl on Football Fields.

Games Saturday

Stanford vs. Northwestern at Soldiers' field.
Chicago at Washington U. [St. Louis].
Wisconsin at Illinois.
Notre Dame at Indiana.
Cornell at Michigan.
Purdue at Minnesota.
Vanderbilt at Ohio State.

Sports fans who amuse themselves by trying to predict where lightning will strike or what horse will win the seventh at Washington Park were busy at a new game yesterday. They were trying to figure out which championship contender will be upset in next Saturday's Big Ten football games.

Who's next? First Iowa surprised Northwestern. Then Kansas came along and held Notre Dame to a scoreless tie. It's no wonder that coaches and players at Wisconsin and Illinois, Purdue and Indiana, and other big schools are wary of black cats, walking under ladders or spilling the salt these days.

It's Somebody Else's Turn.

On the theory that trouble is due elsewhere this week Northwestern is confidently preparing for its game with Stanford at Soldiers' field. The same attitude is manifest at Notre Dame, where the boys are getting ready to make up for Saturday's sins by trouncing Indiana. But the Hoosiers say, "If Kansas tied 'em we can beat 'em."

Illinois partisans who figure that Bob Zuppke is about ready to spring one of his championship teams on the conference say the big parade will start in Saturday's game with Wisconsin at Champaign. The Badgers still are a mystery team, because Marquette was not strong enough last Saturday to call for anything but the simplest plays from Dr. Spears' quarter backs.

Purdue Plays Minnesota.

Purdue will try to start its march to a Big Ten title by beating Minnesota, which was tied by Indiana last week. Nonconference contests will take Chicago to Washington university, St. Louis, and will bring Cornell's team west to Ann Arbor for a game with Michigan.

BADGERS LEARN ILLINI SHIFT.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Illinois' offensive shift as enacted by Wisconsin freshmen was the lesson for today in the Badger football camp. Guy Sundt, freshman coach, scouted the Illinois game with Washington university.

Although no serious injuries were suffered by members of the Badger squad, who played against Marquette, the regulars were not ordered into scrimmage. This was saved for members of the squad who were on the bench Saturday.

Coach Spears concentrated upon speeding up the forward line on standard plays and reserved more technical maneuvers and tricks for later in the week.

PIATT TRIED AT GUARD.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Striving to strengthen the Illinois line to repulse Wisconsin's "power house" attack, Coach Bob Zuppke paid considerable attention to Lind Piatt, 205 pound guard, in today's light practice.

Piatt, who won a letter in 1931 but was laid up most of last season, played his first game at St. Louis Saturday and fell on the ball for a touchdown after Bob Bloom had blocked a kick. Piatt will have strong competition from Cliff Kuhn, a sophomore.

Zuppke will stand pat on the back field used against Washington, but must locate better reserve backs. Hope that Capt. Herm Walser may be able to play part of the Badger game is entertained.

SEEK TO REBUILD PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Seniority rights went by the board this afternoon as Coach Noble Kizer, alarmed at the unimpressive showing of the Boilermakers in their season opener, started from scratch to rebuild the Purdue football team.

Purdue's lack of a sustained offense against Ohio university, coupled with Minnesota's strong defensive showing in holding Indiana to less than 30 yards gain from scrimmage, has developed a feeling here that the Boilermakers must show a marked reversal in form.

The indefinite loss of Fred Hecker, veteran ball carrier, who was unable to play against Ohio because of injuries, and has shown little improvement, has complicated the Boilermakers' problem.

Both lines and backfields were scrambled during the workout as coaches searched for a combination which will display more polish than was evident Saturday. Butch Keegan, who scored one of the two touchdowns Saturday, was moved into the full back berth, while George Dennis and Fritz Febel were given a chance at the guard berths.

MICHIGAN ON DEFENSE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Michigan coaches today took up the work of trying to build a defense for Cornell, which will play here Saturday. Last week's game

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

POP WARNER in a current magazine article comes out for deflation of intercollegiate football. He fears that extravagant practices and the urge to get rich quick have injected evils into America's greatest amateur sport. He refers to football as an industry.

POP WARNER.

These remarks are interesting, indeed, coming as they do from a pioneer in big time football. Mr. Warner for many years has been head coach at schools dealing in high pressure athletics.

Warner recently left Stanford university after Southern California had repeatedly given him what you might call the Cuban rush. He transferred his activities to Temple university, a newcomer in the headlines. If you can believe the newspapers, and from time to time you will find them reliable, he is being remunerated at the rate of $20,000 a year for the next five years.

Nobody can quarrel with Warner's earnings. He is entitled to all he can legitimately make, but it seems a bit pharasaical to decry professional tendencies in football while receiving that kind of reward. Since reading his magazine piece I am shocked to think he would accept compensation above a bare living.

Temple undoubtedly could have hired a coach for $5,000 a year who would have been able to impart sufficient gridiron knowledge to his pupils so the school could have won its share of games from its natural rivals. I know several competent coaches who would jump at that dough. It is my hunch that Temple wanted a coach with connections, a coach who could get big games and lift the newspaper reports of those games from agate to minion. Mr. Warner probably never gave this angle a thought.

My memory is not what it used to be, but I have no recollection of any moralizing from Warner in the days when he was winning regularly at Pittsburgh and Stanford. It seems that he got religion only after Southern California whipped him two or three years in a row. Those who hit the sawdust trail usually are most vigorous in their denunciations. The holy oils of conversion invariably work that way.

I would like to hear from Tiny Thornhill, Warner's successor at Stanford; Howard Jones, Hunk Anderson, Harry Kipke, and other prominent leaders before I am convinced football needs to be deodorized. In other words, I doubt if Pop speaks for the brotherhood as a whole. He may be only a lone monk wandering in the desert.

You have to hand it to Kansas for knowing how to take its football victories. The Jayhawks last Saturday tied Notre Dame. It was one of their outstanding gridiron achievements.

Dr. Forrest Allen, athletic director at Kansas, dropped into this department after the game.

"We feel happy, of course," he remarked. "We were lucky to hold Notre Dame."

"It seems to me," we suggested, "that Notre Dame was lucky to hold Kansas."

"Individually Notre Dame is a better team," the Kansas sports chief replied. "We had two games under our belts and were in better physical condition. Our quarter back used much better judgment than Notre Dame's. But we couldn't have held them much longer. That final gun was the most welcome sound I have heard in years."

HERRERA WINS OVER RAMEY; FAN STRIKES REFEREE

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Tony Herrera of El Paso, Tex., Mexican lightweight, tonight was awarded a referee's decision in ten rounds over Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, rated the nation's second best lightweight by the National Boxing association.

The decision of Referee Jack Aspery, Detroit, was greeted with howls of protest, and fans swarmed out of their seats, milling about the ring. As Aspery elbowed his way through the crowd to his dressing room, he was struck on the mouth by an unidentified fan. The blow drew blood.

CRUICE'S RETURN TO SPRING FORM CHEERING TO N. U.

Wildcats Smash Frosh in Drill for Stanford.

Northwestern opened the final week of practice for the Stanford game with another smashing scrimmage against the freshmen yesterday.

The Wildcats see a chance to redeem some of the prestige lost through the Iowa defeat by overcoming the coast eleven at Soldiers' field Saturday.

The improvement shown by Wally Cruice, sophomore right half back, has been a source of encouragement to the coaching staff. The Milwaukee youngster has finally started running as he did in spring practice when he gave cause to believe that he would be a logical successor to Pug Rentner.

Full Backs Get Going.

Jakie Sullivan and Harry Leeper, who will divide the left half back duties, appear to have hit last season's stride, while Chilly Sutton and Chuck Duvall turned in some plunging at full back yesterday that recalled the smashing tactics of Reb Russell. Apparently Ollie Olson has fitted into the quarter back job.

The fight for the tackle positions continued with Capt. Jack Heuss and Bill Riley, seniors, battling Irwin Kopecky and Joe Chambers, a pair of 210 pound sophomores.

Stanford's team of 35 players and a retinue of coaches, managers, and trainers, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning and will proceed to the Windermere hotel. The Cardinals will work out daily at Soldiers' field.

Accompanying the Stanford party will be Ernie Nevers, former captain and full back of the Cardinal professional football team. Nevers retired from active play to become backfield coach at Stanford, where he won national recognition during his college days.

Stanford's First in Chicago.

Others in Stanford entourage in addition to the players will be Tiny Thornhill, head coach; Jim Lawson, end coach; Alfred R. Masters, general manager of athletics; Prof. W. B. Owens, faculty representative; Dr. Blake Wilbur, team physician; Al Peache, cheer leader, and Bob Saxe, football manager.

Saturday's game will be the first time that a Stanford football team has played in Chicago. This year the Cardinals have scored three straight victories. Bill Sim is one of the outstanding quarter backs on the coast while Bill Corbus rates the same at guard. Jim Moscrip, sophomore left end, has attained stardom as a result of his spectacular play in the three games to date.

MAROON LINE GETS WORK

Weaknesses in the work of the Maroon line on attack which were apparent in Chicago's victory over Cornell college Saturday became the subject of yesterday's drill on the Midway. Preparing to meet Washington university at St. Louis this week-end, Coach Clark Shaughnessy sought to coördinate the work of the line and the backs in a long dummy scrimmage.

Berwanger, Zimmer and Nyquist made ground under their own power because the opposition was not strong, not because the backs found big holes and good interference, according to critics. On defense the first string line proved satisfactory.

Protection of punters and placement kicking were other themes of yesterday's vigorous workout. Chicago missed three out of five tries for point after touchdown Saturday. No injuries more serious than bruises were reported in the Cornell game. Merritt Bush, tall sophomore tackle, was back in uniform yesterday, but may find it hard to dislodge John Rice, another sophomore, from the first string lineup.

Washington's 21 to 6 defeat by Illinois Saturday does not encourage Shaughnessy. His scouts report that Coach Conzelman's team was much improved over the previous week. Shaughnessy fears that he may have to pit his full strength against Washington and thus risk injury.

Ed Cullen, used at center for the Maroons in a surprise move Saturday, may be retained in that post. There appears to be no adequate understudy for Patterson. Cullen is compact and fast.

Vines Signs to Join Tilden as Tennis Pro for $50,000

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Ellsworth Vines, who lost his amateur tennis title last month, has sold his simon-pure status for $50,000.

Vines has signed a contract calling for that sum to join William T. Tilden's professional organization. He agreed to terms in a telegram received by Big Bill today. The Californian will receive $25,000 at Madison Square Garden and has been guaranteed an additional $25,000 as his share of the profits from by-products.

Plays Tilden Jan. 10.

Vines will play Tilden at the Garden Jan. 10 and again Feb. 21, when their match will feature the first of nine "professional Davis cup series." Henri Cochet of France, who recently joined the play-for-pay ranks, and Martin Plaa, veteran French pro, also will take part in the latter competition, which will consist of four singles contests and one doubles engagement. The other eight shows will be staged in leading cities throughout the country between February and September.

The Vines-Tilden deal has been on the fire since June, when the coast star was still champion of the United States and England. Just before the Wimbledon tournament, in which he was defeated by Jack Crawford of Australia, Bill O'Brien, Tilden's promotional associate, let it be known he had been promised $100,000 to turn pro on condition that he retained his American honors. When he was beaten by Bryan Grant in the third round of the national championship at Forest Hills early in September the negotiations were called off. Two weeks ago they were reopened, according to O'Brien, with a new proposal of $50,000 which Vines turned down. After consultation with his lawyer, however, he decided to accept it.

Had Sensational Career.

Vine's brief career as an amateur was one of the most sensational and, at the same time, most disappointing in the history of tennis. Coming east for the first time in 1930, he rose from total obscurity to eighth position in the national ranking on the strength of victories over Frank Hunter, Frank Shields, and Dick Williams at Sea Bright. The following year he captured the title at the expense of George Lott and beat Cochet, then rated as the world's greatest player, in straight sets in the final at Forest Hills.

As the leader of the Davis cup team this year, he was expected to bring back the international trophy but fell into a bad slump after falling before Crawford and was trounced by Bunny Austin and Fred Perry in the interzone final matches with England, which went on to take the cup from France.

On his return to this country he went from bad to worse and suffered his crowning humiliation when he was crushed by Bryan Grant in the third round of the national.

Detroit Cue Player Wins Opening Game of Tourney

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Marcel Camp of Detroit, Mich., won the opening game of the northern sectional pocket pool tournament today by defeating Sylvester Schleisman of Minneapolis, 100 to 46 in six innings.

In the second match Harry Wood of Duluth defeated Al Miller of Racine, Wis., 100 to 57 in 49 innings. Wood had a high run of 17, Miller getting 13.

CUBS TAKE TIME IN SELECTING NEW PRESIDENT

May Not Decide on Veeck Successor for Weeks.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There will be no haste in the naming of a successor to William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, who died last Thursday after a brief illness. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Philip K. Wrigley, controlling owner of the Chicago club and chairman of the executive board. Plans to proceed slowly in what Mr. Wrigley termed "filling a large gap in the organization" were reached at a meeting of the board, two members of which have died in the last three weeks.

The board after going over routine matters such as bank accounts, etc., decided to call a meeting of the stockholders, the meeting to be held as early as possible after notices have been sent out. The meeting will be for the purpose of filling the vacancies on the board. The late Mr. Veeck served as a director as well as president and treasurer. The other board vacancy was created by the recent death of Adolph B. Schuettler.

May Wait Several Weeks.

The naming of Mr. Veeck's successor will be in the hands of the board after the vacancies have been filled but the final choice may not be made for several weeks and possibly for a month.

"It is not going to be an easy matter to replace Mr. Veeck," said Mr. Wrigley, "and there is no need to hasten into it until we are definitely certain we have the right man."

"The Cubs really have an excellent organization and its affairs can be conducted indefinitely by officers who have been connected with the club for years," continued Mr. Wrigley. The routine business will be handled by William Walker, first vice president; John O. Seys, second vice president, and Miss Margaret Donahue, secretary.

Deals Are Up to Grimm.

Incidentally, Mr. Wrigley declared that, pending the selection of Mr. Veeck's successor, efforts to strengthen the Cubs for next season would not lag. Before his death Mr. Veeck had definite plans for deals with rival clubs during the winter and so far as possible these ideas will be carried out. Responsibility in this connection will rest with Manager Charley Grimm.

HUTCHISON AND ROBBINS WIN IN P. G. A. TOURNEY

Jock Hutchison, Glen View professional, and Tom Robbins, former champion at Park Ridge, were the sharpshooters in an Illinois P. G. A. best ball tournament yesterday at Ruth Lake, finishing with 34—31—65. A tie developed for second place, Joe Paletti and B. D. Anderson having 35—31—66, while Joe Noonan and Jim Noonan posted 33—33—66.

Tommy Armour of Medinah paired with Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields turned in 35—32—67.

FOOTBALL CHATTER.

PRE-SEASON suggestions that 1933 might be a year of gridiron upsets, and, therefore, more interesting football, bid fair to be borne out, if games already played are any criterion.

Here in the Big Ten Iowa already has downed Northwestern. While Minnesota's 6-6 tie with an improved Hoosier eleven, and Purdue's narrow 13-6 victory over Ohio university, a strong team, but hardly of conference caliber, may not be ranked as upsets, they at least were surprises.

FRITZ CRISLER.

Elsewhere in the conference results were more nearly as expected. Michigan, after gaining an early lead, no doubt relinquished effort against Michigan State. Wisconsin did better than anticipated against Marquette. The Wake has been suspicious of the reported weakness at Madison. Doc Spears and the capitol building are still there. Iowa continued on the way it showed against the Purple with a topheavy score against Bradley, which is not a setup. Iowa's progress will be one of the interesting features of the year. Chicago, against light opposition, and Illinois, against Washington U., recorded enough points to give their partisans renewed hopes.

Notre Dame was a distinct disappointment to its followers. It was outplayed by Kansas, which last year was beaten, 24-6. It will take a different brand of football to down later opponents.

Missouri, coached by Frank Carideo, which captured only one major contest last season, suffered humiliating defeat from Kirksville, which had an unbroken record in 1933 against lesser opponents.

Princeton's large score against Amherst, 1933 "Little Three" titleholder, indicates Fritz Crisler has the Tigers going early, while Yale only eked out victory over Maine, ordinarily a setup.

Two notable surprises were the tie between Alabama and Mississippi, the former having been rated highly, and Carnegie's 25-0 count against Pop Warner's Temple outfit. "Pop" recently wrote a magazine article that possibly some reforms in football were necessary. We have noted that when coaches begin to talk about inflation it frequently occurs near home. New York U., a stalwart of a few years ago, started to deflate football two years ago. It was deflated further Saturday by West Virginia Wesleyan, which had lost its two previous games the week before to little Geneva.

Out on the Pacific coast St. Mary's 14-13 setback by California was termed an upset, although The Wake was fortunate enough to call that one. Southern California continued its winning streak, 33-0, against Washington State, and the Trojans promise to be plenty tough for Notre Dame. Stanford, which meets Northwestern at Soldiers' field Saturday, downed Santa Clara, which had beaten California the week before.

There are plenty of opportunities for upsets this coming week-end, of which more anon.

Wake prognostications for Saturday's games yielded 52 winners, 16 losers, and 4 ties. Season to date: 100 winners, 22 losers, 8 ties.

PAY INCREASED AFTER WINNING OF WORLD TITLE

New York Players May Get Raises.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Bill Terry today was given a $200,000 contract as one of the rewards for leading the New York Giants to the world baseball championship in 1933 after the club had finished seventh in 1932. The Memphis choir singer, oil man and first baseman par excellence, under the terms of the contract, will manage the Giants for five years at a salary reported as $40,000 a year.

Terry had a year to go on the contract he signed when he succeeded John J. McGraw during the 1932 season, but Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, is so exuberant over the world championship won by the Giants that he could not wait a year to give a concrete demonstration of his satisfaction with Terry as a manager. The old contract, which called for $30,000 a year, was voided and the new one signed today.

Terms Satisfy Both Parties.

Announcement of the new contract was made by Mr. Stoneham in the following statement issued to the press:

"The New York Giants are glad to announce that they have signed Bill Terry to a five year contract as manager. While no terms will be announced, it can be definitely stated that both parties to the contract are greatly satisfied with the terms. At the same time Terry signed a player contract for an equal five year period."

Information that the terms provided a $40,000 annual payment to Terry was obtained from individuals close to the transaction after the Stoneham announcement had been made public.

It was indicated that Terry had forwarded the financial cause of most of his players in the conference which resulted in the signing of his own new contract. It is held probable that there will be no salary cuts and that some of the stars and younger regulars will be given sizeable pay boosts.

Believes in Paying Well.

Terry, as a player, ranked second only to Eddie Roush as a perennial holdout and master at deep dipping into the treasury in salary matters. As a result he is a firm believer in the theory that the best inspiration a ballplayer can have is a fat purse. The Giants under Terry are sure to be a well paid outfit.

Terry, who has been the Giants' first baseman for nine successive seasons, following a term as manager and first baseman of the Toledo Mudhens of the American association, is nearly 36 years old and a native of Atlanta. For many years, however, he has been a resident of Memphis.

Terry announced that he will start for his home in Memphis tomorrow, going by way of Chicago to attend the World's Fair with his wife and 15 year old son. An elaborate welcome awaits him there. Terry said he will return within a few weeks to get busy on plans for next year. He rejected a theatrical offer of $5,000 a week, Terry added.

President Stoneham took occasion to deny recurring reports forecasting sale of the Giants. The last reported buyer is John Hay Whitney, and the price $2,000,000. "Everything is for sale if the price is right," said President Stoneham. "I have not yet, however, discussed sale or price with any one."

CRONIN MAY SIGN TODAY.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Indications were today that Manager Joe Cronin of the Washington Senators would place his signature tomorrow on a contract to pilot the American league champions for at least another year.

The San Francisco player whose team was turned back in five games by the New York Giants conferred at length with Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball club, but both said afterwards the matter of a contract had not been discussed, and that they were "merely talking baseball in general and the Washington team in particular."

The contract Cronin is expected to sign tomorrow probably will call for a substantially higher salary than he received at the start of the present season, although both Cronin and Griffith have been silent about salary figures.

U. S. C. ADOPTS POLO; PEDLEY'S BROTHER COACH

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Willis O. Hunter, athletic director, announced today the University of Southern California will take up the sport of polo. Practice will begin next week. Lionel Pedley, a player of local reputation and brother of Eric Pedley, international star, was named coach for the Trojan horsemen.

The Trojans expect to meet the University of Arizona and Stanford riders in the spring. No other far western institutions follow the sport.

French Runner Breaks 3 Minutes for ¾ Mile

BY FRENCH LANE.

The 6,500 race track customers who were hardy enough to brave the cold, threatening weather to visit the Washington Park course yesterday watched one of the most thrilling finishes of the year in Chicago.

It came in the Lincoln claiming purse, a dash at 6 furlongs, in which Leros, owned by J. C. Ellis of Kentucky, turned up the winner. Six of the seven horses charged down to the winning post less than two lengths apart.

Leros beat Stuyvesant Peabody's Miss Melody by a nose, Miss Melody, to take down second money, beat Desert Call by another nose. March King was fourth just a head back of the three leaders. Sobieha and Pancoast were only a length behind Maseh King.

Here's Real Blanket Finish!

A couple of good sized blankets would have covered the first six horses as they thundered down toward the line of finish. It was such a spectacular ending that few in the crowd knew which horse had won until the official numbers went up on the big board in the infield.

Yet many were happy when Leros' number dropped into the winner's slot. He had been stoutly backed. After opening at 15 to 1 the price against him dropped down and down until he was slightly less than 6 to 1 when the race started.

A careful ride by Jockey G. Miller, who never draws his whip but depends on hard hand and foot riding in the stretch, made possible Leros' victory. Miller saved ground with the 5 year old son of Nocturnal rounding the final bend into the stretch. He brought him slightly out from the rail a sixteenth of a mile from the finish line. This move made it possible for Desert Call to crawl dangerously near the lead.

Leros Nears Track Record.

Miller kept Leros going in full stride. Miss Melody, finishing with a great rush, got up in the final strides to nip Desert Call for second money by just a few inches.

Leros raced over a track that was not quite at its best in the fast time of 1:11 3-5. This was fractions of a second less than the track record. In the mutuels he paid $13.14 to win.

Flaghorn, from C. B. Shaffer's Coldstream Stud stable, came with a mighty rush in the stretch to win the Lagoon purse by a length from A. A. Baroni's Liberty Oak and Mrs. L. A. Connor's Eurydice.

Wins in Last Strides.

In the early running Flaghorn was far back. Jockey M. Lewis started driving her on the turn into the stretch. He sent Flaghorn between horses coming down the stretch and finally pushed the daughter of Sun Flag-Leghorn into the lead with just a few strides to go.

Flaghorn was at odds on in the betting and paid $3.86 to win. The crowd was in great humor when she pulled away from her rivals to win going away. She stepped the six furlongs in the rather slow time of 1:12 2-5.

Ohio Boy Dies After Injury in Football

Athens, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Robert Larch Jr., 16 year old sophomore football player at Athens High school, died today of injuries incurred in practice on Sept. 8. It was the first year he had come out for the team.

Stablemate of Reveille Boy Is Homewood Victor

Martin Barton, which won the first race at Washington Park yesterday, is owned by Johnny Best of Memphis and is a stablemate of Reveille Boy, winner of the American Derby a few years back at tall odds. Reveille Boy isn't in training right now, having been turned out for a vacation. Owner Best expects to have him ready for winter racing.

O. Webster, the far western jockey whom Trainer C. E. Durnell brought to Chicago, showed plenty of skill when he got Stuyvesant Peabody's Alpers first past the winning post in the second race. Alpers was at nearly 7 to 1 in the betting.

Dunes, from the stable of Edward Drillon, won the third race. He was ridden by Jockey Jimmy Hunter, another far western boy. Dunes hugged the rail and beat out Shasta Star by a length and a half. His victory completed a daily double which paid $155.14.

Dan Sabath, the outstanding 2 year old in the stable of Attorney Albert Sabath, probably will not race again this year. He was injured badly about the legs before the start came in the race in which he was to run last Friday. Trainer B. S. Michell does not regard the injuries as serious and believes the colt will give a good account of himself as a 3 year old next year.

Four Spectators Killed at Italian Auto Race

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BARI, Italy, Oct. 9.—Four spectators were killed, and two were injured when a racing automobile driven by a German, Grosh, turned over during the Princess Piedmont cup race yesterday. Grosh, himself, incurred serious injuries.

471 ARE NAMED FOR ARLINGTON PARK FUTURITY

Race May Gross $60,000 —Kilmer Enters 32.

Nominations for the third Arlington Futurity, to be run at next summer's meeting at Arlington Park, were nearly 60 per cent higher than those for the second running of the $25,000 added event, it was announced yesterday. A total of 471 entries were received, against 298 for the 1933 Futurity.

With payments of $35 due Jan. 15 and $50 May 15 plus an additional $1,000 to start, next year's Arlington Futurity promises to exceed $60,000 in gross value, and may be second only to the Belmont Futurity as the richest race to be run in America.

Kilmer Leads with 32.

Leading the nominators is Willis Sharpe Kilmer, Binghampton, New York, sportsman, who made 32 of his yearlings eligible to the six furlong event. This number exceeds by three the number of entries made by Samuel D. Riddle in behalf of his Glen Riddle Farms stable. Many of the latter nominations represent sons and daughters of Man O' War.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable and Joseph E. Widener each have named 23 of their coming 2 year olds to the local fixture, while Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney is represented by 19 nominations. The Dixiana establishment of Charles T. Fisher, which furnished this year's Arlington Futurity winner in Far Star, has made 18 entries.

Mars Enters Racing.

Another leading nominator is F. C. Mars, Chicago candy manufacturer, who is entering racing next season. He purchased a large number of yearlings during the summer from Arthur B. Hancock, and they are receiving their first racing lessons at the Mars farm in Tennessee. Twenty of them were believed good enough to be named in the Futurity.

In all 88 different owners have made nominations to the event. Audley farm named 12; E. R. Bradley, 13; Brookmeade stable, 16; Calumet farm, 14; Hal Price Headley, 11; Llangollen stable, 15; John Marsch, 13; Sagamore stable, 9; Morton L. Schwartz, 8; Shandon farm, 9; Wheatley stable, 8, and Warm stable, 11.

KANSAS ATTACK INVOLVES USE OF UNBALANCED LINE

Try Warner System for Gains on Notre Dame.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

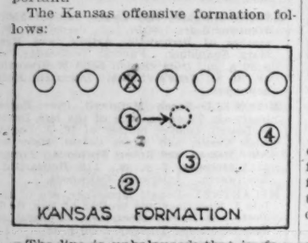
Coach Ad Lindsey of Kansas, has taught his players an attack which involves the unbalanced line commonly associated with the Warner system of offense and a one man backfield shift. Kansas had unexpected success against Notre Dame Saturday, although the game ended in a scoreless tie.

No formation, unless it is designed for deception, speed and power, will produce consistent results. Proponents of the Warner double or single wing back system claim these qualities for attack. The full back spinner and the reverse plays produce deception. The full back plunge is the most powerful. Critics repeat frequently, however, that the half backs are slower reaching the line of scrimmage than in other formations.

Both Attacks Fill Bill.

The Notre Dame system of ends and backs shifting, with half back and full back spinners, full back plunges and straight off tackle plays by the half backs meet the above requirements. So does the form of attack used by Kansas. After all, however, execution and material are most important.

The Kansas offensive formation follows:



The line is unbalanced; that is, four linemen on the right of the center. The unbalanced line is used to place together for attacking purposes the largest and most powerful linemen. In the Warner line the players are as follows: End, guard, center, guard, tackle, tackle, end. This places together the tackles as the center of attack.

Half Backs Change Positions.

Number 1 for Kansas was Hafford, the quarter back. Number 2 position, left half back, was played successively by Peterson, Hall and Brinkman. Number 3, the full back, was Beach and Number 4, right half back, was played by Dumm and Nesmith. The half backs, however, changed positions occasionally, particularly for forward passes.

The diagram shows the backfield shift somewhat similar to the Notre Dame shift except for the quarter back. Hafford shifted just before the ball was passed and then was in motion laterally at least one step when the ball was snapped.

Peterson carried the ball during Kansas' first period drive, smashing at Notre Dame's left tackle. Four consecutive plays gained 24 yards. Then Dumm and Peterson exchanged places and Peterson caught a pass and went to Notre Dame's 18 yard line. After Beach had plunged for a yard on a straight smash, Kansas used its first reverse.

Fumble Stops Drive.

The quarter back shifted to the right, but was in motion to his left when the ball came back to Peterson. The play was directed to the left against Notre Dame's right tackle and Peterson made 7 yards. On the next play Dumm fumbled and Lukats recovered the ball on his own 14 yard line.

This first period drive was typical of Kansas' play during the game. But don't forget that the Jayhawk line was driving back or blocking the Irish forwards when these gains were made.

Professional football so far this season has shown an increased attendance. Sunday four games were played with combined attendances of 35,000 at Boston and Brooklyn. Rain ruined the game at Cincinnati, and might have been expected to do as much at Green Bay. But Green Bay supports its Packers no matter the weather. Forty-two hundred paid admission, although it rained for more than twenty-four hours before game time. And the cold drizzle ruined a lot of clothes during the second half. Many of the fans [male] came attired in duck hunting uniforms, leather jackets, boots, and so on.

Green Bay got away to an indifferent start, tieing Boston, 7 to 7, and losing to the Bears and New York. But a revised lineup with the young bucks in the game demonstrated a power which may carry the Packers back to the top.

The Green Bay-New York Giants game in Milwaukee a week ago showed a profit of more than $4,000.

Wisconsin may be the big bad wolf of the conference. Marquette lost to Wisconsin a year ago, 7 to 2, but Saturday, with six holdover linemen. Marquette yielded, 19 to 0. Wisconsin plays Illinois this week. Other conference opponents are Iowa, Purdue, Chicago, Ohio State, and Minnesota.

Those who have picked Purdue as certain to win or tie for the Big Ten title may have been carried away by their enthusiasm for the Boilermaker backs, Pardoner, Hecker, Carter, and Purvis. The Purdue line has yet to prove its ability.

Big Ten Asks Who's Next in Line for Upset

with Michigan State showed the pass defense is far from perfect.

Tessmer, two letter man, who was out of action last year, today was listed among the favorites to play quarter back, chiefly because of Bill Renner's inability to get started Saturday. Tessmer has had little attention so far, but it is believed now that he and Louis Westover will divide the assignment.

NEW STAR FOR GOPHERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota football squad returned to work today for a week's intensive drill in preparation for the Purdue game here Saturday.

Outstanding in today's practice was the work of Julius Alfonse, high school rival of Pug Lund's at Cumberland, Wis., at right half back. Alfonse was declared eligible before Saturday's game. It appears that George Roscoe, who seemed to have the job clinched a week ago, will have to step at his fastest to beat out the hard hitting and speedy Wisconsin boy.

BUCKEYES GO TO MOVIES.

Columbus, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Rain hampered the workout of the Ohio State eleven today. After a short signal drill and brushing up on defensive work, Coach Willaman took the team to the lecture room and showed movies of the last Ohio State-Vanderbilt game, which the southerners won, 26 to 21. Vanderbilt plays here Saturday.

Few changes, if any, will be made in the line, but Willaman has a real problem in the back field, where so much good material is available. Frank Fisch was used in Dick Heckin's left half back position at the opening of practice today. His ability as a passer may get him a regular place on the varsity squad. Smith was at right half, Cramer at quarter back, and Wetzel at full back.

IOWA PLAYERS INJURED.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—First string football men at the University of Iowa were given a vacation today. Several of them were injured in Saturday's game against Bradley Tech.

Phil Thurtle, reserve quarter back, sustained a broken ankle, the third for an Iowa player this season. X-ray pictures revealed. Lawrence Haltom, quarter back, and Jim Kelly, freshman end, previously had similar fractures. Dick Crayne, full back, lost a fingernail in the Bradley encounter, but was expected to be able to handle the ball in a few days. Jo Richards, half back, had a dislocated thumb while Bill Secl, guard, suffered a recurrence of an old leg injury.

DOROTHY JENKINS REACHES FINALS OF CUE TOURNEY

Miss Dorothy Jenkins, representing the Leland Bowling and Billiard recreation, won the right to compete in the final round for the women's Chicago pocket billiard championship Thursday and Friday at the Pioneer Arcade, 1537 North Crawford avenue, by defeating six competitors at the Gold Coast recreation last night.

Miss Jenkins beat Miss Suzanne Janovic, Gold Coast recreation, in the final game, 25 to 4, in 12 innings. Other scores:

Dorothy Jenkins, 25, Jean Allen, 10; Mrs. Kitty Bree, 25, Adele Mueller, 18; Suzanne Janovic, 25; Miss Marge Winek, 16; Mrs. Bree, 14.

Tonight's round will be played at the Samuelson Arcade, 3947 North Crawford. Tomorrow night play will be held at the Roseland recreation, 11313 S. Michigan avenue.

MINORS PASS 131 PLAYERS TO MAJORS IN YEAR

Durham, N. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Traffic between the minors and majors has sent 131 baseball players up to the big show since the first of the year.

The press bureau here of the National Association of Baseball Leagues released figures today showing 56 pitchers, 34 infielders, 25 outfielders and 16 catchers went to the majors from smaller leagues.

The St. Louis Cardinals led the way in absorbing talent, taking 25 performers, while the Boston Red Sox claimed an even dozen from the minors either by purchase or draft.

The New York Giants showed the least interest in minor league talent, taking only three players.

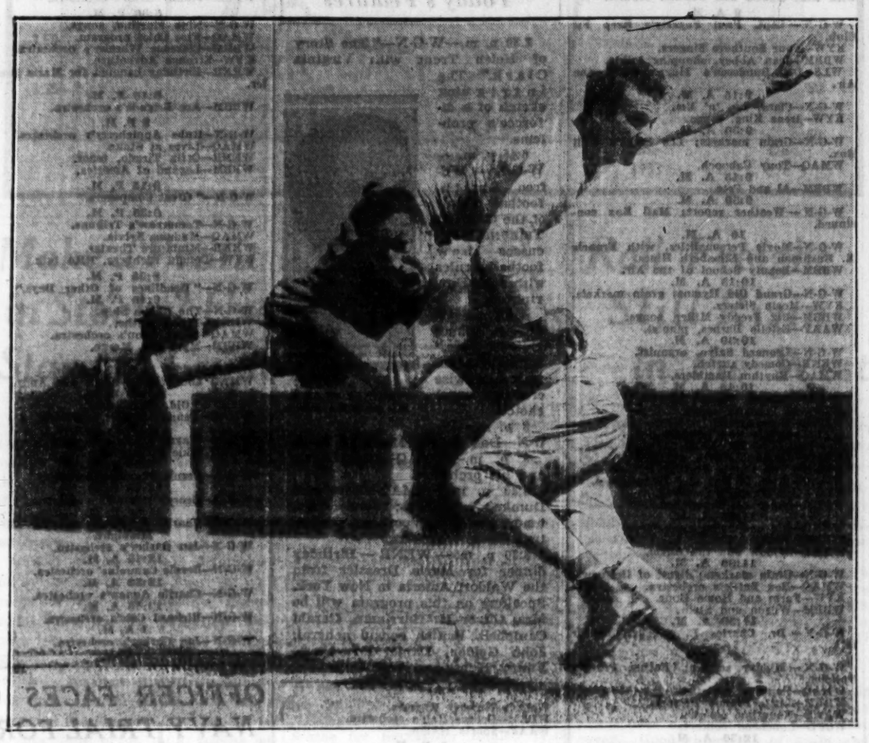
WARMING UP FOR WILDCATS



Ed Lettunich, Stanford tackle, and Al Norgard, end (in air), in practice for game with Northwestern at Soldiers' field Saturday. The Stanford squad will arrive tomorrow.

Iowans See 2d Devine in Dick Crayne

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Dick Crayne, a modest sophomore who does everything with a football, will bid for a place in gridiron history beside Red Grange, Harry Newman, and Bronko Nagurski at the University of Iowa this fall.

Because of his sensational ball carrying, in which he averaged more than six yard on every trial in his Western conference debut against Northwestern, Crayne's name is linked with the Hawkeyes' return to football prominence.

The 190 pound full back has been rated by Coach Ossie Solem as "everything a coach could ask for in a back field man," and by Rollie Williams, head basketball and assistant football coach, as "the greatest prospect since Aubrey Devine and Gordon Locke."

Can Block, Kick, Too.

Unlike many other star ball carriers, Crayne performs equally well as a blocker and punter. For this reason Coach Solem is not too concerned about the press notices of Crayne, although he admits that "every team in the conference will be set to stop him."

Solem is fully aware of the possibility of shifting Crayne to a lead back occasionally, when he can clear the way for Russ Fisher and Joe Laws.

The new Hawkeye star gained all state football recognition at Fairfield High school, where he played three years before entering the university. He was also state interscholastic champion in three track events, winning the indoor 60 yard high and low hurdle titles, and the 220 yard outdoor low hurdle championship.

Plays Saxophone Also.

Although he dislikes to admit it, he also plays the saxophone. According to friends he does it "just as well as he plays football."

Stardom to Crayne is "just a lot of bunk." Upon being congratulated after the Northwestern game his comment was: "I don't know what the papers are saying about me, but any one who says I was responsible for winning the game is mistaken. My punting was bad and I missed making a touchdown when I should have gone over. I run the 100 in about 10 seconds, which is no faster than several other men on the squad can do it. If they had carried the ball with the same kind of blocking I had, any of the others could have done as well."

PLAYS that made FOOTBALL HISTORY

(This is the eleventh of a series of unusual or freak football plays that hav occurred in recent years.)

BY WILFRID SMITH.

There's a goat for every hero. Baseball has its Merkle, Snodgrass, and Zimmerman, and football has its Riegels.

In the annals of sport the misplays sometimes are remembered longer than the winning performances. Every baseball fan knows how Merkle's failure to touch second base lost a game and later a championship. Snodgrass' muff of a fly ball is historic and Zimmerman's chase of the winning run across the plate will not be forgotten.

The 70,000 fans who saw the Tournament of Roses football game between Georgia Tech and California at Pasadena, Jan. 1, 1929, and those who read the account in the newspapers discovered football's greatest goat. For Roy Riegels, California center and captain-elect, ran 70 yards in the WRONG DIRECTION and the resulting 2 points for a safety decided the game. California lost, 8 to 7.

Is Downed Six Inches from Goal.

Even so, Riegels' run might have been forgotten if California had won, but it seemed that this play it occurred in the first period and was the first score of the game) completely upset California.

Many now believe that Riegels scored the safety. He didn't, but he put the ball on California's 6 inch line. To all intents and purposes he should be charged with the safety.

California's first period drive had been checked by Georgia Tech on the southerners' 25 yard line. On the first play Mizell of Tech fumbled. Riegels, defensive center, grabbed the ball. Then as he started to run he suddenly about-faced and ran toward his own goal. Centers aren't always the fastest men on an eleven. Riegels wasn't, but that afternoon he was clutching at fame. Inspiration lent speed to his flying feet.

The vast roar of the thousands drowned the cries of his teammates. Benny Lom, California's left half back, was the nearest of Riegels' pursuers. Gradually Lom gained on Riegels and with a final dive tackled the California center and the ball was downed six inches from a safety.

Kick from End Zone Blocked.

Still Riegels had hope that he might escape. The two principals in the drama, or was it comedy, prepared for a kick. Lom, the kicker, stood deep in the end zone to take Riegels' pass from center. Back came the ball, but the California men, upset by the misplay, let Maree, Tech right tackle, crash through to block the ball. Barr, California's right half, recovered for the safety. But it became Riegels' safety in history.

Riegels left the game. Many thought he had been ordered out by his coach, but Riegels wished to leave. He wanted to quit the stadium, but his mates persuaded him to return at the start of the second half.

Tech scored in the third period, but missed the kick for point and led, 8 to 0. California matched that touchdown in the fourth quarter, thus making Riegels' misplay stand out all the more.

Overlook Tie at Notre Dame; Eye Indiana

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Hugh John Devore, who played the best game Saturday, will lead Notre Dame against Indiana at Bloomington this week, it was announced today by Coach Hunk Anderson.

Devore was at the bottom of almost every defensive play of the Irish, he recovered several of the frequent fumbles, and played a vicious, reckless, but steady game for the 55 minutes se saw action. His blocking on offense was outstanding. He is a senior right end from Newark, N. J.

Anderson Overlooks Tie.

Anderson talked calmly and confidentially to his team in today's noon meeting, passing up the expected tongue lashing for Saturday's scoreless tie with Kansas.

He told newspapermen that he plans no major shakeups this week.

"We shall continue to shift men in some positions to get the maximum strength," he said, "but I think Saturday's starting team had the ability and lacked only the fire they needed against an inspired Kansas team. Maybe they will work harder this week against Indiana."

What Records Show.

Meanwhile, a check up of the record books showed that this was only the fifth instance in Notre Dame history when the Irish have been held scoreless twice in a row. The last time was in 1917 when Wisconsin and Notre Dame played a scoreless tie and Nebraska won, 7 to 0, from the Irish the next week. Southern California beat Notre Dame, 13 to 0, in the final game of 1932.

The records also showed that Notre Dame has never been held scoreless in three consecutive games in its 45 years of football.

HOOSIERS COUNT HURTS.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—"How many hurt now?" was the question on the Indiana campus today as the varsity first stringers went through limbering up exercises and the reserves had a stiff workout in preparation for Notre Dame's invasion Saturday.

Coach Hayes went to Minnesota last week with his first three quarter backs and his alternate center definitely out with injuries. Added to that Wendell Walker, starting full back, and Bruno Vercuski, regular end, went out of the Gopher game injured at the end of six minutes.

Today Indiana's hospital list included the following: Johnny McDonald, Don Veller, Rip Peters, quarter backs; Fred Antonini, center and guard, and Walker. McDonald's broken ankle, suffered in the Miami game, will keep him out for at least two more weeks. Veller has a chance of appearing against Notre Dame and Walker has a little better chance. Vercuski, who was knocked unconscious, appeared fit in drill today. Peters, who had a bruised shoulder, was much improved as was Antonini, and both are slated for action against the Irish.

PHILLIES SEEK JIMMY WILSON; RETAIN SHOTTON

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Geraid Nugent, president of the Phillies of the National Baseball league, today said the club is "trying to arrange a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals and it may be completed this week."

He made no details public, but reports have it the trade involves catcher Jimmy Wilson.

Nugent said the Phils were going to make "several trades, and I hope every deal will strengthen the club." He denied, however, that Manager Burt Shotton would figure in any of the trades, and asserted Shotton would pilot the Phils again next season.

Mrs. Hudlin Lauds Willis' Pitching and Gets Divorce

Cleveland, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—"George doesn't love me any more and he absolutely refuses to live with me," Mrs. George Willis Hudlin, wife of the veteran Cleveland Indians pitcher, testified today in domestic relations court in a suit for divorce. Judge Frederick Walther granted the divorce.

Judge Walther, when informed by Mrs. Hudlin that the couple separated more than a year ago, inquired: "Has he lost many ball games since he left you?"

"You surely aren't much of a baseball fan, your honor," she replied. "I've been to every game the Indians have played at home since we separated. George has won 12 and lost five this season."

Mrs. Hudlin charged "gross neglect" and asked no alimony. The attorney who acted for both parties said Hudlin had turned over money and securities to him in settlement.

BODACH NAMED COMMODORE OF L. P. BOAT CLUB

The Lincoln Park Boat club held its annual meeting last evening at the clubhouse in Lincoln park. Those elected for the year 1934 are:

Commodore, Bob Bodach; vice commodore, Vincent Smith; captain, Charles Miner; lieutenant, Max Deffner; secretary, R. Kerwin; treasurer, Bert Anderson; directors, H. Fleugge, C. Miner, R. Kerwin, and J. Morrison.

The club had a successful season in 1933. Capt. Miner in 1928, with Commodore Bodach, were champions in the double sculls in the Central States and Southwestern Amateur Rowing associations.

ROCKFORD MAN'S 86 WINS HOTEL GOLFERS' EVENT

Zack Jenkins of Rockford captured the chief prize in the Chicago Hotel men's Golf association tournament yesterday at Evanston by shooting 86—13—73 over a damp course. John Calvey, Parkway hotel tied Jenkins for net with 94—21—73, but the lower handicap was recognized in making the award.

Shooting 91—11—80, Jack Palmer captured the Purveyor's cup.

BEARS AND CARDS POINT FOR 26TH MEETING SUNDAY

Light Back Field to Face League Champions.

A light but fast back field behind a heavy line is the combination Coach Paul Schissler of the Cardinals will send against the Bears' eleven in the renewal of their National Professional league rivalry at Wrigley field Sunday afternoon.

It will be their 26th meeting since 1920 and the league début of the Cardinals in Chicago this season. Although both clubs will use Wrigley field as their home grounds, Sunday will be visiting day for the Cards.

The Cardinals were heartened considerably by their 3 to 0 victory at Cincinnati Sunday after losing two games by only one point.

McNally Is Ready.

Tim Moynihan, still suffering the effects of the Notre Dame All Star-Bear game last month, will not be available, but Franny McNally, the other veteran Card center, is expected to play after a layoff of two weeks.

Clif Hansen, who was with the Bears up to last week, will be ready to play in the back field. He was not used last Sunday as he had not had time to become thoroughly familiar with the signals and plays.

Gil Bergerson, giant tackle, who played with the Bears last year and part of this season, also joined the Cardinals and will see action against his erstwhile mates.

Mike Koken, former Notre Dame star, who signed early last week, apparently has won a regular berth. Hinchman, who came to the Cards in a trade with Boston, is another good back.

Bears Play Washington.

While the Cardinals are drilling here for the game, the Bears are still in the east. They meet Washington, D. C., tomorrow in an exhibition game and will return to Chicago Thursday evening.

DE PAUL TAKES LIGHT WORKOUT FOR ST. AMBROSE

De Paul university's football game, scheduled for Saturday with St. Ambrose at Davenport, Ia., will be played on Sunday instead, it was learned by Coach Jim Kelly yesterday.

Only a light workout was held yesterday at De Paul. A checkup revealed no physical injuries in the victory over Valparaiso, and all players will be ready to battle for De Paul's third triumph.

Indications yesterday were that Bill Hayes and Bill Oldani, rated as second string backs, will be moved up to the first team lineup. They performed well last Saturday. Les Kein, full back, and Ray Durkin, quarter back, also played excellently. St. Ambrose has not lost a game since the start of last season.

ATTORNEY SENT TO PRISON FOR WAR CLAIM FEE

Charged Illegal Sum to Veteran's Widow.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Leslie Hendrickson of Boonville, former Warrick county prosecuting attorney, was sentenced to one year and a day in prison by Federal Judge Robert Baltzell, Indianapolis, at the opening session of the October term of the Federal court here today.

Hendrickson changed his former plea of not guilty to guilty of collecting excessive and unlawful attorney's fees from a world war veteran's widow in the settlement of a war risk insurance claim.

He was indicted on a charge of having obtained an $800 fee from Mrs. Zelma Keefe, widow of Cleveland Hicks, world war veteran. Hendrickson pleaded ignorance of the law providing a $10 fee only for an attorney handling a world war insurance case.

At this morning's session it was revealed that Hendrickson had also accepted $4,000 from William Thomas Earley, 83, Warrick county, whose son was killed in the war. The former prosecutor declared the money was a gift to him for settling a $9,000 war risk claim.

DIVORCE, REMARRIAGE SOLVE TROUBLES OF AN AMNESIA VICTIM

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A divorce and remarriage have solved the marital difficulties which beset Edgar G. Allen, amnesia victim who recoverd his memory to find himself with two families.

Allen's attorneys disclosed last night that he was divorced last Thursday from the wife he married 40 years ago in Ridgewood, N. J., and Friday remarried the Madisonville, Tenn., wife to whom he was wedded in 1912 under the name of Ted Morris.

The attorneys said the 57 year old man returned to remarry his Tennessee wife for the sake of their 14 year old daughter, Dolores.

The Allens planned to leave today for Middletown, N. Y., to make their home. A brother, L. C. Allen, resides there.

Allen disappeared from his wife and two sons in New Jersey in 1911, the victim of amnesia. He lived under the name of Ted Morris for 22 years before his real name came to him suddenly as he walked along a Knoxville, Tenn., street last winter.

Upon recovering his memory Allen returned to his family in New Jersey.

FUNERAL RITES ARE HELD FOR HANNA SCHMIDT

Funeral services for Miss Hanna M. Schmidt, well known Red Cross worker, were held yesterday at 1732 Wilson avenue. Burial was at Rosehill cemetery. Miss Schmidt died early Saturday at her home at 1633 Granville avenue. She was 52 years old. For the last fifteen years Miss Schmidt was executive secretary of the White Elephant Rummage shop, 27 East Ohio street, which is operated for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital. During the war she conducted the Cottage Canteen, situated at Adams street in Grant park, under the auspices of the Red Cross. She had been connected with the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross for many years.

FLYERS WARNED BY "JUMP" SIGN LAND BY CHUTES

Hampton, Va., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A message to "jump" chalked upon the side of an airplane today led to membership in the "Caterpillar" club for Lieut. E. A. Hillery and P. H. Paul, Langley field flyers.

The two jumped to safety with parachutes from a bomber after a fellow officer noted the landing gear of the ship was damaged and gave the written warning.

Renee Adoree Is Buried in Hollywood Cemetery

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Funeral services for Renee Adoree, film actress, who died last Thursday, were held at Hollywood cemetery chapel today. A cherished picture of her mother was placed in the casket by the actress' sister, Mira La Fonte.

Emmet McSharon, Editor Catholic Messenger, Dies

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Emmet M. Sharon, 86, former Davenport attorney and editor of the Catholic Messenger, a weekly publication, died last night at his home here after an extended illness.

JURY IS CHOSEN IN $600,000 WILL SUIT IN GENEVA

A jury was selected in Kane county Circuit court at Geneva yesterday to decide whether the $600,000 estate of the late Mrs. Fannie Bishop Henderson of Aurora will be divided among relatives or used to establish an old peoples home.

Mrs. Henderson died in 1931, leaving a will providing that an old peoples home should be built from her estate. This will is attacked by Charles F. Earle, a cousin. He alleges that Mrs. Henderson was not competent to draw a will and that William George, former banker, used undue influence in getting her to make it. George is executor. Siding with Earle in the contest are half a dozen other kinspeople.

Mrs. Sarah Shafer Dead; to Be Buried in Indiana

Mrs. Sarah Shafer, 82 years old, died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Maurice Powell, 3010 Jackson boulevard. She was a member of the Roush family, well known in Indiana, especially in Grant county. Formerly of Jonesboro, Ind., she had been a resident of Chicago for the last seven years. Funeral services were held last night in the chapel at 1301 Jackson boulevard. Mrs. Shafer will be buried at Marion, Ind., today.

HEAD OF CHICAGO DENTAL SOCIETY HIT BY TAXICAB

Dr. Joseph E. Schaefer, 55 East Washington street, president of the Chicago Dental society, was struck by a Yellow cab yesterday afternoon at Washington street and Wabash avenue. Several bones in his right foot were fractured. The police said the driver of the cab, Charles Bernstein, 1622 South Sawyer avenue, ran through a stop light. Bernstein was not held.

Leo Bertacchi, 11 years old, 1118 Lathrop avenue, Forest Park, died last night in the Edward Hines hospital of injuries suffered yesterday when he was run down by an automobile in Roosevelt road in Hillside. The driver sped away after the accident. The Bertacchi boy's death raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 799.

The body of a man killed when he was struck by the car of a hit and run motorist on the Lincoln highway a mile west of Torrence avenue on Sunday evening, was identified yesterday as that of Henry Ball, 30 years old, 22 West Main street, Chicago Heights. He was identified by his father-in-law, Fred Schaeffer, with whom he lived.

Miss Chung Sum Mol, 22 years old, 308 West 47th street, New York City, a member of a Chinese musical troupe, was critically injured early yesterday when the auto in which she was riding collided with another car at Wood and Fulton streets. She was taken to the County hospital.

MOTHER AND SIX CHILDREN DIE AS HOME BURNS

Pequot, Minn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Authorities tonight were investigating a fire in which Mrs. Sadie Johnson, 29, and her six children were burned to death this morning. Early examination indicated that a faulty heater started the fire which razed the home.

Mrs. Johnson had vainly attempted a rescue, it was shown by the fact that her body was found where the stairs had been. The three older children, whose ages ranged from four to nine years, were sleeping on the second floor of the frame cottage. Their bodies were found in their beds.

She had been unable to reach her three younger children, who slept downstairs in a room near hers.

Roy Johnson, head of the family, became hysterical when he returned today from the summer resort, a short distance away, where he is employed as night electrician.

Dr. William K. Powis Dies After Brief Illness

Dr. William K. Powis, 8678 Vincennes avenue, who for seven years was director of the Chicago free dispensary, died yesterday morning in the Burnside hospital after a brief illness. He was 44 years old. Dr. Powis was a fellow of the American Medical association and a member of the Illinois and Chicago Medical associations.

OFFICER FACES NAVY TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Lieut. John Henry Cross of the United States navy will face a general court martial tomorrow in Coco Solo, charged with voluntary manslaughter, as a result of the death of Lieut. Robert Burks Morgan in an automobile accident last month.

The Cross case has been the cause of much conflict between naval and civil jurisdictions. District Judge R. C. P. Thomas issued a bench warrant for Lieut. Cross, seeking his arrest for trial in a civilian court, but the navy refused to permit service of the warrant.

District Attorney J. J. McGuigan contends the navy does not possess the jurisdiction to try Cross because the accident occurred outside the naval reservation. Civil authorities, because of the conflicting contentions, say they will refuse to permit witnesses to testify before the navy court martial and will retain all evidence themselves.

Body Identified as That of a Minneapolis Man

The body of a man found with his skull fractured in an alley at the rear of 743 State street last Wednesday, was identified yesterday as that of Edward Benedict, 50 years old, 4407 Blaisdell avenue, Minneapolis.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Sir Edward Elgar, famous British composer, has undergone an abdominal operation and, it was announced today, is recovering satisfactorily.

Mrs. Ida Treulich to Be Buried Tomorrow

Mrs. Ida Treulich, widow of Otto Treulich, north side business man, will be buried at Waldheim cemetery tomorrow after services in the chapel at 2701 North Clark street at 10 a. m. She died on Sunday in her home at 810 Altgeld street after a four months' illness. Surviving Mrs. Treulich are two sons, Alex R. and Sidney S. Treulich.

A SIGN of SERVICE

Pioneers in protecting the public against high funeral costs, Lain & Son have always set the standard of service.

Today, Lain holds more services in a month than the average undertaker has in a year. No other Chapel in Chicago holds as many services as Lain's.

Because of this leadership, Lain includes these exclusive features with all services, even those as low as $110:

Conditioned Air
Protects the health of all who attend Lain Chapel services — provides an abundance of air washed and purified, and circulated at correct temperature.

Imperial Quartet
Lain was the first Chapel to include with all services — the Imperial Male Quartet, Organist and Organ.

Price Protection
Lain was the first to answer the price question by publishing the cost of 1000 funerals; showing that more than one-third of Lain services actually cost less than $200. Also, to price mark all merchandise.

Quality Merchandise
Lain's prices are lower because of volume. All merchandise is bought on a cash basis from reliable manufacturers only; we never offer "bargains" or "seconds" in merchandise.

Lain's personnel has few changes over the years, and with the most modern of facilities — render a service that cannot be equalled.

To secure this finer type of service, call Lain — no matter where you live in Chicago or Suburbs.

SUPREME COURT DENIES REVIEW OF GRAIN SUIT

Attack on Reporting to U. S. Fails.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—The fight of four Chicago grain brokerage houses on the legality of the grain futures act came to an end today when the United States Supreme court refused to review of the decision of the Seventh District Court of Appeals upholding the validity of the act.

Under the act brokers are required to report certain of their transactions to the secretary of agriculture. The Chicago brokers challenged the validity of the regulations particularly those forcing them to reveal their future transactions to the government. The firms who enlisted in the fight were Bartlett, Frazier & Co., James E. Bennett & Co., Paddleford & Lamy, and F. S. Lewis & Co.

The brokers declared that the act constituted an unwarranted invasion of their private rights and was a constant threat of prosecution for unknown and undefined offenses. Refusal to assent to the government's examinations would put them in peril or expulsion from contract markets of suspension from the Chicago Board of Trade, it was argued.

REVIEW MORATORIUM ACT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Supreme court today agreed to decide whether a state can abridge a contract in an effort to aid depression victims.

The Supreme court consented to review the Minnesota moratorium act that extended the time within which persons might regain property sold under mortgage foreclosures. The case was set for argument on Nov. 6.

The constitutionality of the act was challenged by the Home Building and Loan association. It contended the law violated contracts under which mortgages were made.

In the opinion of judical authorities, the willingness of the court to pass on constitutional questions presented in the case presaged decisions on many of the points that may arise out of federal and state industrial relief legislation.

The Building and Loan association foreclosed a mortgage on a parcel of Minneapolis real estate. The owners had one year in which to redeem the property.

The Minnesota legislature enacted the moratorium statute directing the courts to refuse for two years to entertain suits to collect debts secured by real estate mortgages. The Building and Loan association brought before the Supreme court the question of the sanctity of contract.

OTHER BUSINESS RULINGS

Among other rulings affecting business handed down by the Supreme court today were these:

Declined today to reconsider its decision of last term holding the American Car and Foundry company could not limit its liability under the act of March, 1851, for injuries and damages suffered when the gasoline cruiser "Orion" it had built and sold on the installment plan to H. A. Brassert was destroyed by fire off Fort Sheridan in Lake Michigan, in August, 1930. It left open the question whether the company was guilty of neglect in manufacture, which would give Brassert grounds for a damage suit.

Declined to reconsider its refusal last term to pass on the right of the Pennsylvania railroad to use motor trucks in making freight deliveries and collections in New York City without first obtaining permission from the interstate commerce commission.

Review "Full Crew" Law.

The appeal of the Missouri Pacific railroad, challenging the validity of the Arkansas full train crew law, was entertained.

Denied appeal of the United States Business corporation for a review of a decision in favor of the government that the section of the revenue act imposing a penalty tax on profits permitted to accumulate instead of being distributed to stockholders was valid.

The Baltimore and Ohio and other railroads were denied a review of the ruling by lower federal courts holding the interstate commerce commission had jurisdiction to award reparations for overcharges.

LIFE INSURANCE MEN TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS HERE

Preliminary sessions of the American Life convention, the biggest and most important of the year's insurance meetings, got under way here yesterday.

General sessions will open tomorrow at the Edgewater Beach hotel and about 500 of the country's leading insurance men will be in the city during the convention.

Subjects of more general interest will occupy general meetings opening tomorrow. Among the subjects scheduled for discussion are life insurance company investments, possibility of increased premium rates, and the problem of insurance supervision.

Another important insurance meeting, the convention of the National Association of Life Insurance Agents, will open this morning at the Drake hotel.

Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of the national recovery administration, is the headliner on the association's meeting tonight.

Refiners Advance Price of Sugar to 4.75c a Pound

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Several companies today announced an advance of 15 points to 4.75 cents a pound in the price of refined sugar.

Court to Push Illinois Phone Rate Hearing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—On petition of the Illinois commerce commission, Attorney General Otto Kerner and Chicago Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, the Supreme court today moved to expedite a settlement of the long standing legal dispute over regulation of telephone rates in Illinois.

ATTY. GEN. OTTO KERNER.

The court advanced to Jan. 15, 1934, the date for oral argument in the Illinois telephone rate case in which the lower court held rates fixed for Chicago by the commerce commission ten years ago to be confiscatory and in violation of the constitutional "due process" clause. In their petition for advancement of the case, the commerce commission and legal officers of Illinois and Chicago declared that the delay in settling the matter was greatly hampering the state's jurisdiction over the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

Rate Inquiry Prevented.

"The pendency of this case has prevented, since 1923, and now prevents, any further investigation into the rates, revenues, and expenses of the appellee as many of the questions which must arise in such investigation are waiting final disposition of this case," said the petition.

In addition, the petition pointed out other reasons for haste in settlement of the case, as follows:

"Many issues arising from the relationships between the appellee and the American Telephone and Telegraph company covering revenues, expenses and rates of return awaiting final disposition in this case are also present in every investigation before the Illinois commerce commission relating to the proper rates to be charged by the appellee in the many communities in the state of Illinois.

Urges Settling Controversy.

"Disposition of this case should dispose of and settle the controversy as to the proper rules covering the accounting between the holding company and its subsidiary operating utilities, the weight to be given to reproduction cost new of property, the propriety of deducting from the valuations of property, for rate making purposes, the amount included in the reserve for depreciation, and the jurisdiction of state commissions over the method of determining the amount of depreciation expenses of telephone companies, and the proper application of the standard of the Bluefield case to the mutual plan of operation, under which the twenty-four Bell telephone operating companies functioned.

"The difficulty of identifying the subscribers to whom refund must be made, should the final decree be reversed by this court, is so increasing with time as to tend to render such reversal ineffective as to charges already made."

FIGHT RATE CUT UNDER NRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Added expense caused by introduction of the NRA was a new reason submitted in federal court here today by the Wisconsin Telephone company in explaining why the state public service commission's order for a 12½ per cent reduction in the concern's rates should be enjoined.

The appeal of the company for an interlocutory injunction restraining enforcement of the reduction order opened before three United States district judges, as required by statute. They are Judges Jatrick T. Stone, Wausau; Louis FitzHenry, Chicago, and Ferdinand A. Geiger, Milwaukee.

Says Pay Roll Increased.

Edwin S. Mack, counsel for the company, pointed out that the additional expense to the company resulting from an increased number of employés and reductions in their hours of work had not been considered by the commission in ordering the rate reduction, which was designed to be effective until next August, supplementing a similar order for an identical reduction in the previous year.

The order is confiscatory, fundamentally fallacious, was made without sufficient public hearings, and phases of it were partly drawn before hearings were called, Mack charged. If it becomes effective, it will permit the company a maximum of 3.2 per cent net earning on the concern's investment, rather than a 7½ per cent earning which the Wisconsin Supreme court declared was equitable, he said.

Treasury Bills Are Sold on 12-100s Per Cent Basis

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Woodin announced today that applications had been received to the amount of $136,598,000 for 91-day treasury bills, of which $75,020,000 was accepted. The bids ranged from 99.967 to 99.98, equivalent to interest rates of .08 to .13 per cent. Average price of bills to be issued is 99.971, equal to a rate of .12 per cent.

Make a Profit in Stocks? Use Stars as Guide

Reduced from $130 to $10 a month—a new investment service that culls market profits from the stars. It charts a corporatalon's horoscope as of the date it filed corporation papers and blends that with the individual's horoscope.

Market movements are determined not by the mysterious "They" of Wall street or by Washington's master minds, but by the twinkling little stars. Uranus, and not the Youngs, Dohertys and Saranoffs, dominates the utilities; Mercury rules communication companies. Presumably the Milky Way and the big and little dippers determine how much milk bossies all over the country will yield.

New Washington bureaus are being organized so fast and in such great numbers that the supply of initials to designate them threatens to run out, and there may be confusing duplications. When the citizens' conservation corps was organized it was promptly labeled the "CCC" after the fashion of the RFC, the NRA, the PWA, the HOLC, and the rest of them. Now along comes the Commodity Credit corporation, new RFC subsidiary, whose initials are also "CCC."

What with low interest rates and NRA programs, the banks are not unwilling to weigh the importance of the widow's mite these days. One large New York institution has set its clerical staff to soliciting orders for safety deposit boxes. This "homework" is accompanied by an offer of a salesman's commission.

Now that the stock exchange is actually faced with the possibility of being regulated by the department of commerce, economists, cranks, and odd-lot traders will probably come forward with thousands of suggestions for improving the trading machinery. Some feel that the worst phase of the brokerage business is the margin trading; others believe the specialist system should be revamped; that the listing requirements should be tightened, or that more stringent regulations should be passed against short selling and against pool operations. Sifting the theories on the subject may take many months.

The first reports of the investment trusts for the third quarter indicate that the persistent optimism of the managers on the future of securities has, for the present at least, resulted in somewhat of a setback in the net value of their assets since June 30. The trusts, however, have constantly pointed out that they are not speculators trying to catch every turn of the markets, and they insist that they still expect prices to go to higher levels and justify their bullishness.

FLORSHEIM SHOE TO RETIRE MORE 6 PCT. PREFERRED

The Florsheim Shoe company yesterday announced plans for retiring an additional 11,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock which will leave outstanding approximately 10,000 shares of an original issue of 72,500 shares.

The company has followed a policy of steadily reducing the senior stock. At the end of last year 31,875 shares were still held by the public. Some purchases have been made by the company since that time, it is understood.

Irving S. Florsheim, president, in a letter to stockholders yesterday gave notice that the company is prepared to purchase the 11,000 shares at the present redemption price of $108 a share plus accrued dividend to date of purchase.

"This offer is being made so those holders of preferred stock who wish to dispose of their holdings may do so, and those who wish to retain their stock may avoid having it redeemed at this time," Mr. Florshein stated.

The offer to stockholders will expire at 3 p. m. Oct. 23.

WORLD AUTO SALES OF GENERAL MOTORS OVER LAST TWO YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—World sales of General Motors in September declined seasonally for the third successive month but continued to show vast improvement over the corresponding 30 days of last year and 1931, the company reported today.

The total of 81,148 units sold during the month compared with 97,614 in August, the peak this year of 113,701 in June, and 30,117 for September, 1932.

The percentage gain over last year was 170 and the loss from August about 16 per cent.

World sales for the first nine months were 784,302 units, compared with 492,323 last year, an increase of 58 per cent.

Sales to consumers in the United States for September totaled 71,458 units, against 86,372 in August and 34,694 a year ago. For the nine months consumer sales were 644,892 units, against 450,347 last year.

Dealers in the United States purchased 67,733 units in September, against 84,554 in August and 23,545 last year. Nine months' purchases totaled 672,545 units, compared with 419,937 last year.

DOLLAR SLIDES THIRD OF A CENT; POUND STEADY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—The dollar and other paper currencies again weakened in foreign exchange today. In terms of the gold franc the dollar fell to 65.85 per cent of parity and closed at 65.95 per cent, off 34 points. The pound sterling was somewhat weaker than the dollar, so that it lost ground against the United States exchange to close at $4.69¼, off ¼ cent.

Francs recovered 2¼ points of the losses sustained last Saturday and closed at 5.04 cents; guilders, belgas, and Swiss francs also rose. The gold standard currencies were aided by the influence upon the markets of Premier Daladier's speech at Vichy pledging himself to defense of the franc against inflationary threats.

Dispatches from abroad related that bears on the dollar were covering their short positions in the belief that President Roosevelt would soon announce stabilization of the dollar. In Wall street there was discussion of the statement, issued to clients by a private Washington news service, that stabilization at 65 cents would be announced before Oct. 15. Among bankers, however, there continued to be no information on the question of currency stabilization and little inclination to place much hope in the prospects of a clean cut decision on the matter one way or another before congress meets.

INT'L HARVESTER WILL RE-EMPLOY 4,000 THIS WINTER

The winter manufacturing program of the International Harvester company calls for the reëmployment of about 4,000 workers between Nov. 1 and April 1, officials announced yesterday.

"During the last two years," the company's statement said, "International Harvester has pursued the policy of providing winter work and spreading it as far as practicable in order to furnish employment for the maximum number of employés during the most difficult part of the year.

'Following this same policy an increased manufacturing program is being planned for all the company's United States farm implement plants. Under this plan it is estimated that about 4,000 former employés will be reëmployed in the five months from Nov. 1 to April 1 in addition to those now working."

The company further stated that there was no demand now in sight for goods to be manufactured under this program and it is recognized that the company will have to carry the goods until the purchasing power of the farmer is substantially increased.

Rail Freight Still Rising in the West

The expansion in railroad traffic carried through the first week in October, according to the reports received yesterday from several western carriers. Two roads reported the highest weekly loadings this year and all showed expansion over the volume of the preceding week.

Loadings on the Chicago and North Western reached a 1933 peak figure of 26,256 cars. The closest approach to this figure earlier this year was in the week of July 16-22 when 26,049 cars were loaded.

Farm Products Help Traffic.

The current total marked a gain of 2,165 over the preceding week and 1,424 over the comparable period last year. Good shipments of grain and live stock combined with smaller gains in other classes of freight accounted for last week's expansion. Ore loadings, which are not included in the figures, were 2,427 cars, which was a gain of more than 2,000 cars over the 381 loaded in the same week last year.

Traffic on the Burlington also reached a new weekly peak with a gain of nearly 2,000 over the preceding week.

Milwaukee and Atchison Report.

The Milwaukee and Atchison both reported gains over the preceding week but ran behind the year ago totals. The Milwaukee loaded 26,381 cars, compared with 25,580 in the preceding week and 26,686 in the first week of October last. Last week also showed a gain over the first six loading days of September, when 25,557 cars were handled.

The Atchison moved 25,763 cars, up 507 from the last week in September but 1,061 cars below the comparable 1932 period.

The eastern coal strikes resulted in a decline in the traffic of the Chesapeak and Ohio, one of the most important coal carriers. Traffic last week fell to 29,798 cars from 34,841 in the preceding week and 30,713 a year ago.

CODE TO RAISE PRICES OPPOSED BY FOOD GROUPS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9. — (AP) — Spokesmen for the flour milling, fisheries and canning industries today asked to be exempted from provisions of the master code for the food and grocery industry that call for minimum price mark-ups.

In a hearing before the farm adjustment administration, they argued that special problems attending the procurement and processing of their products necessitated separate codes. Their objections were raised after representatives of associations of grocery and food wholesalers and retailers had almost unanimously expressed approval of the principle of drafting a master code to halt price cutting.

Officials of the farm administration, which is openly hostile to the mark-up provisions, limited the scope of the first day's hearing to expressions of approval or disapproval of the principles of a code. Under the mark-up provision wholesalers of groceries and foods would be required to provide a minimum mark-up of 2½ per cent in prices to retailers over the delivered cost of products furnished by grocery manufacturers and importers. Retailers, in turn, would be required to mark up prices a minimum of 7½ per cent over their delivered cost from wholesalers.

LAND BANK HAS $8,500,000 FOR ILLINOIS FARMERS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—More than $8,500,000 in federal land bank loans await the acceptance of 2,026 Illinois farmers, Wood Netherland, general agent for the farm credit administration announced today.

Since May 1 the land bank has approved 1,783 Illinois loans amounting to nearly $11,400,000. Of these 757, totaling nearly $2,900,000, have been paid out to farmers. The bank has granted extensions of time in which to pay principal on their loans to 1,754 borrowers. The emergency farm mortgage act permits a borrower to omit payments on principal for one to five years, if his loan is in good standing.

Copper Sells at 8¾ Cents; First Decline in Weeks

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Domestic copper was sold here today at 8¾ cents a pound by custom smelters, marking the first time in several weeks that metal had been available under 9 cents. Producers were still holding at the latter level.

STOCKS MOUNT; BUYING IS BASED ON TRADE GAINS

Fall Upturn Seen; 'Wet' Issues Lead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Supported by a steady stream of quiet buying, stocks made an impressive display of renewed and well distributed strength today.

On a turnover that exceeded 1,247,000 shares the list worked upward from the start with little hesitation and registered net gains among the leaders ranging from substantial fractions to six points. The close was firm, with prices holding around the day's best levels. With another state, Florida, voting on prohibition repeal tomorrow, the alcohol and distilling issues staged their customary rally to stand out from the rest of the crowd from the standpoint of gains and activity.

While the bulls had no startling success in their efforts to stir up things for an advance, the market at least was not inclined to press anything for sale.

Little Selling Pressure.

Generated by evidence in the weekend news of gradual improvement in business fundamentals, there was an undercurrent of confidence in the financial community as a whole. A brisk rally in some grains and cotton was a distinct aid to stocks, as was steadiness in the dollar abroad on the dying out of inflation agitation.

On the industrial and trade front there were indications that business may be expected shortly to respond to increased buying as the fall months wear on. Particularly cheering was the ability of the steel industry to maintain operations in the face of labor difficulties, and also the manner in which the railroads are keeping up carloading figures.

Bank Announcement Expected.

One news item that put Wall street in an expectant mood was an announcement from Washington that the controller of the currency would make an important statement late in the day.

After much pondering it was the concensus that such an announcement would be in connection with reopening of closed banks. It was pointed out that any move in that direction would be of major importance in the administration's credit expansion plans.

Stocks to show the most springiness were the alcohols, followed closely by chemicals, national distillers again showed its pace setting ability with a net advance of more than 6 points. Other good ones were Commercial Alcohol, Commercial Solvents, Schenley Distillers, Standard Brands and United States Industrial Alcohol.

Farm Issues Move Up.

Wheat's rally, after some early hesitancy, proved a boon to those bulls who have had a liking for farm implements. That group, including Case, Deere and Harvester, was distinctly among the leaders.

Metals as a group furnished the most glaring exception to the general trend. They were weak at the start and failed to impress later, many posting losses on the day. Gold shares in particular looked tired out.

Building stocks, such as Manville and American Radiator, found a good many friends. Rails hardened all through the list in the afternoon and the utilities followed. Oils were strong under the leadership of the standards. Chrysler outstripped General Motors and the rest of the automobile division. U. S. Steel and other standard industrials were fractionally to more than a point higher most of the time.

NASH DECLARES USUAL DIVIDEND, 25 CENTS A SHARE

Directors of Nash Motors company yesterday declared the regular 25 cent dividend on the capital stock, payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 20.

Loss in the quarter ended Aug. 31, 1933, was $430,516. This compared with loss of $145,469 for the preceding quarter and net income of $183,981, or 7 cents per share, for the three months to Aug. 31, 1932. Results of the third quarter of this year take into consideration the preparation for production of new series cars and final shipment of all previous series, amounting to 1,866 automobiles.

Cash and government securities on Aug. 31, 1933, aggregated $31,055,307. This item totaled $31,800,000 on May 31 and $32,935,083 on Aug. 31, 1932.

Production of the new series cars has already been started.

CANADA OFFERS REFUNDING LOAN OF 225 MILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 9.—A spectacular success for Canada's $225,000,000 refunding loan was forecast tonight as the Dominion's wide campaign, starting tomorrow, was launched with speeches by Premier Bennett from Winnipeg and Finance Minister Rhodes from Ottawa over a Canadian radio commission network.

Large institutions, such as banks, insurance companies, and industrial corporations have already indicated their intention of converting their Victory bonds, due Nov. 1, 1933, into the new issue, which will refund $170,000,000 Victory bonds and $40,000,000 short term obligations. Canadian investors will receive a yield of 4.38 per cent on the new 12 year bonds.

Reserve Banks Report Credit Expands Little

BY HOWARD WOOD.

On the eve of the administration's big push to expand bank credit by pouring RFC millions into closed and open banks the federal reserve board's weekly report on member banks throughout the country yesterday showed little change in the volume of bank credit outstanding.

Total loans and investments of member banks in 90 principal clearing house cities on Oct. 4, according to the report, amounted to 16 billion 543 million dollars, an increase of only 19 millions for the week and 278 millions less than a year ago.

Commercial loans were up 61 millions, but most of this increase had been accounted for earlier in the reports of the member banks in New York and Chicago.

* *

Within a week or two the RFC drive to supply existing banks with additional funds to lend to business is expected to get under way with the announcement from Washington that leading banks in New York, Chicago and other principal cities have set the pace by selling preferred stock to the RFC.

In view of the fact that banks in the big cities already have much surplus cash for which they cannot find suitable borrowers the RFC plan is not expected to result in a substantial increase in the loans of such banks. As the drive gradually envelops banks in smaller cities and villages, however, there may be some expansion of loans.

A factor of greater importance in the increase of bank loans will be the reopening of closed banks, thus making bank credit available in communities at present without banking facilities.

The guaranty of deposits provision which goes into effect Jan. 1 may also result in a widening of bank credit inasmuch as the assurance afforded depositors by the guaranty feature may encourage banks to cease striving solely for high liquidity.

A substantial increase in bank loans, however, is expected to occur only as business volume grows. Such credit is expected to reflect, rather than lead, business recovery. That has always been the case in the past.

* *

Miles M. Sherover, president of the Soviet American Securities corporation, New York, has contributed his bit as a humorist. This company is attempting to market in the United States an issue of ten million roubles worth of Soviet Russian bonds.

"Whereas, in the early stages of our distribution," says Mr. Sherover, "the chief buyers were workers, this is no longer the situation and I attribute the change to the increased interest in gold obligations in this country, especially since the gold clause is being honored by the issuer."

The gold clause, as Mr. Sherover says, is being honored by Russia. Naturally it would be while that nation is trying to sell ten million roubles worth of bonds in the United States. These bonds, however, are not due until Oct. 1, 1943.

* *

Investors are being asked to buy bonds of a nation because it is at present "honoring" the gold clause and trust that in ten years it will still be honoring it, the same nation which on Feb. 3, 1918, repudiated its entire national debt, which amounted to 3,258 times the amount of the current offering.

Another joker is that the bonds are not payable in gold but in American dollars, "based upon the value of the gold rouble"

The offering circular states that the underwriter assumes full responsibility for statements contained therein, but a perusal of the circular discloses that it contains almost no information whatever.

INLAND IRVING BANK TO PAY 10% TO DEPOSITORS

R. C. Sullivan, receiver of Inland Irving National bank, announced yesterday that a third dividend amounting to 10 per cent, payable to all creditors who have proved their claims, has been declared. Notices enclosing a receipt for the dividend check are now being mailed to all depositors or they may receive their checks by calling at the office of the receiver, 4790 Milwaukee avenue.

Checks in payment of this dividend will be delivered only to the original claimants or to one to whom the claim has been assigned, and in every case the receiver's certificate must be presented in order that the dividend payment may be endorsed thereon.

The receiver requests that depositors wait to call for their checks until they have received their notices in the mail. Checks, however, may be sent by mail if requested.

Schuman Here to Direct Deposit Guaranty Program

Irving Schuman, Sullivan, Ind., former assistant United States treasurer, yesterday took charge of the work of the Federal Deposits Insurance corporation in this district. Augmented by examiners from the clearing houses and the national bank examiner's office, the corporation's staff is speeding the work of examining banks for admission under the insurance fund which goes into effect Jan. 1.

PLANS TO FREE DEPOSITS FLIRT WITH INFLATION

Federal Reserve Aid Involved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Flirting with plans which are being urged by proponents of monetary inflation, President Roosevelt's financial experts, led by Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings bank in New York, started today to consider ways and means of freeing part of the two and a half billion dollars on deposit in closed banks.

One of the plans before the conference today called for the indirect taking over of poor assets in closed banks by the federal reserve system and issuance of money by the reserve banks to pay off depositors. A similar plan has been urged on the President recently by a powerful group of New Yorkers operating under the name of the committee for the nation.

Debentures to Reserve Banks.

It is understood that the plan calls for organization of a corporation with a capital of as much as a billion and a half dollars, headed by Bruere and a board of directors composed of the heads of government credit corporations.

The plan also calls for the purchase by the Reconstruction corporation of the preferred stock of the new corporation, which would receive R. F. C. debentures. With these, the corporation could take over the frozen assets of closed banks up to 50 per cent of their deposits. The debentures could be cashed by Federal Reserve banks.

Recent figures showed that the deposits of national, state member and nonmember banks which are under receiverships or conservatorships totaled $1,765,669,000, not including deposits in mutual saving banks.

More For Detroit Depositors.

Meanwhile, continued work through the regular channels on freeing bank deposits in Detroit, the hardest hit banking center in the Chicago federal reserve area, had progressed far enough for Controller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor to predict today another payment to depositors in closed banks there within thirty days.

Almost 44 per cent of the national banks which were not permitted to open immediately after the banking holiday have since been reopened, Controller O'Connor said today, and another 25 per cent have received approval on plans which will enable them to reopen soon.

Launching of the new plan for liquidating closed banks and paying off their depositors was presided over today by Mr. Bruere. Attending the conferences at various times during the day were William H. Woodin, secretary of the treasury; Lewis Douglas, director of the budget; Eugene R. Black, governor of the federal board, and George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank.

Can Trade Slow Mortgages.

Licensing of hundreds of banks still closed and liquidations of others which are not to be reopened was speeded today, when federal authorities ruled that closed banks may trade their slow mortgages for bonds being issued by both the Home Owners' Loan corporation and the Farm Credit administration.

Bonds of these two agencies are eligible for discount at the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Federal Reserve banks. Trading of mortgages for them will thus give the closed banks a liquid, instead of a slow asset, it was explained.

With the announcement of the ruling on the permissibility of such exchanges, the way was cleared for a nation-wide drive to reopen and liquidate banks on this basis. The mortgage exchange plan will be one of the major steps in President Roosevelt's new drive to pay off depositors, it was predicted.

GEN'L ELECTRIC EXPANDS ORDERS IN THIRD QUARTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Third quarter orders of the General Electric company were 70 per cent ahead of the corresponding months last year, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. A material gain was also shown over the preceding quarter.

Orders totaled $43,733,499 in the third quarter, compared with $25,665,402 in the third quarter of 1932. In the second quarter this year orders amounted to $35,539,858.

The third quarter expansion brought the volume for the first nine months of the year substantially ahead of the same period last year. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 sales were $104,785,001, against $94,374,114 in the same period last year, an increase of 11 per cent.

New York, Oct. 9.—Fairly uniform strength in domestic corporation issues and irregularly lower prices on United States government issues and foreign loans characterized a quiet session in the listed bond market today. Total dealings amounted to only $8,781,000.

In the corporation group, railroad liens showed the best improvement, although coal strikes are calculated to reduce the car loadings of the roads serving the affected areas. A number of the active rail issues advanced 1 to more than 3 points on the day.

Utility Bonds Strong.

In the utilities, communications issues and obligations of New York Rapid Transit companies exhibited moderate strength. Although industrial bonds, as a group, lagged behind the rails and utilities, several of the former classifications showed sizeable recoveries in quiet dealings.

With the single exception of the treasury 4¼s, which moved up 1-32d, United States government bonds sold off 1-32d to 4-32d point. The turnover in the long-term government issues today amounted to $1,239,000.

German Bonds Firmer.

German bonds made about the best showing of strength in the foreign list. Aside from these, there were few foreign loans which made much headway against the irregularly lower trend of the foreign group. The "gold payment" issues tended lower.

French government and municipal loans were down ⅝ of a point to 1⅛ points and Swiss government 5½s eased ⅞ of a point. Dutch East Indies bonds were off a point, to up half a point. Net changes in prices of Latin-American issues were chiefly of small consequence.

Southern California Edison.

Investors' Guide: Please give me general information on Southern California Edison.—F. F. C.

Answer: Southern California Edison Company, Ltd., is one of the major American utility operating systems. It serves an area of about 55,000 square miles in southern California, contacting more than 420 communities, including Los Angeles, Pasadena, and Long Beach.

About 14 per cent of output is taken for domestic use, 33 per cent for commercial power, 15.8 per cent for agricultural power, 10 per cent for railways, and 23.4 per cent for municipalities for resale.

Resumption of industrial demand early this year enabled the company to report gross of $35,574,000 and net income of $11,968,000, or $1.57 per common share, for the 12 months to June 30, 1933. For the preceding 12 months gross was $37,158,000 and net was $13,728,000, or $2.02 per common share.

Like other utilities, Southern California Edison is feeling the effects of heavier taxes. In 1932 total taxes were equal to $1.37 a share per year; on the present basis they equal $1.68 per common share.

The company formerly derived a substantial percentage of its power from hydro-electric generating stations. Uncertainties of water supply necessitated construction of steam generating stations. Plentiful supply of water in 1932 enabled the company to make full use of its hydroelectric facilities. Full advantage of the potential saving could not be taken because of the drop in power demand.

Gross revenues in 1932 were $37,295,000, against $40,751,000 in 1931 and $41,111,000 in 1930. Net profit in 1932 was $13,828,000, or $2.06 per common share, against net of $14,922,000, or $2.36 per common share, for 1931. Net for 1930 was $16,064,000.

At the close of 1932 current assets were $13,646,000 and current liabilities were $8,042,000. Funded debt totaled $137,998,000. The earliest maturity is 1939.

There are 4,567,261 shares of $25 par preferred and 3,115,421 shares of $25 par common outstanding. The common pays 50 cents a quarter.

The company operates in a rich territory. There have been slight indications of improvement in revenues, but the earnings report for the latest 12 month period shows that earnings were 25 per cent under present dividend requirements.

Bond charges have been amply covered and margin of preferred stock dividend coverage has been wide.

FLETCHER URGES U. S. CONTROL OF STOCK MARKETS

Senator Predicts Results from Federal Quiz.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Chairman Fletcher of the senate banking and currency committee investigating stock exchange practices, expressed today the opinion that something should be done to end "excessive speculation," and "gambling" on the exchanges.

Although the committee has not yet undertaken to formulate recommendations for legislation, based upon practices uncovered by the investigation, he said he felt that there should be some kind of federal regulation or control of the exchanges, possibly by a board or commissioner.

To Work Out Details Later.

The details of the legislation, he added, would have to be worked out when members of the committee at the end of its hearings begin to weigh the testimony for the purpose of determining what legislation, if any, should be recommended for consideration by congress.

"The committee," he said, "undoubtedly will have some definite recommendations to make with respect to gambling on the exchanges. It seems to me that there should be some kind of federal regulations. No recommendations has been formulated yet."

Chairman Fletcher said it is the intention of the committee to go ahead with its inquiry until it has been completed.

Would Finish by Jan. 1.

"I see no reason," he asserted, "why we cannot finish the investigation by Jan. 1, in time to formulate the committee's recommendations for consideration early in the regular session. I hope the committee will have recommendations for congress ready when it convenes."

The committee will resume open hearings tomorrow and forge ahead with its present inquiry into the affairs of the United States and Foreign Securities corporation and also the United States and International Securities corporation, two investment trusts created by the partners of Dillon, Read & Co., with a combined capitalization of $90,000,000 on an original firm investment of $5,100,000.

ASSOCIATED GAS CHIEF REFUTES PECORA CHARGES

J. I. Mange, president of Associated Gas and Electric company, yesterday issued a statement in response to reports in the press that Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the senate banking and currency committee, had said that the company was "a corporate labyrinth resembling the Insull group in structure and formation."

Mr. Mange's statement, which does not identify the Insull system by name, protests that Pecora's remark "could not but create the unfortunate and unwarranted impression among investors and the general public that the Associated Gas and Electric company is alone, among public utilities, complex in structure and subject to the same defects which brought the other group into the hands of receivers.

"If the Associated Gas and Electric company should find itself unable to meet its fixed interest charges," asserts Mr. Mange, "it will not be the result of any complexity of structure or similarity in any respect to the group mentioned by Mr. Pecora, but the result of the mounting taxes which utilities have had to face, the direct and indirect costs of coöperating with the NRA and the frequent unwillingness of public service commissions to allow what has always been considered a reasonable return, after operating expenses and taxes."

CORN MOVES UP AFTER SETBACK; WHEAT RECEDES

Coarse Cereal Gains Over a Cent on Day.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Corn traders apparently took stock of the domestic situation over the week-end and came to the conclusion that the recent drastic decline had resulted in the market being thoroughly liquidated, as well as causing the price to drop to such a low level that farmers were hardly likely to sell either new or old cash corn in volume.

There was no material pressure on the corn market from the start yesterday. While prices dipped as much as ⅞ cent from Saturday's finish early, December touching 41¼ cents, closing of spreads in the way of buying corn against sales of wheat caused corn to advance 2½ cents from the inside level, and the close was at net gains of 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents. December was 43⅜ to 43½ cents at the last and May 50¼ to 50⅜ cents.

Wheat Closes Lower.

Wheat futures averaged lower despite buying credited to houses with eastern connections, the closing of spreads with corn being effective in preventing rallies from being maintained. Net losses were ⅝ to 1⅛ cents with July leading. The latter option closed at 88⅛ cents, while December was 85⅝ to 85¾ cents and May was 89¾ to 89⅞ cents.

Oats declined early on scattered liquidation but rallied and closed ⅜ to ¾ cent higher, with December at 33¾ to 33⅞ cents. The northwest was on the buying side of rye and it led the advance, gaining 2⅜ to 2¾ cents for the day, with December 62 cents at the close. Barley was ⅝ to ¾ cent higher, December being 52¼ cents.

Strength in stocks had some effect on grains at times, and there was an undercurrent of anticipation that important developments might occur at Washington overnight.

Expect Tariff Increases.

There was talk of stabilization of the dollar, as well as a belief the administration might do something for the farmer in the way of an increase in the import duty. This was especially the case in rye, as several million bushels of foreign grain have been brought into this country of late despite the duty of 15 cents a bushel. The import duty on wheat is 42 cents; corn, 25 cents; oats, 16 cents, and barley, 18 cents a bushel.

The Winnipeg market was closed for the Canadian Thanksgiving day, which restricted export demand for cash wheat and no sales of consequence were reported. Liverpool closed equal to ⅜ to ¾ cent lower in American funds, with a lack of pressure from Russia having some effect on the English market early.

The government estimate on the grain crop harvested this season will be given to the trade at 2 p. m., Chicago time, today. The trade looks for little change to be shown from the 161,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, 2,235,000,000 bushels of corn and 660,000,000 bushels of oats indicated in the September returns.

ESTIMATE OF COTTON CROP GAINS 471,000 BALES IN SEPTEMBER

Cotton crop estimates by the department of agriculture yesterday indicate a production of 12,885,000 bales, compared with 12,414,000 bales in the September estimate. Last year's final returns were 13,002,000 bales. Included in the estimate were 27,000 acres of Pima Egyptian long staple cotton.

Eight big states have 11,285,000 bales, compared with 11,268,000 bales last year.

Ginning to Oct. 1 was 5,851,000 bales this year, compared with 4,835,000 bales last year and 5,409,057 bales two years ago. Yield per acre this year is 205.3 pounds on Oct. 1, against 197.8 pounds on Sept. 1 and 173.3 pounds in 1932.

COTTON MARKET UNSETTLED BY FEDERAL CROP REPORT

A wild market in cotton during the morning, with a loss of around $1.00 per bale developed yesterday, followed by an advance of 35 to 40 points after the government cotton report was given out. The close was at net gains of 4 to 11 points in Chicago, with other markets up 11 to 19 points, New Orleans leading. Spots in the latter market were 15 points higher New York advanced 15 points at 9.65 cents, Galveston was up 35 points to 9.35 cents, and Houston closed at 9.30 cents. Liverpool was 9 to 13 points lower.
